Tapir, Puma, Jaguar, Deer.
Mexico Is the Place.
And It's a Great Nation.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE

NOGALES, Ariz., Feb. 19.

IN NOGALES once again, doorway connecting Mexico and the United States. Come here once, and you will come often. The Southern Pacific comes from Los Angeles via Colton, Redlands, Palm Springs, Indio and Niland to Yuma, where the marvelous fruits grow on the irrigated tablelands, and on through Arizona via Phoenix, capital of the state, Tucson, then due south to Nogales.

AT TUCSON there is time to visit once more the admirable University of Arizona, and see a $1,500,000 hospital built for its employes by the Southern Pacific Railroad. A New Yorker, Mr. Harkness, who has given away many millions wisely, gave five hundred thousand dollars for the hospital's scientific equipment. Money could not be better spent, for there is no more important body of public servants than the railroad men.

IN WILL INTEREST Seward Cary, George Milburn, Thomas Hitchcock, Jr., Averill Harriman and others interested in polo to know that the young men of Arizona University play polo as earnestly as Helen Wills plays tennis and Bobby Jones golf. They intend to play in the East, and practicing 12 months in the year, should develop men as good as Pedley, of California.

THIS CAR carries an amazing assortment of firearms on the way to Mexico with Robert Hodge, of Hodge, Cal., alfalfa rancher; Kemper Campbell, Los Angeles lawyer, and Seward Brisbane, who at this stage of his career holds that man's finest production is a rifle with a telescope mounted on it, that can kill a mountain sheep two and a half miles away. The opinion of the mountain sheep would be different.

IF SHOOTING interesting animals or catching fish appeals to you, bring your guns, ammunition, tackle and money and spend your leisure in Mexico.

At Altar, a 45-mile motor drive from Nogales, you will find excellent deer shooting. And at Guaymas, southern extremity of Gov. Elias' state of Sonora, you catch fish in the Gulf of California, in quantity and quality unknown elsewhere, as many as your boat will hold.

At Navajoa, a little farther south, you will find wild ducks and geese, in flocks of thousands.

MOUNTAIN SHEEP and goats, that seem to fascinate sportsmen, are plentiful in Mexico. If you prefer more ferocious game you may shoot mountain lions, as big as a fair sized tiger, and jaguar, the Mexican tigre, as ferocious and dangerous as any animal that kills for a living. You may also kill tapirs, although it would take a hard heart to shoot that gentle animal with a long nose, that seems to have been suddenly stopped by evolution on its way to become an elephant.

ALSO THERE are thousands of wild boars that, according to the British idea, should be killed with a lance from the back of a horse, according to orthodox "pig-sticking" rules. It is safer, however, to shoot a big boar with a soft-nosed bullet that spreads when it strikes to make the wound as wide as the palm of your hand.

If you fall off your horse while "pig-sticking," the boar, with his long tusks, can and will tear you wide open, as Venus learned to her sorrow when the boar ripped the lovely white flank of Adonis.

MOST INTERESTING and a fine example for the supine American citizen is the peccary, a small wild pig traveling in great herds through wilder regions, able to make himself invincible by force of numbers.

Peccaries, to whom the word "fear" and "submission" are unknown, will even destroy a jaguar foolish enough to attack them.

American peccaries with their votes could defend themselves marvelously also if they would learn from the humble peccary willing to be killed, but not to be deprived of its rights.

IF GAME interests you, come to Mexico. You will be received courteously everywhere. The Southern Pacific will carry you all down the magnificent western coast along the Gulf of California and on down to Guadalajara. Thence the National Railroads of Mexico take you over the mountains to old Mexico City, nearly two miles up in the air, and to all other parts of the country.

APART FROM the sport of killing our inferior animal cousins, Mexico will interest and delight you. It is a nation with which the United States should be better acquainted and always remain united in close friendship.

It is a country of great intelligence, with a proud and capable people, determined to develop fully its limitless resources.

To say that the undeveloped wealth of Mexico is greater than all the wealth thus far developed on the North American continent is no exaggeration.

THIS WRITER, not being interested in killing anything, will travel up and down for your information, hoping that many Americans will come here and,

IRENE'S BOY, OLD FATHER, MAKE LAST APPEAL

Hope Fades as Governor Indicates He Will Heed Decision of Pardon Board

By AL GOUGH,
Staff Correspondent.

HARRISBURG, Feb. 19.—An old man and a child pleaded with Gov. Pinchot today in a desperate but apparently futile effort to save the life of Irene Shrader, condemned with her companion, W. Glenn Dague, to die in the electric chair next Monday morning for the murder of Highway Patrolman Brady Paul.

Joseph Crawford, aged father of the blonde, her 4-year-old son, Donnie, accompanied by Irene's brother, John Crawford; her sister, Mrs. Sarah Muldoon, and the latter's husband, Edward, of Wheeling, W. Va., voiced their plea to the Governor in his private office this morning.

From New Castle came word that Attorney Benjamin Jarrett would ask for a reprieve for the condemned on the ground that a revolver Irene pawned in Fort Worth, Tex., would aid in proving Irene did not shoot Paul. He will ask time to search for the weapon and have the case reviewed.

The Governor made no announcement of his attitude toward it was learned that he informed them he could take no action for clemency without written recommendation from the Pardon Board.

REPLY NOT INDICATED

The Governor declined to reveal to newspapermen what plea had been made and what reply he had given. Under the law, the Governor could only grant a respite. He has no power to order commutation since the Pardon Board has refused it.

CRAWFORD DEAD, SAYS DAGUE

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Feb. 19.—(INS.)—Faced with death in the electric chair, Glenn Dague today was quoted as revealing the fate of Tom Crawford, Irene Shrader's brother, who was with him and Irene when Corp. Brady Paul was fatally shot near here.

Crawford is dead, according to Dague's wife, Mrs. Dague said her husband told her of Crawford's fate in a talk she had with him at the county jail today.

This is the story Mrs. Dague said her husband told:

In making their getaway, Irene and Dague had to drag Crawford into the car they stole.

The next day they were driving to Parkersburg, W. Va., from Wheeling, to obtain medical treatment for Crawford, when he died in the auto.

Halfway between those towns off the highway, Irene and Dague dug a grave and buried Crawford.

Dague added that he and Irene had cut off Crawford's fingertips so that, if his body were recovered, he could not be readily identified.

'Bugs' Explains Saving Million On $11 a Week

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

The finger of suspicion is certainly growing a long finger nail.

What we need is another Paul Revere to warn the boys the investigation committee is coming.

They've buttered the witness chair so the lads can slide on and off faster.

You can still use economy, but you don't have to be strict.

We will forward you our business pamphlet: How to save a million on a salary of $11 a week.

DEATH DELAYS KIER WEDDING

From Paris today came news that the wedding of Miss Frances Kier, Pittsburgh debutante, and Baron Jean de Pellenc had been postponed because of the death of the baron's father, Gen. Baron Jean de Pellenc. He died Sunday.

Miss Kier, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Kier, of 1201 Beechwood boulevard, went to France for the wedding a month or so ago, accompanied by her mother. Her fiance had been to Pittsburgh to visit the Kier family in December.

It is expected that the wedding will not take place now for several months and that it will be a quiet ceremony without attendants.

Miss Kier, an art student, and the baron met in Paris in 1929 and their romance grew from a mutual interest in art.

Doughboy Inferior To Tommy—Shaw

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—(AP.)—George Bernard Shaw in a new book argues that the doughboy was inferior to the tommy. He sets forth that a British soldier if ordered to drive a truck to the right of the road would get within a foot of the edge while the American would be all over the road. When the American troops were finally under American command, he avers, their lines of communication were jammed and became impassable for 48 hours.

Pershing Stand Convinced Foch

How Marshal Foch was won to the idea of an American army is revealed in Gen. John J. Pershing's memoirs, which appears daily in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph. Gen. Pershing reveals that Foch was convinced the British army had reached the limit of its endurance. He vividly pictures dark days for the Allies in today's thrilling installment.

Dague Bids Last Good-Bye To Wife, Children

By WALTON WOODS,
Staff Correspondent.

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Feb. 19.—The wife and children of Walter Glenn Dague bade a last goodby to the doomed man today in the Lawrence County jail.

Dague yesterday refused to see his school-teacher wife and children who had come here from Wheeling. Today, however, he experienced a change of heart and told Sheriff Frank Johnston he was prepared for the ordeal.

Dague lifted his children, Marlys, 7, and Delmar, 11, in his arms and kissed them. He told them:

For his wife, whom he deserted for the career of crime with Irene Shrader, who is to die with him Monday morning in the electric chair at Rockview, Dague had only a handshake.

After the farewell, Mrs. Dague and her children left the jail, saying they would return home.

Without display of emotion the slayers of Corp. Brady Paul accepted yesterday's verdict of the State Pardon Board dooming them to die in the electric chair Monday.

The blonde rose expectantly in her cell last night as the sheriff, his wife and the Rev. H. O. Teagarden informed her of the board's decision. She accepted the news calmly.

The news then was repeated to Dague. He said:

"I expected it."

The Rev. Mr. Teagarden, in whose West Virginia church Dague had conducted Sunday school classes, held a lengthy conversation with the doomed man.

DAVIS QUIZ MAY BE DROPPED

Not Sure of 'Propriety' of Contest, Nye Asserts; Waits Report Reaction

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19. (AP.)—Chairman Nye, of the Senate Campaign Funds Committee, indicated today he is considering abandoning his challenge of the seat of Senator Davis (Rep.), of Pennsylvania.

Nye said:

"I am not as certain as I once was of the propriety of a contest against Senator Davis."

Asserting his course is undetermined, the North Dakotan said he was now "doubtful" as to whether he would introduce his promised resolution to ask the Senate to expel the former secretary of labor on account of his campaign expenditures in the 1930 primary and general elections.

Nye said he would present his report on the Davis inquiry to the whole committee tomorrow for approval. He expected its early approval and submission to the Senate by the end of the week.

Nye plans to await the reaction of the Senate to the report before acting. He said he would afford any senator the privilege of starting a contest.

Hearings have developed testimony that the greater part of the expenditures in the primary campaign were in the interest of Francis Shunk Brown, Davis' defeated running-mate for governor.

Father, Sons Hurt in Blast

A father and his two sons were seriously hurt this afternoon when an explosion damaged their two-story frame home at 2628 McCord street.

The injured, Otto Klingler, 66, and his sons, Otto, Jr., 33, and John, 35, are in the South Side Hospital. Fire broke out following the explosion and added to the damage of the home.

According to police the three men were seated in the kitchen, with Rose Klingler, 31, a daughter, when there was a blast in the cellar. The explosion is believed to have been caused by a short circuit on a battery which had been put on charge.

Glider Crash Kills Plane Company Head

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., Feb. 19.—(INS.)—Emery Davis, Sr., president of the Emery Davis Aircraft Company, which has been carrying on experimental work in aeronautics here, was killed, and Carl Nelson, of Roosevelt, L. I., was injured, not seriously, when an experimental glider in which they were flying early today crashed from a height of 30 feet.

Richman's Ex-Wife Hunted in Slaying

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—(INS.)—Michael Marco, of Cleveland, today claimed the bullet-riddled body of his brother, Frank, who was shot by gangsters Tuesday. Police meanwhile sought Mrs. Yvonne Richman, former wife of Harry Richman, the singer, for questioning. She was a friend of the dead man, police said.

REED FIGHTS BILL ON FLOOR

Pennsylvanian Concedes His Objections Will Not Stop Passage of Loan Plan

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—Beginning consideration today of the veterans' loan bill, the Senate was urged by its advocates to speed it to a vote before nightfall.

Senators Couzens (Rep.), Michigan, and Harrison, (Dem.), Mississippi, pleaded for quick action to get the measure to President Hoover, whose veto is regarded at the Capitol as certain.

OPPOSED BY REED

However, an attempt by Harrison to get a limit on debate was blocked by Senator Reed (Rep.), Pennsylvania, an opponent of the measure.

The galleries were packed as the Senate prepared to jam the bill through over the expressed opposition of President Hoover.

Senator Copeland (Dem.), New York, offered the first amendment—to reduce the interest rate on the loans from 4½ to 3 per cent.

As Senator Reed began an opposition speech, he declined to have a quorum call to bring the membership to the chamber, conceding:

"I know nothing I can say will change a single vote here."

"We ought to remember that we are not only spending government money by this bill, but we are spending money which would otherwise go to destitute widows and children."

ATTACKS HASTE

The Pennsylvanian protested against the "hasty" consideration being given by Congress to the legislation, recalling the bill was not even printed until last Saturday. He said the measure upset the insurance policy adopted by Congress after years of deliberation.

Reed protested that payment of lump sums to veterans now would not give them any real aid. The money would be "squandered and spent by extravagance for things they do not need," he said.

Reed explained a $500 loan on a $1,000 certificate would wipe out the remaining value of the certificate before its maturity. He said that 98 per cent of the veterans who have borrowed up to the present limit of 22½ per cent never paid back a penny. This proved, he said, Congress was changing its policy and virtually paying the present cash value of the certificates, thus abandoning the insurance and endowment features of the original bonus act.

JOBS FOR 1,500 CREATED HERE

Jobs for 1,500 men have been provided in Pittsburgh's battle against unemployment. These men will be given work three days a week for a period of three months, to be paid from funds of the Allegheny County Emergency Association.

Council, authorizing 16 improvement bills, made the jobs available and then authorized $100,000 to purchase tools and materials for the workers. While this action was being taken, industrial and business concerns swelled the Emergency Association funds by contributions.

It was pointed out that the labor furnished by the association is entirely separate from that used by the city in regular improvement projects. One large item to be undertaken by the emergency help is the improvement of the Murdoch street entrance to Schenley Park.

Four hundred members of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce were busy today canvassing local concerns and individuals for funds for the Pittsburgh Plan.

Aerial Tribute Set For Lillian Leitzel

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—(INS.)—Plans were made today to pay an aerial tribute to Lillian Leitzel, famed circus performer, who died Monday in Copenhagen. When the liner carrying her body arrives in New York, an airplane will fly over and drop a wreath of flowers.

The ashes of the noted performer will be taken to California for burial.

ACTION ON FOOD BIDS TODAY

Contracts on monthly food supplies for city institutions, held up by the investigation into affairs in the Department of Supplies, were to be awarded today.

Announcement of the plan to award the contracts—more than three weeks late—was made late yesterday by John Lang, chief clerk in the office of Bertram L. Succop, director of the Department of Supplies. Succop is ill with bronchitis. Charges have been made to Council that he showed favoritism in canned goods, junk and butter and egg

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—(INS.)—John Leffner, theatrical manager, said to be the man who invented the hat-checking system, is broke. He filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy, declaring he owed David Belasco $75 and other theatrical folk $11,843.

Italy Welcomes Returning Fliers

GENOA, Italy, Feb. 19.—(AP.)—Genoa opened its arms today to Gen. Italo Balbo, Italian air minister, and his 47 comrades who flew across the Atlantic to Brazil on the most ambitious squadron flight ever attempted.

The aviators return today from Rio de Janeiro aboard the liner Conte Rosso. The aviators will proceed to Rome for an official welcome.

London Crowds Welcome Chaplin as Hero

Thousands of wildly enthusiastic admirers of the world's best known film comedian surged around Paddington Station as Chaplin arrived on the boat train from Plymouth where he debarked from the S. S. Mauretania.

At Plymouth, Chaplin was one of the first to step ashore. Asked why he didn't continue to Southampton, his ticket destination, he grinned:

"Well, I didn't want to spoil the welcome of Capt. Malcolm Campbell. He's also aboard and there's big doings for him at Southampton."

Capt. Campbell recently won the world auto speed title at Daytona Beach, Fla.

When Chaplin reached London, however, crowds broke through the police cordon and surged on to the platform. Women and children were trampled in the excitement and police reinforcements had to be called to escort the comedian from the train to his automobile.

Much disheveled, Chaplin finally sought refuge on the top of the automobile. From that position he waved his thanks to the crowd for their reception.

FISHER AND GRUNDY VISIT HARRISBURG BUT FAIL TO MEET

EX-SENATOR BOOKED FOR PARLEYS

By E. W. FRENDERGAST.

HARRISBURG, Feb. 19.—John S. Fisher, of Indiana, is back in Harrisburg today a plain citizen. Five weeks ago he departed as the retiring governor.

Not politics, but so common a necessity as dental work occasioned his return yesterday, the former governor explained.

Following him in late last night was former U. S. Senator Joseph Grundy. Staying at the same hotel and separated by only two floors, the two did not meet.

Grundy was expected to meet his intimates in the Senate and House today, and it was rumored he would discuss patronage. It was known 11 cases were impending in health, every department. Whether he would discuss the utilities probe could not be learned.

ATTERBURY TO TESTIFY

The Capitol buzzed with the speculations of what information the Senate Investigating Committee would obtain when the inquiry resumes Monday from Gen. W. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania Railroad; Mayor Harry Mackey, of Philadelphia; James S. Benn, of the Public Service Commission, and officials of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit.

The interruption interest in the Senate inquiry was attributed to the stimulation given by the passage of the Moore bill calling for a House investigation, and Gov. Gifford Pinchot's promise to appear next Monday.

The more cynical declared Benn was "the lamb to be led to slaughter." These observers recalled that the Governor and Benn have been political enemies since the Bull Moose campaign of 1912 and believed Benn's removal might consolidate Pinchot. They also say there may be some significance in the array of talent appearing on the day the Governor was to appear, necessitating postponement of his testimony.

Others, in the majority, believe the Senate committee does not intend to "whitewash" the commission and utilities.

MAY DELAY HOUSE QUIZ

Some division of opinion as to the advisability of calling into immediate action the House resolution, which provides for a sweeping inquiry, was reported among the Governor's advisers today. They all agreed it was an "ace in the hole," passed by a friendly House to use when necessary. Some want to hold it as such, believing the Senate probe will be satisfactory. Others want to put in play and "clean up" the utilities problem and move on to another.

Speaker Goodnough with power to appoint the 10 members, will make no promises as to when he will do it.

Pinchot Removes Three From Compensation Board

HARRISBURG, Feb. 19.—Gov. Gifford Pinchot today removed the three members of the Workmen's Compensation Board who are holdovers from the Fisher administration.

Meanwhile, the state will be without a functioning board until the Senate confirms the three Pinchot appointees.

The attorney general will have to decide today whether the three present members can hold office until the new men are sworn or whether the Pinchot men can take office without confirmation.

The Pinchot appointees are A. J. Burchinal, Fayette County; Edward J. Hunter and Arthur Dale Hauck, Joseph E. Fleits and John Morrison.

THE TORTOISE AND THE MAYOR

contracts. Lang is acting in his place. Lang said:

"The bids were opened February 2 in the Council chamber. Representatives of the city controller's and the Supplies Department offices and interested bidders were present. When charges were made that Mr. Succop showed favoritism in contract awards, we became so busy the February contracts were delayed."

LOW BIDS TO WIN

All of yesterday afternoon was spent by Lang and his assistants in tabulating items, ascertaining qualities and discovering lowest bidders' figures, he said. All contracts will be given lowest bidders, he said.

Lang said it would be up to the Mayor to award the contracts in the absence of Succop. All Lang could do, he pointed out, was tabulate the items and bids.

Only where the cost is lower than $50 will Lang award the contract. The law provides that in higher amounts the Mayor and the Supplies Department director must be responsible.

The monthly lists are supplementary to the yearly contracts for food, canned goods and sundries at Mayview, the Leech Farm Tuberculosis Hospital and the Municipal Hospital.

SCAN NEW CHARGES

Meanwhile councilmen were pondering the latest charges made yesterday by the Pittsburgh Butter and Egg Exchange in a communication scoring Succop's method of purchasing butter and eggs for city institutions.

Butter and eggs are purchased by Succop mostly from Chicago firms and are approved by a government inspector, it was said. There is no government inspector in Pittsburgh, but the exchange members assert the private inspector they employ is just as capable to judge quality. Because of the inspection stipulation required by Succop it is a hardship on the local dealers to bid on these contracts, they said. Recognition for the local inspector is asked. Each member of Council was given a copy of the letter.

In a statement Mayor Charles H. Kline announced his report in the Succop case would be presented to Council at its meeting next Monday.

It was later learned that the mayor meant Tuesday, because all city offices will be closed Monday in official observance of Washington's Birthday, which falls on Sunday.

STORE BANDITS GET $365

Drug store bandits struck again last night obtaining $365 in holdups of the Arlington pharmacy, at Center and Aiken avenues, and the drug store of E. J. Carroll, at 4730 Liberty avenue.

Four bandits entered the Arlington pharmacy and ordered James McFadden, the proprietor, and his three clerks, Miss Emily Innocent, of 321 Bigham street; Leonard Costello, of 3435 Parkview avenue, and his brother, Joseph, and K. J. Stickrath, of Shaw avenue, McKeesport, a customer, into a rear room. One of the bandits rifled the cash registers of $165 and took $50 from Stickrath.

The same gang police said, was responsible for the holdup of the drug store of E. J. Carroll, at 4730 Liberty avenue, a short time before. Carroll and Vincent Gaus, a clerk, of 423 Cedarville street, were ordered into a back room. The thugs obtained $150.

Stotesbury Sued Over Realty Deal

PALM BEACH, Fla., Feb. 19.—(AP.)—Edward T. Stotesbury, of Philadelphia, was made defendant in a $50,000 damage suit brought by Clara R. Warrick and her husband, Stanley C. Warrick, Palm Beach real estate owner.

No details of the case were contained in the papers filed. S. C. Kearley, attorney for the Warricks, said, however, the suit involved a contract for Palm Beach property, but declined to amplify his statement.

Veterans' Hospital Measure Approved

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—(AP.)—The Senate Finance Committee today favorably reported the Smoot bill authorizing a lump sum appropriation of $20,877,000 for construction of additional veterans' hospital facilities.

The measure also would provide a 50 per cent cut in allowances to World War veterans while in hospitals as recommended by Veterans Administrator Hines.

2 Sentenced Year In Counterfeiting

Pleading guilty before Federal Judge R. M. Gibson to charges of manufacturing and possessing counterfeiting $1 coins and 5-cent pieces, Clarence McNeil, 29, Negro of Tannehill street, and Richard McNeil, 33, Negro, of 33 Miller street, were sentenced to the Federal Penitentiary at Atlanta, Ga., for one year.

'3-GUN' WILSON ALLOWED BAIL

WILMINGTON, Del., Feb. 19.—(INS.)—Harold D. (Three-Gun) Wilson, dry administrator for Delaware, was released in $1,000 bail this afternoon after spending a night and forenoon in the custody of U. S. Marshal Charles Hanratty for contempt of the U. S. District Court here.

Federal Judge John T. Nields, the committing jurist, granted a petition presented by an array of federal attorneys for Wilson's release on bond pending a hearing on an appeal from the contempt ruling.

Wilson was adjudged guilty of contempt after he had refused, at the direction of the court, to say what member of the Democratic League Club had given him the key he used to make a raid on the club's headquarters here last October.

were taken away from the Capitol in an automobile. As Irene's aged father left the Governor's office he said:

"The Governor was very kind to me. My heart is broken. I don't believe I can stand this."

'END OF STRING'

Attorney Thomas W. Dickey, of counsel for the doomed pair, before departing this morning for Philadelphia said:

"We are at the end of our string. Our only chance now is that the Governor might grant a respite to permit examination of Irene by alienists to determine once and for all whether this woman is of sound mind. If this were done, there would be no reflection on anyone in the carrying out of the death penalty. Lack of funds, however, prevents us from making a formal request."

The action of the Board of Pardons in refusing commutation shifts full responsibility for the death penalty on the jury. By the questions asked by the various members of the board during the hearing yesterday, they displayed their attitude of non-interference in the verdict of the jury which had the opportunity to fix the penalty at either death or life imprisonment, and the Supreme Court's decision upholding the jury's verdict and the lower court's conduct of the trial.

ATTORNEYS DISMAYED

Attorneys Jarrett and Dickey were dismayed over the decision. They expressed keen disappointment and paused momentarily in the reflection that everything possible had been done.

Attorney Jarrett said:

"My heart has been in this case. I worked diligently, not to defeat the ends of justice, but to see that justice tempered with mercy might be written into the annals of Lawrence County and the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. I feel that by the carrying out of this sentence a great injustice will have been done."

ELLIOTT NAMED EXECUTIONER

Robert Elliott, of New York, who was the executioner of Ruth Snyder for the slaying of her husband, as well as Raymond Winters and Paul Jaworski, local killers, and other notorious criminals of the East in recent years, will throw the switch which will snuff out the life of Irene Shrader next Monday at Rockview.

While the order of execution has not been definitely fixed, it is believed the blonde will precede her companion, Walter Glenn Dague to the chair.

The numbers of persons present will be limited to 12, the maximum allowed by law, all in the capacity of official witnesses, six newspapermen and six laymen.

The woman's chamber in the death house at Rockview will be used for the first time for Irene. It is virtually the same as other cells in the death row, but is isolated. Both prisoners will be taken to Rockview Saturday and the death warrant read to them upon their arrival.

Despite the fact that Monday will be observed as Washington's Birthday, the executions are set for 7 a. m.

ASKS REPRIEVE TO FIND GUN

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Feb. 19.—Attorney Benjamin Jarrett, of counsel for Irene Shrader and W. Glenn Dague, announced today that he would file with Gov. Pinchot late this afternoon an appeal for a reprieve for the condemned pair.

Jarrett said the basis of the request would be that he be given time to find a revolver which Irene says she pawned in Fort Worth, Tex., on her flight West after the slaying of State Highway Patrolman Paul.

At the trial, Jarrett asserted, testimony was offered that Irene carried a 32-caliber gun and that Paul was slain with a .38. The purpose of producing the revolver would be to bear out her contention she did not fire the fatal shot.

Dague carried a .38. Private Moore, who was with Corp. Paul at the time of the shooting on the Butler-New Castle road, also carried a .38 caliber gun.

In letters to the Pardon Board Irene and Dague sought to shift the actual firing of the shot that killed Paul to his fellow officer.

Two Doomed to Die Held to Be Sane

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Feb. 19.—(AP.)—In a report to Gov. Conley following an examination of Emory Stevens and William Claude Adams, sentenced to be hanged tomorrow night, Dr. W. D. McClung, superintendent of the Huntington State Hospital, said today that he found that Stevens showed "no signs" of insanity and that Adams, while of low mentality, "is cognizant of the crime which he committed."

SLAYER SAVED; HELD INSANE

FLORENCE, Ariz., Feb. 19.—(AP.)—Charles B. Foster, of Claysville, Pa., was snatched from the gallows by a Superior Court jury, which found him insane early today. Foster, convicted of murdering Mike Baker, of St. Louis, who had given him a lift in his motor car, was to have been hanged at dawn Friday.

Foster will be committed to the State Hospital for Insane at Phoenix.

Foster was sentenced to die for killing Baker, alias Martin Parko, near Benson, Ariz., in 1929. The Arizona Supreme Court denied him a new trial and declined to review the case. The State Board of Pardons refused to act on his appeal for commutation of sentence and held the governor powerless to act.

NEW DENIES P. O. LEASE FRAUDS

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—Harry S. New, postmaster general under the Harding and Coolidge administrations, vigorously defended his administration today when subjected to cross-examination by the Blaine sub-committee of the Senate, investigating alleged scandals in postoffice leases.

As in other hearings, most of the testimony concerned the St. Paul leasing case, in which there have been ugly rumors of scandal.

At times today tempers flared in the committee, and on several occasions Senator Blaine (Rep.), of Wisconsin, clashed sharply with other senators on the committee.

Blaine's efforts to establish that New had written a rather mysterious letter to the late James G. Good, who was attorney for the lessee of the St. Paul property, got nowhere. New said he couldn't remember such a letter, and that if one were sent he was of the opinion it amounted to little. He said:

"It reminds me of the famous case of Widow Bardel vs. Pickwick at which Sergeant Buzz-Buzz was presiding. Tomato sauce."

Blaine retorted:

"Similar sentiments were expressed in connection with the little black satchel in the Teapot Dome scandal."

"I do not know anything about any black satchel and I am not concerned in it."

New again denied vigorously that he had anything to do with the alleged halting of a grand jury investigation of the St. Paul postoffice lease.

U. S. APPROVES WIRE TAPPING

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—(INS.)—Attorney General Mitchell has issued an order permitting the Bureau of Prohibition and Investigation of the Justice Department to use wire tapping in enforcing the law, he disclosed today.

The order, issued January 19, 1931, was read to the House Committee on Expenditures, which is investigating wire tapping procedure.

The new regulation, Mitchell said, was issued pending a further study of the whole wire tapping question.

Michel Withdraws As Judge Candidate

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—(INS.)—Ernest A. Michel, Minneapolis attorney, today withdrew his name from consideration for appointment as federal judge in Minnesota in a telegram to Senator Thomas D. Schall.

This action terminates a controversy between Attorney General Mitchell and the Minnesota delegation to Congress that has raged for months. The Attorney General refused to appoint Michel.

Pinchot Grants Stay To Eastern Slayer

HARRISBURG, Feb. 18.—(AP.)—Gov. Pinchot issued a stay of execution for Wilford Flood, Luzerne County, changing the date set for his electrocution at Rockview Penitentiary from February 23 to March 30. This was issued at the request of Flood's attorneys, who desire to amend the application for commutation. The prosecution approved.

House Honors Porter, Other Departed Colleagues

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—(AP.)—With ceremony and in silence the House today prepared to honor 11 men whose death took from Congress during the past year.

Some of the most picturesque figures of their generation were on the unanswered roll call that climaxes the annual memorial exercises, an expression of personal sentiment as well as public respect.

Among the honored dead were Representative Stephen F. Porter, of Pennsylvania, who led a stirring campaign against the narcotic traffic, and Charles R. Stedman, of North Carolina, last Civil War veteran in the House. The other representatives were Lampert, of Wisconsin; Kless, of Pennsylvania; Hammer, of North Carolina; Curry, of California, memorials.

Quayle and O'Connell, of New York, and Wingo, of Arkansas.

Lee S. Overman, choice of his party for United States senator from North Carolina ever since 1895, and Senator Frank L. Greene, of Vermont, who never fully recovered from a bullet wound received by accident in a prohibition enforcement fight, were members of the Senate to be honored.

Solemn was the scene prepared. The first semi-circular row of seats reserved for the families of the dead, before them a rostrum strewn with flowers, behind members, traditionally attired in formal dark garb. Many senators join in the observance; though their branch holds separate memorials.

'We Will Love You Always,' Dague's Child Writes

HARRISBURG, Feb. 19.—Delmar Dague, 11-year-old son of Glenn Dague, sent a pleading little note, in penciled, cramped writing, to his "dear daddy," who deserted the family for a life of crime with Irene Shrader.

The note was written on child's stationery. On the top were pictures of two happy children dancing on a wall with Humpty-Dumpty. The childish nursery rhyme, ending with "All the king's horses and all the king's men couldn't put Humpty-Dumpty together again," seemed to describe Dague's situation perfectly. The letter:

"Dear Daddy: I have been thinking so much about you and my teacher has been giving me such heavy work in school I could never have time to write to you. I have finished most all fifth grade books. Marlys is reading in the fourth reader, and has the fourth grade geography and English. It keeps her busy, too. Mother is afraid it is too much for her, since this is only her second year. Marlys has been sick all day today. Hope she is well soon. I am real well, and work hard to get through. I do like school and want to learn all I can.

"Every night after we go to bed I get mother to explain fractions to me. I understand them pretty well now.

"Daddy, we do love you and think of you so much. You meant so much to us in our home and played with us so much; home has not been the same home without you. We always planned on you coming home and never knew of your trouble. We hope and pray your life will be spared for us. We would like to see you, daddy, if we can.

"Remember, dear daddy, no one will ever speak ill of you in the presence of my dear mother, sister or me. We will love you always. Write to me soon, daddy. Marlys will write to you when she is better.

"We are with three sad hearts, forever loyal to one who was dear to us. Anxiously hoping for the one great joy, as you know we will be, dear daddy, we are, lovingly yours,

"MARLYS AND DELMAR."

This postscript was appended in a child's penciled scrawl:

"P. S.—I love you, daddy, Marlys."

The letter was sent from Elm Grove W. Va., and was dated February 15. It was addressed to Mr. W. Glenn Dague, care of Sheriff Johnson, New Castle, Pa. Dague gave the letter to his attorney, Thomas W. Dickey.

Bell Ringer Fulfills Hope By 'Crashing' Broadway Stage—15 Seconds

By DAVID P. SENTNER.

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—(INS.)—Vic Faust, who can ring bells like nobody's business, has dreamed for years—like every circuit-riding performer—of opening on Broadway.

And Vic, in his fifties, has been making those bells sing and dance and sob since he was seven years old. He made something come out of those bells—a cluster in each hand. On Capt. Menke's showboat at Montrose, Pa., he was a knockout. Often the audience flung coins.

Bellman Faust

But Vic, who is a philosopher, never thought he'd make Broadway.

Then he got a trouper's big break. Quin Hall, Sun - Telegraph cartoonist, suggested Vic's act to Morris Green, producer, who was getting together his latest musical revue, "The Gang's All Here."

Green looked over Vic's stuff and thought he was great. "The Gang's All Here" opened last night with a bang. Vic waited in the wings with his silver bells. There were many stars and much stage business. The show on its first night before it was pruned was running much too long.

But Vic opened on Broadway. In his only appearance—about 15 seconds—he came on with his bells during a clowning scene by Ted Healy, the comedian.

Vic just started in to make those bells sing and sob when he was rubbed off in the comedy business. Nobody seemed to notice Vic or his bells. What's a bell ringer compared to a wise-crack?

As he pushed his way through the crowd at the stage door he said to the door-man:

"Is there a rehearsal tomorrow?"

Weather Conditions.

Cloudy weather continues over the states east of the central prairie, snow over the Upper Ohio Valley states and lake region and rain east of the mountains. Over the western half of the country and Gulf states the skies are mostly clear. The cloudy condition is due to centers of disturbance over Western New York and off the Carolina Coast. High barometer overlies the Northeast and there is a center of high pressure over the Hudson Bay section and extends southwestward over the Upper Mississippi Valley states. The high pressure is causing a slight drop in temperature over most of the states east of the Mississippi. In the Northwest low pressure is influencing the weather and temperatures are much above seasonal normal.

River Conditions.

The rivers are rising slowly. Stage at Franklin is 3.5 feet; Lock No. 7, 16.8; Pittsburgh, 13.2; Dam No. 4, 10.4; Dam No. 6, 10.3, and Dam No. 13, 10.2. About 14.5 feet is expected here tomorrow morning.

INTERVIEWED BY MOVIE WRITER

Always Played Indian Parts Because of Hazel Eyes; Aids Drought Sufferers

Universal Service.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 19.—Radio listeners throughout the country learned last night why Mary Pickford used to wish that her eyes were blue instead of hazel.

Louella Parsons, motion picture editor of Hearst newspapers and Universal Service, asked her point-blank during the Sunkist broadcast, and Miss Pickford said:

"Because my eyes photograph so dark that I always had to play Indian parts, and it's no fun to get up before daylight to put on a chilly brown clay makeup."

Miss Pickford and Miss Parsons, chatting in a radio interview, talked about the old Biograph days, when the star was a youngster in her early teens, playing in a company that included Blanche Sweet, the Gishes, Mae Marsh and others.

AIDS DROUGHT RELIEF

This was Miss Pickford's second appearance before the microphone and, like the first, in the interest of the drought sufferers. She had just officially dispatched five carloads of oranges to Oklahoma and Arkansas, as she told her listeners.

It was a "do you remember" chat, with bursts of laughter as the two old friends remembered the "funny old clothes" and the "terrible hats" that Miss Pickford used to wear before the camera long before she became a star.

"Good old days," said Miss Parsons.

"Not so good," came the reply. "There were lovely people — Blanche Sweet, the Gishes, Mae Marsh and the rest, but I can't forget that Indian makeup!"

Then they switched to more recent events.

THAT FRENCH ACCENT

"Where did you get that French accent in 'Kiki'?" demanded Miss Parsons.

"I copied my good friend, Maurice Chevalier," she added.

CURB NUMBERS RULE EXPECTED

A quiet investigation of the New York Curb Market total daily sales figure proceeded today, sponsored by "numbers" racketeers in Pittsburgh. Some decision was expected to be made by Monday, at the latest, as to using the curb figure as basis for the Pittsburgh racket.

Rumor has it that the New York operators booking on the Miami pari-mutuels are dissatisfied with the races as a lottery base. Cause for the dissatisfaction was seen in attempts which have been made, it is said, to "fix" racing officials and in confusion that resulted yesterday when mutuel amounts were changed two or three times in the course of the day.

Meanwhile, operators throughout the district continued to book fearfully and anxiously on unofficial totals of the New York Stock Exchange daily transactions. Waiting for a reliable number to be found, they book on the New York Exchange from day to day, hoping they won't be "taken for a ride" on a "bad" number.

CARROLL CRITIC FACES QUIZ

CHICAGO, Feb. 19.—(AP.)—Having given delighted court fans an earful about Earl Carroll's "Sketch Book," Miss Effie D. Sigler, a censor, prepared today to face cross examination on the moral merits of the play which recently was raided by police.

The show had its initial court review yesterday before Judge Justin F. McCarthy with Miss Sigler, chairman of the moving picture censorship board, assuming the star role of the case in which the prosecution charges the revue is obscene.

Amid the giggling of chorus girls, laughter of spectators and thumps of a mailiff's gavel, Miss Sigler describing the women in the play as "seemingly nude." She also testified there was a bathroom scene in which a girl was "represented as being nude."

General Announces He Will Quit Post in September To Take Up Lecturing

BUFFALO, N. Y., Feb. 19.—(AP.)—Maj. Gen. Smedley D. Butler plans to resign from the Marine Corps next September to become a lecturer.

He announced his intention to forsake his military career for the hustings last night when he arrived here to deliver an address, explaining that he had signed a contract to deliver a series of lectures beginning next October.

NOT OVER MUSSOLINI

He said the recent Mussolini incident, which resulted in an apology to the Italian Premier by the State Department and a reprimand for Butler from the Navy Department, had nothing to do with his proposed resignation.

His resignation, he said, was contingent upon the consent of the President, adding that some Washington officials were aware of his plans and that he expected no opposition.

SENATE AMBITION SEEN

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—(INS.)—Announcement that Maj. Gen. Smedley D. Butler will retire from the U. S. Marine Corps next autumn came as no surprise to Washington.

Gen. Butler informed friends here several weeks ago that irrespective of the outcome of his "scrape" over the Mussolini incident he would retire this year and devote himself to private pursuits.

The colorful Marine also is credited with political aspirations. He is said to aspire to a senatorial nomination from his native state of Pennsylvania. His father, the late Thomas Butler, was for many years a congressman from the Chester district, and was chairman of the House Naval Committee.

BUTLER COMING HERE

Gen. Butler will be in Pittsburgh Saturday night to speak at the annual dinner of Group Eight, Pennsylvania Bankers' Association, in the William Penn Hotel.

'HYMIE' RETURN UP TO PARK

Judge Joseph Stadtfeld said today that he felt the district attorney's office was responsible for the return of "Pittsburgh Hymie" Martin until the formal order releasing him in custody of Cleveland detectives is signed. Martin, charged with the murder of William E. Potter, former councilman of Cleveland, was whisked out of the Common Pleas courtroom and away to Cleveland yesterday before Judge Stadtfeld had signed the order.

Judge Stadtfeld pointed out that it was the district attorney's duty to help maintain the court's dignity. The judge indicated that contempt proceedings against the detectives who rushed Martin away would be in order.

District Attorney Andrew T. Park said that he would move to return Martin if Judge Stadtfeld so requested.

From Cleveland today came news that Martin had refused to plead. To facilitate court procedure, a not guilty plea was entered for him. The commissioners of Cuyahoga County today added $10,000 to the rewards for the solution of the killing. The rewards now total $21,000.

JURY INDICTS NEW 'PONZI'

BELVIDERE, Ill., Feb. 19.—(AP.)—The spectacular rise of Albert W. Benham from a shipping clerk to a "financial wizard" had an aftermath today in his indictment by the grand jury.

Benham, variously called "The One-Man Mint," "Prosperity Al" and a "Midas," because his business, extending over a period of two years, was reputed to have paid investors as high as 50 per cent interest, was accused of operating a confidence game and obtaining money under false pretenses. Four true bills were returned by the county grand jury.

A bench warrant for his arrest was issued by Judge E. D. Shurtleff, of the Circuit Court.

Benham, who described his business as that of buying up bankrupt stocks at low prices and selling them quickly at large profits, was missing, but his friends said that he would return to face the charges.

BELIEVE CRISIS OVER IN SPAIN

MADRID, Feb. 19.—(INS.)—With a cabinet of staunch Royalists at the helm and King Alfonso securely seated on the throne, Spain today looked forward to at least a temporary respite from the political upheavals which in the past week threatened to transform the nation from an absolute monarchy to a limited one, or even into a republic.

The crisis, precipitated when the Berenguer ministry was forced to resign because of the political impasse, was solved in bold manner by the King, who outwitted his foes and grouped about him a Monarchist coalition government.

The new government promised to outline its policy before night. In all probability its program will provide for the calling of an ordinary Cortes (parliament), which would be authorized to revise certain constitutional clauses, but not to eliminate the throne or even deprive the sovereign of any powers, as a Constitutionalist parliament would do.

Spanish Infanta's Engagement Denied

MADRID, Feb. 19.—(INS.)—The chief steward of the royal household today denied reports from Rome that the Infanta Maria Cristina, daughter of King Alfonso, is engaged to marry the Duke of Bergamo, cousin of the King of Italy.

BUSINESS DISTRICT OF BUENA VENTURA, COLOMBIA, AFTER FIRE RUINED NEARLY A SQUARE MILE: LOOTERS KILLED TWO!

National Debt Reduction Defended by Coolidge

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Feb. 19.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

We still have a small body of thought that considers the national debt has been reduced too fast. It is claimed that the surplus should have been applied to a reduction of taxes. By the same reasoning it would be proven that taxes should be kept down and money borrowed to meet running expenses. It was a great saving to the taxpayers to reduce the debt when the value of the dollar was low. It takes about twice as much cotton, corn, wheat, copper and other materials now to make the same payments as it did two or three years ago.

If it is argued that liquidation of the debt disturbed financial conditions one answer to that is that for every dollar the national debt was reduced state and local governments increased their debts over a dollar.

Calvin Coolidge

Besides these reasons anyone who knows the enormous pressure on the Congress by organized minorities knows that if the revenues had not been used to reduce the debt they would have gone into additional expenditures rather than tax reduction. Great interest charges have been eliminated. Sound finance calls for payment of debt and making the revenues of each year meet the expenditures.

CALVIN COOLIDGE.

$25,000 JEWEL THEFT FOILED

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—(AP.)—Two men of a trio who tried to rob a tenth floor jewelry firm in Fifth avenue at Forty-sixth street were captured when a porter closed a steel gate which cut off escape. Diamonds valued at $25,000 were recovered in a washroom.

Police surrounded the building a few minutes after the holdup. No one was allowed to leave the structure until questioned. Traffic in Fifth avenue was tangled as thousands of pedestrians jammed the street.

One of the captured men was identified as Roy H. Sloane, once an infant prodigy, who just before Christmas argued his way out of Sing Sing prison through knowledge of law obtained while serving a sentence for automobile theft. Nervousness while being detained in the lobby of the building betrayed him to patrolmen.

The other gunman gave his name as Jack Giller, of Coney Island. The third man escaped.

BUREAU'S FATE TO BE DECIDED

A conference is to be held between Public Works Director Edward G. Lang and City Controller James P. Kerr to decide whether the city can save money by awarding street work testing contracts to private firms instead of maintaining a bureau for the work.

Council requested the conference yesterday when Lang asked for creation of additional positions in the Bureau of Tests and presented an ordinance fixing the rate of compensation.

Work of the bureau consists of investigations into street paving projects and tests to determine quality of materials and workmanship.

Alma Rubens Declared Duplicity of Cortez Broke Her Heart; Honeymoon Interrupted Because of Wedding Before Legal Divorce

Intense Egotism of New Mate Led To Marital Unhappiness; Star Still in Grip of Drugs

BY ALMA RUBENS

CHAPTER XVIII.

Cortez had just been assigned a role in "Cytherea" at that time, the first picture made by First National after they had taken over Cosmopolitan Pictures. I was introduced to him by George Fitzmorris and, so far as I was concerned, it was a case of love at first sight.

Miss Rubens

The very day I met him I read a notice in the papers to the effect that he was engaged to marry Agnes Ayres. I envied about that for days and days, although I continued to meet him and he showed every indication of reciprocating my affections.

Cortez, who, as I mentioned before was the son of a butcher with a shop on East Avenue, New York was my ideal. Tall, dark, slender and with a Greek cast to his face, the more I saw of him the more I loved him.

AGNES AYRES . . . WAS SHE THE "LUCKY ONE?"

At that time Cortez was a prop man occasionally assigned to small parts and he was complaining to Fritzie as they sat in a Los Angeles restaurant about the difficulty he had obtaining parts because of his name.

Prisco [illegible] on the alert for a chance to spring something [illegible] casually turned around, peered into the cigar store adjacent to their table and [illegible].

"Oh-oh! Is-t-that-so? Lo-oo-o-k at that! and he pointed a finger at [illegible] arches forming within. I-loo-ok at that! A-ah-abso-lu-lutely perfect! Rin-tican-do Cortez, by gosh!"

So Ricardo Cortez he became, the name under which I met him and which I believed his own for almost a year after our marriage. Ric was an awful prevaricator. I actually believed his long-winded story that his mother, a famous Spanish prima donna, had died when he was a small child, immediately after his father brought her to America.

I didn't learn that his mother—a quiet, intelligent, lovable old woman—was alive until the time he was suddenly called away from Hollywood to appear with Gilda Gray in "Aloma of the South Seas," several months after he had led me to the altar.

Broken Hearted

And, when I did learn of this, it almost broke my heart. Up until that time I had trusted him implicitly. And, when I learned of his duplicity, and the apparent shame he felt when his humble ancestry was mentioned, there were days and days that I simply couldn't tolerate the thought of loving him.

Of course, I was deceiving him, too. Daily I was taking my morphine injections, a situation of which he had not the slightest inkling. It was a case of deceiving deceivers, I suppose. But I am getting far ahead of my story.

As I mentioned before, I was smitten the moment I laid eyes on him and, the thought that he was engaged to Agnes preyed on my mind, day and night. I continued seeing him on the lots, however, and finally I consented to accompany him on a party, although I had firmly made up my mind that I would have nothing further to do with him, because he was an engaged man.

Then stories appeared in the newspapers to the effect that he and Agnes had broken, that their engagement was permanently in the discard. I never shall forget how happy I was. I believe this was the only occasion in my life that I ever reveled in somebody else's misfortune—if I might call it that. Subsequent developments, however, lead me to believe that she was a lucky girl.

Sued for Divorce

Meanwhile, I continued with my drugs. Day by day my need for the daily "shot" grew more aggravating. I was living in a big, rambling patio—rented—at that time, and my mother had returned West.

Immediately after her arrival I had filed a suit for divorce from Dr. Goodman, and pending trial of the issues—extreme cruelty, I felt free to go around with Ric.

He visited me almost every night and prior to his trip East, we had become engaged. Between my craving for the drugs and my heartsickness over Ric's absence I put in a miserable two months while he was away.

Then, the day of his return, we quarreled over one of the funniest things imaginable. I had had onion—fried onions—for dinner and he raised a terrific rumpus because I dared to kiss him when he alighted from the train.

This was soon patched up. We anxiously awaited the day my divorce decree from Dr. Goodman would become final. Well, to make a long story short, we underestimated the date by one day, went to Riverside, and were married.

Upon our return to Los Angeles, we were dumfounded to see an article in the newspapers to the effect that I was guilty of bigamy.

Oh, Lord! What a night I put in! I expected every minute for the police to come in and lead me away to jail. I was terrified. So was Ric. We hastily made arrangements for separate rooms, and spent our first night of wedded life apart.

And, the next day, when the required legal time was up, what a time we had in getting remarried. The pastor who had married us before thought we were crazy and wouldn't retie the knot.

We found another one, not so fastidious, however, and we were tied all over again. And, as usual, little Alma, always to be depended upon for something different, fainted. I collapsed in a heap, unconscious, at the completion of the ceremony.

I don't know whether it was the let-down from my nervous strain, caused by the fear of arrest, or whether it was from the fact that I had not had my daily "shot." But, anyhow, I fainted in my bridegroom's arms.

Ric was extremely concerned about me and carried me out to our car. And, that night, we occupied the same room, snapping our fingers in the faces of several reporters, who deigned to break in on our happiness.

The next day we both went on location. And upon his return, we nearly did split up, simply because of his insufferable egoism.

When we were married he was getting $500 weekly from Famous Players. The first thing I did after our marriage was to goad him into seeking an increase. He did so, receiving a new contract, under which he was paid $1,000 a week for the first year, with a renewal option at $1,500.

Hair Bobbed

He raised the devil because, in his absence, I had had my hair bobbed. There was simply no living with him.

I was quite willing to retire. He was making sufficient money, thanks to me, to support us in regal style, and I really wanted a home; a real home, which I wanted to take care of myself, and which, if I had gotten it, might have so occupied my time that I might have forgotten about my daily "shot."

Two humorous incidents that followed on two consecutive days, just before I had to leave for the East myself, to take part in a picture, almost led us to a marital split-up. This was about a year after our marriage.

We had gone to a Spanish restaurant in Los Angeles for dinner. The elderly waiter, a Spaniard, apparently recognizing Ric, by that time becoming popular, endeavored to make a hit with him.

Up until that time I never knew, although I had begun to suspect, that Ric, despite his "nativity," knew little or no Spanish. The only Spanish words I had ever heard him utter were "adios" and "caramba!"

Well, this old waiter came up the moment we had seated ourselves and greeted us with a salvo of Spanish. I never made any pretense of knowing the language, and looked at Ric expectantly.

"Oh," I volunteered. "What's the trub? No spikka da Espanole?"

He glared at me a moment, pushed the table away, seized his hat and ran out, leaving me sitting there feeling like—and no doubt looking like a fool.

The very next day somebody, I don't remember who, told me the real story of his parentage. At first I was very much upset, but later I didn't take this so seriously. Anyway, I probably was imposing on him as much—or more—by my secret use of dope, as he had imposed on me.

(Copyright, 1931, by N. Y. Daily Mirror)

Alma Rubens, in the next installment, reveals further details of her hectic career with Ricardo Cortez, and the startling consequences when he learns she is a dope fiend.

BOY, 2, LICKS PAINT, DIES

Two-year-old Jack C. Fisher, of 573½ Stoker avenue, North Braddock, was dead today as a result, the coroner's office reported, of licking wet paint from the window sills in his home.

The child became ill Tuesday and died in his home last night, according to the coroner's office.

PENNSY FREIGHT CARS DERAILED

Nine cars of two freight trains which were passing on the Duff branch of the Panhandle division of the Pennsylvania Railroad near McKees Rocks, were derailed yesterday when the emergency brakes on one of the trains were accidentally applied. Six cars on the train which came to a sudden stop left the rails, derailing three cars on the train passing in the opposite direction.

How to Save a Million

graduate in ten, twenty and thirty years. There would be even more. But some of them got life.

Are you anxious for a career? We can have one arranged by an intelligent jury.

Of course you have an out. After the jury slaps the permanent plaster on you then your lawyer protests the play because there were twelve men in the huddle.

We can assist the Reichstag in fixing the blame for war guilt. Everybody claims to have won it. Nobody lost it. Nobody started it.

That makes it the perfect war.

The pins they stuck into maps were just to amuse the children. But somebody started it. And thisaway it was:

A man was walking down the street when another man looked at him. The first man, who was feeling all organized like a filing cabinet, said:

"Whattsamattah? See a crowd?"

The second man proved to be a lecturer. His favorite lecture was about going over Niagara Falls in a barrel. Somebody plugged up the bunghole of the barrel. And his lecture was ruined because he couldn't see anything to lecture about.

Then a big chunk fell off the American side of the falls. Anything to embarrass the administration.

The other fellow was an authority on the habits and customs of the Australian pigmies.

A pigmy was formerly a big Navy man. He yelled for a big Navy. When Congress knocked fifty million off the budget he naturally got that much smaller.

Then Congress lopped another hundred million off the naval program and he got that much more dwindled.

At the end of the second session of Congress there was nothing to do but become a pigmy. The last seen of him he was sailing around a pond in a tomato can with a flag indicating that the owner was aboard.

These are not the two men who started the war. But they had plenty of reason. It was started in another section of the world by a couple of fellows who knew the first two men and were not hampered by ethics or experts who promised to do all the damage they could for a dollar a year.

And that's how it started. Like Topsy it had curly hair but nobody knew the location of the beauty parlor.

The Reichstag should not worry about war guilt. There is only three cents worth of silver in an English shilling and the guy who wrote the Hymn of Hate should feel vindicated and satisfied.

And what about the Kaiser? Well, £3 just made a bad picture, that's all.

Now give this explanation to Prof. Einstein and he will give you the answer in revolving triangles.

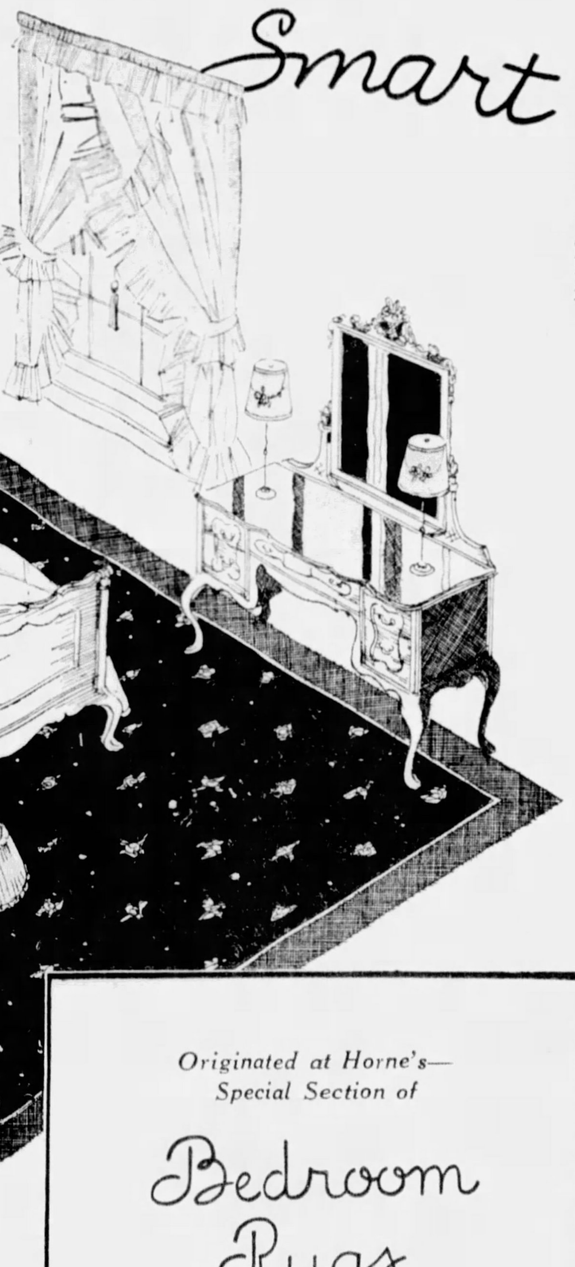
For the Smart Bedroom



Attention is focused now on that long-neglected room, the bedroom. Instead of falling heir to rugs, or lamps or chairs that had outgrown their usefulness in another room, the bedroom now has its specialized furnishings with just as great a possibility for originality as any other room.

Bedroom Lamps

The modern bedroom requires many lamps for utility and decorative purposes. A pair of lamps is necessary on the vanity. Silver-finished bases may be assembled with any color of shade. Bases, $1.25 each. Parchmentized shades, $1.75 each.

Silver-and-gold finished floor lamps are used in the bridge or junior style beside the boudoir chair . . . and twin lamps are placed between twin beds. Bases are $5.75 and $8.50. Pastel shades are priced $1.95 to $5.75.

... Horne's, Fifth Floor ...

Bedroom Curtains

With the approach of spring comes the need for new curtains to give the bedroom a changed, new appearance from within and without.

Ruffled Curtains of plain marquisette in cream or ecru color, made 36 inches wide—giving 72 inches of curtain across the entire window. 95c pair.

Criss Cross Curtains of fine French marquisette with that appealing fullness so needed in the Colonial type of room. In cream or ecru. 50 inches wide. $1.55 pair.

HOOVER PLANS REST IN SOUTH

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19—(INS)—Beginning development of a last-minute legislative record which will enter an extra session of Congress the end of the first week in March will find President Hoover enjoying a South Georgia period of quail fishing in Georgia waters and a much-needed rest.

Tentative arrangements are in the making which call for a repetition of last year's visit to Long Key, famous fishermen's base on the Florida Keys midway between Miami and Key West.

The President's solicitude of a recent audit and his physician, Dr. Joel T. Boone, that extra vacation is being planned.

Mrs. Hoover, who left last Monday for Asheville, N. C., to visit her mother, Mrs. Herbert Hoover will join the party en route. Two White House automobiles have been dispatched to Asheville for her convenience.

Either in going South or returning the President is expected to stop off at Asheville to also visit his son, Herbert, Jr., operating from a minor injury.

TRY DEAD STAR FOR MURDER

SANTA ANA, Cal., Feb. 19—(AP)—Suicide did not save Adele Ritchie, once a musical comedy star, from trial for the murder of her friend, Dora Murray Palmer.

Although the "Dresden China Doll" has been dead 10 months a trial to determine the degree of her guilt was in progress in Superior Court here today.

The case opened yesterday as though Miss Ritchie, the wife of Guy Bates Post, actor, were present as defendant. Upon the verdict of murder or manslaughter which Judge G. K. Scovel will have in his power to return hangs a contest for $1,500 between heirs of the two women.

Miss Ritchie committed suicide last April shortly after she shot Mrs. Palmer in a cottage at Laguna Beach, a fashionable artists' colony.

BILL ASKS PAY RAISE FOR PARK

HARRISBURG, Feb. 19—Andrew T. Park, district attorney of Allegheny County, who asked the county commissioners to raise his salary last summer, may get that raise yet.

Assemblyman Joseph G. Steedle, of McKees Rocks, has introduced a bill which would lift Park's salary from $10,000 to $15,000. The bill was in committee today.

A $5,000 raise is more than Park asked the commissioners for. When the new census figures were published last year Park based his request on a contention that the bigger population entitled him to a $12,000 salary, under an old law.

County Solicitor Mortimer B. Lesher convinced Park there was no such law, and Park dropped the matter.

TWO FINED $25 IN AUTO THEFT

Captured a half an hour after they had taken an automobile, according to Motorcycle Patrolman Thomas Fleming, Edward Rimmel, 17, of 266 Robinson street, and Leo Cusick, 16, of 244 Robinson street, were fined $25 when arraigned in Morals Court before Magistrate Thomas D. Jones today.

The youths told the magistrate they had wanted to go for a ride. Neither knew how to drive. E. J. Lester, of 216 Coltart square, owner of the machine, refused to prosecute the boys.

Mayor Walker Wants N.Y. Workers to Walk

NEW YORK, Feb. 19—(AP)—The first Walker, of New York, none other than the Mayor, is enthusiastic about workers walking to work. At a hearing about parks he expressed the hope that there would be housing developments in downtown Manhattan so people would live within walking distance of work.

When Your Cough Hangs On, Mix This at Home

The best cough remedy that money could buy, can easily be mixed at home. It saves money and gives you the most reliable, quick-acting medicine you ever used. The way it takes hold of stubborn coughs and chest colds, giving immediate relief, is astonishing.

Any druggist can supply you with 2½ ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a pint bottle, and fill up with plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey. It's no trouble at all to mix, and when you once use it, you will never be without it. Keeps perfectly and tastes good—children really like it.

It is surprising how quickly this loosens the germ-laden phlegm, and soothes and heals the inflamed membranes. At the same time, part of the medicine is absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly on the bronchial tubes, and helps the system throw off the whole trouble. Even those severe coughs which follow cold epidemics are promptly ended.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form. Nothing known in medicine is more helpful in cases of severe coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles.

THE DOW DRUG CO.
Pittsburgh Homestead McKeesport

OBITUARY

Robert A. McKean.

Robert Andrews McKean, 67, prominent in the structural steel industry, died in his home in the Schenley apartments yesterday. He had been associated with many steel companies here. At the time of his death he was vice president of the McClintic-Marshall Company.

He was born on the McKean farm at Charleroi and received his education in the public schools and at the Western University of Pennsylvania. He graduated as a civil engineer in the class of 1886. From 1888 to 1908 he was employed by the Riter-Conley Company, later going to the Jones and Laughlin Steel Corporation as manager of its Keystone plant. In 1916 he became general manager of the Riter-Conley plant of the McClintic-Marshall Company at Leetsdale and later was named a vice president.

Shortly after the World War Mr. McKean spent several years in France, representing the Riter-Conley Company. He was instrumental in the building of the blast furnaces of the United States Steel Corporation at Gary, Ind., the Jones and Laughlin furnaces at Aliquippa, and those of the Colorado Fuel and Iron Company at Pueblo. He was a member of Christ Methodist Episcopal Church, Masonic groups, the Engineers' Society of Western Pennsylvania, the Duquesne and University clubs. He leaves his widow, Margaret Cox McKean; a son, Robert A. McKean, Jr., a daughter, Margaret McKean; two brothers, Andrew and William R. McKean and two sisters, Mrs. Mary M. Thompson and Mrs. Agnes M. Stewart.

Bracken Funeral.

Military funeral services for John P. Bracken, 55, of 3230 Wainbell avenue, Mt. Lebanon, were to be conducted today by Camp Alfred E. Hunt, No. 1, of the United Spanish War Veterans, of which he was a charter member. Mr. Bracken, who was active many years in Democratic political circles, died Saturday night in his home. Services were to be held in the Bracken home and at St. Bernard's Catholic Church, with burial taking place in Mt. Olivet Cemetery. Post Commander Walter Berquist was to be in charge of the military rites.

Konstanzer Funeral.

Funeral services for Mrs. Mary A. Konstanzer, 80, who died Tuesday, will be held tomorrow afternoon at the home, 126 Plymouth street, Duquesne Heights. She was a member of the Smithfield Street Evangelical Protestant Church, and the Ladies Aid Society of that congregation. She leaves three daughters, Jessie and Mary, at home, and Mrs. Albert L. Koch, of Forest Hills; three sons, John, of Aspinwall; Otto, of Eagle Rock, Cal., and William C. Konstanzer, of Dormont, two brothers and a sister.

M. J. Killeen Funeral.

Funeral services for Michael J. Killeen, 73, veteran iron man, of 1015 Kirkpatrick avenue, North Braddock, will be held tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock from St. Thomas Catholic Church. Mr. Killeen died Sunday in St. Francis Hospital. He was assistant superintendent of the Edgar Thomson blast furnaces for more than 30 years, during which time he was responsible for several inventions for the industry. He resigned in 1914. He leaves four children, Mrs. Charles Rodgers and Peter Killeen, of Wilkinsburg; Clarence C. Killeen, Swissvale, and Miss Mary Killeen, at home.

5 Royal Portraits Auctioned for $15

POTSDAM, Feb. 19.—(AP.)—Some idea of the popularity of royal portraits in Germany was indicated in the sale at public auction of five lithographs of Prussian kings and princes for $15.

The bidding on a portrait of the Italian King, Humbert, started with 60 cents.

Canned Goods Taken From Chain Store

Employes of a P. H. Butler store in Forty-seventh street were making a check today to determine the amount of canned goods stolen last night by a thief who threw a brick through a window and removed a quantity of merchandise.

MERLE ALCOCK SINGS ARIA FROM 'CARMEN'

WE NOW PRESENT

By DARRELL A. MARTIN, Radio Editor

Were we to select 10 favorite vocal selections for radio presentation we most certainly would include the Habanera from "Carmen" and Valse Huguette from "Vagabond King," both to be sung by Merle Alcock, contralto, on KDKA at 9:30 tonight. The Habanera is so written that it is hardly necessary to insert castanets for Spanish atmosphere. And the dreamy Valse Huguette with its "take me as you find me" spirit is moving beyond words. We would advise you not to overlook the CBS sketch on WJAS at 8:45 featuring Agnes Ayres, screen star, and a fine cast.

Agnes Ayres

QUESTION A DAY:

Answer—While "Uncle Abe" is older in the plays, it's just the reverse in real life. Phillips H. Lord — 29 — is "Uncle Abe," Arthur Allen — 48 — plays the youth's part of "David."

Eight clear channel stations were recommended for 50,000 watts in a report made to the Federal Radio Commission today by Chief Examiner Ellis A. Yost. They are WJZ, WCAU, WSB, WSM, WGN, WCCO, KPO and KOA.

Ten clear channel stations were recommended for 25,000 watts. They are WBZ, WHAM, WOR, WHAS, WBT, WAPI, KVOO, WMAQ, KSL, KGO.

The new report has to be acted upon by the Radio Commission before it can become effective.

HEY, WATSON!

Richard Gordon, who portrays an excellent Sherlock Holmes on the network, got lost hunting for the "D" studio at NBC the other day and asked a page boy the direction.

"Down the west corridor," directed the page. Then turning to the hostess he said:

STUDIO LIGHTS

Bob MacGimsey, whistler, returns to KDKA Sunday night at 9:45.

L. S. Orr, Jewett, O.—Andy Sanella, not B. A. Rolfe, leads Soup Orchestra in the morning. Lew Conrad is the vocalist. They do a special program on WCAE Friday night at 10. Tom Kennedy croons the RKO Song.

If you live in Greensburg we hope to say "Hello" tonight at the Radio Show being conducted by Count John K. Chapel, of KQV.

Annette Hanshaw returns to WABC at 11:30 tonight. Ben Bernie is on WABC at 11.

Prof. Albert Einstein is to be heard over WJAS on Wednesday night, March 4, at 10 o'clock, speaking at the dinner of the American Palestine Foundation.

Billie Jones and Ernie Hare, with "Chick" Kennedy and Sylvia Miller, of the Capitol Theater Family, put on a real show for the Grotto in Carnegie Music Hall last night.

Edith E. W., 2413 Cronemeyere avenue—Tommy Brown is the real son of George Frame Brown in "Real Folks." Elsa Mae Gordon plays "Sneed." Tommy has a part tonight in the 8:45 sketch on WJAS.

TODAY'S TID BIT:

More people listen to radio on Saturday than any other day, G. Dare Fleck, program manager at KDKA, tells us. Days in the order of their radio popularity are as follows—Saturday, Sunday, Friday, Wednesday, Monday, Thursday, Tuesday. This is the result of a survey among nine million listeners.

EIGHTY-SIXTH ANNUAL STATEMENT

To the Policy-holders:

Most of us have labored together for a considerable period.

My service in Nylic has covered forty-two years. I have been President of New York Life Insurance Company for nearly twenty-four years.

In the twenty-four years you have numerically been multiplied by three; and your collective property in this Company has been multiplied by three and a half.

You have made a great demonstration within a generation of the power that lies in co-operation between "humans." You have become increasingly convinced of two great truths.

First—that "no man liveth to himself," and the less he tries to do that the more truly and fully he lives.

Second—that men are naturally honest and that those in positions of responsibility and trust in business are more honest and much more capable than men are as a whole.

Emerging from the frightful financial disasters of 1930, people are wondering if it was all or in large part necessary. They are asking why such heartbreaking experiences should not naturally cease in countries organized to preserve the strength and the inspiration that lie in individual efforts and in the ownership of private property.

American life insurance reaches its present greatness just in time to answer that question. It is true that we have had in this the freest and most individualistic section of the world (United States and Canada) a disturbing experience. Could it have been avoided substantially? I answer it could and some day such happenings will be largely avoided.

As we emerge from this setback in our economic system we discover that one thing remains unchanged and substantially unaffected.

It is almost literally true that every man who owns property is poorer today than he was a year ago; but to the extent that his possessions are represented by Life Insurance he is as rich today as he was a year ago.

They (his Life and Endowment policies) have not shrunk in value—except as he may have used them as collateral to relieve his needs in other directions.

Suppose the total outstanding insurance a year ago had been 220 billions instead of half that—suppose the assets of the Companies had been 38 billions instead of half that. How much less would the speculation and loss have been in 1930?

Life Insurance Companies will ultimately achieve those totals and greater ones and they will yearly represent an increasing and conservative factor in the whole property problem.

Life Insurance assets are not used speculatively. With relation to our total national wealth those assets represent a steadily increasing factor. They increase the factor of stability and decrease the factor of chance. That gain has been steady for almost a quarter century. Outstanding insurance will double and assets will double long before the wealth of these countries doubles. The lesson of it all is that economic changes of profound significance and of fundamental importance are taking place as the result of the amazing growth of Life Insurance. Life Insurance does all that its devotees have claimed and now it emerges from this world catastrophe substantially untouched and rendering a public service that few people ever realize.

IT WAS ORGANIZED TO MITIGATE THE TERRORS OF DEATH. IT HAS BECOME A VALIANT AND AN INCREASING DEFENSE AGAINST THE ECONOMIC DISASTERS THAT PERIODICALLY DEVASTATE THE BUSINESS WORLD.

In other words, we are, through Life Insurance, in these great, free countries, preserving individual enterprise and the rights of individual wealth and at the same time we are utilizing the almost immeasurable power of united and common action.

We are gaining on economic disaster and we shall go on gaining because Life Insurance will go on gaining.

In free countries there is no way to stop speculation; to do that arbitrarily would not be consistent with the principles of freedom. But! Yes, a great big But! When Life Insurance has become the greatest reservoir into which the people put their savings increasingly, speculation will become relatively less and we shall finally have adopted, almost imperceptibly, a new economic program.

This will be founded on co-operation, brains and fidelity. That's a pretty good description of the elements that have made our Life Companies great—co-operation, brains, fidelity and, I add, hard work.

The Loudspeaker

—By LOUIS REID—

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—It is hard to believe that the shahs of the studios, after a brief audience with Charlie Chaplin, have re-strapped their wallets. But such is the case, my mourners.

Not even an offer of 650,000 honest-to-Mellon smackers succeeded in winning a "yes" from Chariot. It was probably more like an "oh, yeah?" Had Chaplin accepted he could own the distinction of being the highest paid artist in the history of broadcasting, counting—with a snap of the fingers at Lauder—$25,000 a broadcast, for a period of 26 broadcasts.

When bigger and better figures are made, the broadcasters will make them, but only when they are looking directly at the foremost entertainer in the world. Chaplin, holding to his policy of silence in this era of the microphone, will positively not be a conquest of radio. And so Sir Harry Lauder and Jascha Heifetz still remain at the top of the broadcasting heap as the collectors of the largest fees—$15,000 a program—in radio.

It is just too bad. This department recently sent up a rocket for Chaplin. We urged that the broadcasters sign him to their dotted lines—and the sooner the better—and thereby provide some new and unusual entertainment to the divans. They made a grand and glorious gesture. The gesture was properly publicized and entombed in radio's archives.

Regarding our plea, George D. MacDonald, of Jersey City, writes:

"I am heartily in accord with your suggestion that the personality of Charlie Chaplin would bring to radio a new and unusual appeal. I am prompted, however, to question the accuracy of your statement that he has not yet been led to the microphone, as I have a distinct recollection of having heard him back in 1928, and the thought of his amusing anecdotes still brings a smile to my lips.

"If I am not in error, it was upon the same occasion as when Norma Talmadge, Dolores Del Rio and Douglas Fairbanks were heard and upon which John Barrymore gave his 'Hamlet' Soliloquy. Chaplin's accent was that of the cultured English gentleman."

The correspondent is correct. Chaplin was heard on the occasion stated.

"Music publishers are currently involved in the greatest paradox of all time. In one breath they wail that the radio is killing music sales, and in another they tearfully plead with a radio orchestra to give them a 'plug.'

"There's evidently no happy medium. Trying to restrict public performance of your tunes is out of the question. You don't dare incur the enmity of one leader by refusing to grant him permission to broadcast your song while, at the same time, you give the "okay" to his competitor."

A Clear Skin comes from Within

....before this

I was discouraged and uncertain about the future. I wanted strength and pep. I longed to have that skin glow which compels admiration. I took S.S.S. Now my skin is clear and I am well and strong, too.

TIME is precious when your health is slipping away from you!

Failure to take notice of Nature's distress signals inevitably leads to more serious trouble. Pimples, boils, that tired feeling, loss of appetite, loss of weight, paleness and perhaps nervousness, are but symptoms due to diminishing red-blood-cells.

S.S.S. should be your safeguard. Millions of people have found this the easiest and surest way to keep themselves "fit." S.S.S. will help Nature build up and enrich your blood. Your skin will clear up. Your whole body will be strengthened, invigorated!

If your vitality and clear skin are slipping away from you try S.S.S. Its successful record of over 100 years in building red-cells in the blood is a guarantee of satisfaction. Get the large size bottle. At all drug stores.

Kotex stays soft

because it absorbs away from the surface

KOTEX is soft not only at first but all during use. You see, it absorbs laterally, away from the surface, leaving the protective area dry and comfortable.

It can be worn with equal safety, equal protection on either side. It is adjustable. Layers can be removed as your needs change.

Gowns fit smoothly when Kotex is your sanitary protection. Corners are rounded and tapered so that Kotex fits securely.

It deodorizes. There are so many ways in which this sanitary pad is superior. Hospitals have found this out. They specify Kotex . . . buy millions of pads a year. What greater assurance could you ask of hygienic safety?

Remember, too, that Kotex is disposable. That fact has turned millions of women to this modern sanitary protection.

BEWARE THE COUGH FROM COLDS THAT HANG ON

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist.

LAWYERS HELD AIDES TO CRIME

CHICAGO, Feb. 19. (AP)—Lawyers who overstep the bounds of professional ethics in defending desperate criminals are one of the greatest causes for crime, William Southern, editor of the Independence, Mo., Examiner told the Inland Daily Press Association. He said:

"Lawyers must eliminate from their profession the criminals who are retained in advance by thugs and hoodlums and are actually their partners in crime. I believe this partnership constitutes the largest individual cause for crime, together with the fact that judges are chosen from a bar containing lawyers of such stripe."

COOPER URGED AS MAIL CHIEF

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19. (AP)—Appointment of Kenneth Cooper as postmaster of New Kensington, Pa., was recommended by Representative Wyant, of Greensburg, Pa., to the Postoffice Department.

Disturbed Sleep
Relieve the Irritation With Buchu Leaves.

Mrs. Anna L. Denson, 214 Wykes St., Alpington, Pa., says: "For 9 years I suffered agony with my bladder. Was told the only hope for a cure was an operation. Dreaded to see night come, as I was disturbed many nights every 15 minutes. After taking Lithiated Buchu (Keller Formula), a few days, I had much relief. I am now almost cured. Sleep all night without being disturbed. I have gained 18 pounds. I am always glad to tell or write my full experience." The tablets contain lithia, buchu leaves, juniper, etc. It acts on the bladder as epsom salts does on the bowels. Drives out fire sign deposits and lessens excessive acidity. This relieves the irritation that causes getting up nights. The tablets cost 2c each at all drug stores. Keller Laboratory, Mechanicsburg, Ohio, or locally at May Drug Co.

SUNSHINE MELLOWS
Heat Purifies

The advice of your physician is: Keep out of doors, in the open air, breathe deeply; take plenty of exercise in the mellow sunshine, and have a periodic check-up on the health of your body.

LUCKIES are always kind to your throat

Everyone knows that sunshine mellows—that's why the "TOASTING" process includes the use of the Ultra Violet Rays. LUCKY STRIKE—made of the finest tobaccos—the Cream of the Crop—THEN—"IT'S TOASTED"—an extra, secret heating process. Harsh irritants present in all raw tobaccos are expelled by "TOASTING." These irritants are sold to others. They are not present in your LUCKY STRIKE. No wonder LUCKIES are always kind to your throat.

ALIEN DOPE BILL BECOMES LAW

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—(Universal)—A bill to provide for the deportation of aliens convicted of any violation of the anti-narcotic laws has been signed by President Hoover and has become a law.

The bill is one of the most drastic of many statutes to curb the drug evil in the United States. It requires that immediately upon conviction an alien may be sent out of the United States and that there is no appeal from the decision. It was signed by the President yesterday after it was sent to his desk by Congress.

The bill is designed to expedite the deportation of aliens convicted of either selling or conspiring to sell narcotic drugs in violation of the laws of this country. Its scope is broad enough to embrace all from heads of the big dope rings to the dark alley peddlers. It slashes red tape that heretofore has made it difficult to rid the country of these alien violators.

CLUBS INVITED TO FOOD SHOW

Women's clubs and church societies have been given an invitation to attend the food show at Motor Square Garden as the guests of the Grocers' Association, sponsor of the show. The show opened Monday night and will continue until February 28.

PROBE FLIGHT OF BARRISTER

CHICAGO, Feb. 19.—(AP.)—Attorney Jay Fred Reeve, representing Dr. John Streeter Sidley, of Racine, Wis., was under orders of a master in chancery today to investigate the precipitate departure from this country to Canada of W. Perkins Bull, K. C., wealthy Canadian barrister.

The order was given yesterday by Master in Chancery James P. Harrold, before whom Bull was to have appeared yesterday in connection with a suit brought by Dr. Streeter to enjoin Bull from employing detectives to shadow him. Bull, however, was injured in a motor car accident near Coldwater, Mich., last Tuesday. Yesterday he was removed to a hospital at Windsor, Canada. The hearing was postponed until Friday.

Mrs. Sidley is suing Dr. Sidley for divorce and Bull has been acting as her attorney. Should it develop that he fled to evade action of a court here, contempt proceedings might be brought against him, it was said at Harrold's office. It was doubtful, however, it was added, whether he could be extradited.

16 Believed Lost As Steamer Sinks

SAINT JUST, Cornwell, England, Feb. 19.—(AP.)—Sixteen members of the crew of the Grecian steamer Theokotos were believed lost today when the steamer sank 45 miles northwest of Land's End after a collision with an unnamed boat. Thirteen of the crew landed at Cape Cornwall in their own boat early today, but a second boat containing the 16 men, including the captain, did not show up. The Theokotis left Cardiff, Wales, yesterday for Salamis.

To Relieve Catarrhal Deafness and Head Noises.

Persons suffering from catarrhal deafness and head noises will be glad to know that this distressing affliction can usually be successfully treated at home by an internal medicine that in many instances has effected complete relief after other treatments have failed. Sufferers who could scarcely hear have had their hearing restored to such an extent that the tick of a watch was plainly audible seven or eight inches away from either ear. Therefore if you know of someone who is troubled with head noises or catarrhal deafness, cut out this paragraph and hand it to them, and you may have been the means of saving some poor sufferer, perhaps from total deafness. The medicine can be prepared at home and is made as follows:

Secure from all May-Liggett's drug stores or your druggist a 1-oz. bottle of Parmint (Double-Strength). Take this home, and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and a little sugar, stir until dissolved. Take one tablespoonful four times a day.

Parmint is used in this way not only to reduce by tonic action the inflammation and swelling in the Eustachian Tubes and thus to equalize the air pressure on the drum, but to correct any excess of secretions in the middle ear and the results it gives are nearly always quick and effective.

Every person who has catarrh should give this prescription a trial.

SOCIAL GROUPS HEAR JURIST

The public school system has a great part to play in rehabilitating juvenile delinquents, Judge Charles W. Hoffman of the Cincinnati Juvenile Court said yesterday in addressing the Federation of Social Agencies at a meeting in William Penn Hotel. All behavior problems spring from the attitude of the preschool child whose early training shows up later in life, the jurist said.

The speaker said he was in favor of the Harris bill now in the State Legislature which would raise the age limit for juvenile court jurisdiction in Allegheny County from 16 to 18 and thus keep many youthful offenders out of jail. Judge Hoffman has been on the Juvenile Court bench for 15 years. He was introduced by Marcus W. Acheson, Jr., president of the Federation. A number of county officials including Judges of the Common Pleas and Juvenile Court were present.

Athletic Directors At Harvard Club

W. Don Harrison, athletic director of the University of Pittsburgh, and Dr. J. B. Sutherland, head football coach, were speakers at the mid-winter dinner of the Harvard Club of Pittsburgh at the H. Y. P. Club. Other speakers were C. Hunter, athletic director of the University of California, and Eskie Clark, assistant athletic director at Harvard University. Edward Lee, president of the Harvard Club, acted as toastmaster.

Michigan Drys Form Informer Brigade

DETROIT, Feb. 19.—(AP)—A statewide organization of self-styled prohibition informers to report operations of liquor racketeers to police will be formed by the Michigan Anti-Saloon League, according to a statement by the Rev. R. N. Holsaple, head of the state body.

Holsaple declared that he planned the most complete city organization ever attempted in any state. Workers to report violations of the dry law, he said, follow through to see that the law is enforced and the racketeers cleaned out will be placed in every community, the Anti-Saloon League official asserted.

Film Star, Flying Horse, Reach U. S.

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—(AP)—Betty Rand and "Phantom," her all-traveled horse, arrived from Europe on the Olympic. The horse made a flight from Paris to London and back recently. Mrs. Rand and the horse have appeared in many films, including two films made during the trip abroad.

Corry War Veteran Dies in Florida

CLEARWATER, Fla., Feb. 19.—(AP)—Rasselas W. Brown II, 42, of Corry, Pa., died of a heart attack at his winter home in Dunedin, near here. He was a major in the American Army during the World war and represented the American Legion last year in placing a wreath on the grave of France's Unknown Soldier.

CARS HERE KILL 8 IN JANUARY

Five adults and three children were fatally injured in traffic accidents in the city streets during January, the report of Coroner W. J. McGregor reveals. The report was analyzed for members of the Better Traffic Committee by City Traffic Engineer Lewis W. McIntire.

The three children and one of the adults were "jay-walking," the report states. Six of the fatalities occurred to men and boys and two to women. During January of last year, 16 adults were killed in accidents.

free wheeling

When the two finest cars in America pay Studebaker a magnificent compliment, Studebaker knows how to acknowledge it!

Never, in all the 79 years of its pioneering, has any former Studebaker achievement received such swift and distinguished recognition!

Pierce-Arrow and Lincoln had no competitive scruples about following Studebaker . . . each paid the new dynasty of dynamics the tribute of adoption, and wrote into the constitution of their cars the epochal principles of Free Wheeling—intact and unmodified.

If you can afford the luxury of a Pierce-Arrow, buy one; if you can afford the luxury of a Lincoln, buy one; but if you can't afford either, remember that the most momentous thing in both of them is within your reach in the three great Studebaker Eights or the brilliant new Studebaker Six.

Simply keep in mind that a Free Wheeling Studebaker, however low in price, is the Free Wheeling equal of the two finest American automobiles that money will buy! You may choose among them as to price, but there is nothing to choose among them as to Free Wheeling performance . . . all share equally in the benefit of momentum.

Free Wheeling with positive gear control rests your engine one mile in every five . . . cuts down the cost of gasoline, oil and tires . . . and minimizes strain and wear on engine and chassis.

With Free Wheeling, there's no need to touch the clutch in shifting from high to second or second to high. Anytime and anywhere you feel like it, you can take your foot off the accelerator and let your car idle along on its own momentum! . . . with the full braking power of your engine always instantly available at any speed.

Highway commissioners and safety directors throughout the country have driven Free Wheeling Studebakers and then voiced approval of Free Wheeling with positive gear control as a new measure of safety both to driver and public.

Studebaker, Pierce-Arrow, and Lincoln . . . all Free Wheeling . . . all recommended . . . which shall it be?

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

'Blue Bird' Opening Today

Ever so many society folks are going to create two notable events today, and hundreds of times as many will watch them.

These two resplendent events are the premiere of the Pittsburgh Junior League this afternoon at the Nixon in the "Blue Bird," and tonight the Stage and Play Society, assisted by a group of Sewickley Cot Club players, in a program of three one-act plays.

The "Blue Bird" will be repeated tomorrow afternoon and Saturday morning at the Nixon with many school children as guests through the kindness of a brilliant list of patronesses.

Miss Helenka Adamowska, of Boston and New York, director of the Children's Theater of the National Junior League, arrived in town this morning to attend the premiere of the "Blue Bird."

She's the house guest of the Joseph M. Scribners, who will give a dinner in her honor this evening in the Pittsburgh Golf Club. Tomorrow Helen Leovy, president of the Pittsburgh League, will give a luncheon in her home in honor of Miss Adamowska.

I've already mentioned a list of patronesses for the Aero Club ball tomorrow night in the William Penn Hotel ballroom, and today I know of some additional names.

Aero Club Patrons

Mrs. Jennie Nixon, of Butler and Mrs. Cecil C. Northrup, of Washington, Pa., are patronesses from nearby towns. Pittsburgh women giving their patronage are Mrs. O. G. Richter, Mrs. Raymond A. Tucker, Mrs. Raymond M. Marlier, Mrs. W. J. Austin, Mrs. George T. Ladd, Mrs. H. Frank McCaffrey, Mrs. H. N. VanVoorhis, Mrs. George E. Tener, Mrs. H. B. Rust, Mrs. Clifford Ball, Miss Catherine Rogers, Mrs. H. V. Thaden, Miss Ethel Anderson, Mrs. Louis T. Barry, Mrs. H. R. Bazley, Mrs. H. S. Nicholson, Mrs. Lawrence Allderdice, Miss Kay Janner, Miss Nancy Daughtery and Mrs. Charles L. Snow.

The William L. Mellons have set sail in their yacht, The Vagabondia, for a fishing trip in the waters of Porto Rico, the Galapagos Islands and Central America. Their guests include the Matthew Taylors, the William Wightman Blairs and the Thomas Howe Childses of Pittsburgh.

Yachting Parties

The William Bacon Schillers and Mrs. Frederic C. Schiller, of Forbes street, with the Hobart Porters, of New York, are cruising in the yacht Cypress, from Miami to Nassau and the West Indies. At Martinique the party will be joined by the Morgan Burdette Schillers, of Sewickley Heights, and the Donald C. Bakewells, of Boundary street, Sewickley. The Bakewells leave Tuesday for New York to sail for the French West Indies. Later the party will cruise for a month off Central and South America.

Additional patronesses for the College Club theater party Monday night, March 2, at the Alvin, are Mrs. Burt T. Anderson, Mrs. Frank R. Bailey, Mrs. Lamont Button, Mrs. Richard V. Nuttall, a boxholder; Mrs. Charles Greer, Miss Ida M. Allerton, Judge Sara M. Soffel, Mrs. Enoch Rauh, Mrs. George J. Willock, Mrs. Frank R. Frost, Mrs. A. W. McEldowney, Mrs. J. Hartley Anderson, Mrs. Howard B. Smith, Mrs. John D. Evans, Mrs. C. W. Jennings, Miss Helen Booth, Mrs. Henry O. Evans, Mrs. J. E. Roth and Mrs. Howard Zacharias.

Miss Beatrice Tolochko, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Henry Tolochko, of the New Wendover Apartments, has chosen Sunday as the day for her marriage to Mitchell Blistein, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Blistein, of Stanton avenue. The ceremony will take place in the Beth Shalom Synagogue at 2:30 o'clock. The Rev. and Mrs. Tolochko also announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Belle June Tolochko, to Raymond Huntley, of London, England, which took place on January 9 in New York.

Daughters Marry

Mr. and Mrs. Edward T. Whiter, of the Bellefield Dwellings, left last night for Daytona Beach, Fla., where they will remain several weeks.

Miss Lois McKibben is chairman of the Lambda Pi Mu tea dance at the Pennsylvania College for Women the afternoon of March 7. Assisting her are Miss Margaret Marsh, Miss Helen McCracken, Miss Edith Rial and Miss Vartanouch Parounakian.

At 11 o'clock this morning, Mrs. Charles F. Marble, of Worcester, Mass., lectured the students on "What Did Our Grandmothers Read."

The Ladies' Lamont Lodge, No. 134, Daughters of Scotia, will hold a card party in Tonet Hall, Collins avenue, on Thursday evening, March 3, at 9 o'clock. Euchre and "500" will be played. Mrs. W. W. Grant is chairman of the affair.

Women Will Participate In Carnival

Many of the prominent Jewish women's organizations of the city will participate in the Purim carnival to be held Saturday evening, March 7, at the Y. M. and W. H. A. Among the 17 organizations which will have booths illustrating their respective activities are Pittsburgh Section, National Council of Jewish Women, Pittsburgh Chapter of Hadassah, Ladies' Hospital Aid Society, Montefiore Aid Society, Junior Hadassah, Pittsburgh Section, National Council of Jewish Juniors, and the sisterhoods of several congregations.

Many original displays are promised in competition for the two prizes offered. The booths committee includes Mrs. Maurice Davis, Mr. J. R. Silberstein, Mrs. M. Lester Aaron and Mrs. Jerome Markstein. One of the awards is a popularity prize. The second will be given by the judges, among whom will be Dr. Ludwig Bernstein, Harry Applestein and Miss Hannah Olbum.

Other features of the affair will be a Purim water carnival in the pool, swimming and diving exhibitions, games and dancing.

Miss Ella Ruth Boyce, supervisor of kindergartens in the city schools, will be heard by the Lincoln School Kindergarten Mothers' Club at its meeting in the school tomorrow afternoon. Miss Boyce will speak on "Modern Ideas in Elementary Education."

Talks to Mothers

The new kindergarten rug for story hours will be presented to the school and plans will be discussed for the spring sessions. These include a lecture by Dr. Florence M. Teagarden and a pageant by the kindergartners.

GRAY PREDICTED POPULAR COLOR FOR ENSEMBLES

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Feb. 19. — Gray clouds are forming in the sartorial heaven, much to the joy of the woman who is addicted to this lovely hue. Gray has not been so very popular for some seasons now and its wear has been restricted to those women who feel that they cannot be happy without a gray outfit in their wardrobe. But this year it looks as though we shall see many lovely gray ensembles and we mean ensembles in the proper sense of the word. For gray is a color that one can wear from head to foot, a distinction that it shares with beige.

OF COURSE BLACK and white are often so worn, but nothing has the ethereal charm of an all-gray outfit whether it be of the tailored suit variety or an afternoon regalia, filmy and diaphanous. Then, too, gray will be much seen combined with blue. For these two colors are not so very far removed, and so where one finds one the other generally manages to make its mark.

THE ENSEMBLE shown to the right of the sketch cleverly combines blue with gray. The material is dark blue woolen with gray flecks. It is a light weight material. The neckline of the dress is bordered with set-in pieces of gray crepe de chine. There is a matching gray suede belt. The coat has a wide collar edged with ermine dyed a light gray and there are also cuffs of the fur. A slightly fitted line will be noted on the coat, which is not quite full length. It is by Worth.

GRASS GREEN silk poplin for the dress and matching green woolen for the coat are the two ingredients in the recipe for the very smart Worth ensemble at the left of the drawing. Frosted brown astrakan trims the coat, which is fitted slightly at the waistline, and has circular godets set in at each side, rather low down. The dress has short sleeves ending just above the elbow, while the coat sleeves are importantly wide with a narrow wrist line.

CLUB NOTES

Miss Helen Donnelly, who is to be a guest of honor at the meeting of the department of literature at the Congress of Clubs on Friday, will introduce Alice Ann Baker, Pitt stock company player, as the guest speaker of the day. Mrs. George H. Heintzech will give a one-act play. Mrs. W. C. Samson will entertain with a humorous monologue and the reviewers for this program are Mrs. T. H. Stahlman, Miss Lillian Jordan, Miss Marian Cooley and Mrs. Charles Reisfar.

Program On Drama

Mrs. Thomas P. Fleeson, of Graham street, will be hostess this evening at the Frances Willard social which Foster Women's Christian Temperance Union has planned. The Rev. Dr. J. W. Claudy will speak and the program will include music and readings.

Mrs. Fleeson.

Dr. William T. Root, head of the department of psychology, University of Pittsburgh; Robert L. Vann, editor of the Pittsburgh Courier, and the Rev. Dr. John Ray Ewers, of the East End Christian Church, have accepted invitations to serve on the council of the Allegheny County Birth Control League.

The first North Side group meeting of the league will be held Friday afternoon in Mrs. Joseph Gold's home, Perrysville avenue.

The next regular meeting of the Fortnightly Review of Mt. Lebanon will be a musical review entitled "I'll Tell the World," given on March 4 by a cast of five members in Mrs. Adolph Krebs' home. Tonight the club will have its annual dinner for the club husbands at the Congress of Clubs and will be addressed by the Rev. Dr. Carl Wallace Petty.

Yesterday's program was on "The Father of Democracy" and included papers by Mrs. W. C. Allen, Mrs. W. E. McKnight, Mrs. I. G. Amsler and Mrs. J. S. Huey. Mrs. Charles Porter, of Peermont avenue, was hostess.

The Woman's City Club has postponed until a later date the "club evening" scheduled for tomorrow and the library luncheon scheduled for Saturday.

The senior section of the literary department, Woman's Club of Mt. Lebanon, will meet tomorrow in the home of Mrs. W. H. Walters, Roselawn avenue.

EDUCATORS AT CHILD PARLEY

Dr. John G. Bowman, chancellor of the University of Pittsburgh, is in Washington attending the White House conference on child health and protection today, tomorrow and Saturday.

Dr. F. C. Friesell, of the university dental school; J. Steele Gow, former executive secretary of the university and now a director of the Falk Foundation, and Dr. A. C. Young, president of the Pennsylvania State Dental Society, also are attending the conference.

Elizabeth Bowen, Writer, Dies at 77

ALLENTOWN, Pa., Feb. 19.—(AP.)—Miss Elizabeth Weaver Bowen, author of several novels and one of the first women to advocate higher education for her sex, is dead at her home here.

Miss Bowen, who was 77, was a member of one of the most prominent families in this section. Her father, Eli Bowen, was a former president of the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad and later, for several years after 1852, was editor of the New York Times.

Now Whiten Teeth

3 shades in 3 days

Nobody likes to look at a Bacterial-Mouth

TO HAVE dazzling white teeth—free from stain, tartar and decay—you must guard against a condition that is embarrassing to its victim and offensive to others—Bacterial-Mouth. It is caused by germs that sweep into the mouth with every breath. You have it. We all have it. And no ordinary preparation can cope with it.

But Kolynos quickly removes Bacterial-Mouth by killing the germs that cause it. In 15 seconds this antiseptic dental cream kills 190 million bacteria!

Use the Kolynos Dry-Brush Technique for 3 days—a half-inch of Kolynos on a dry brush, morning and night. Then look at your teeth—fully 3 shades whiter!

In 15 days the improvement will be so marked you will never again say that sparkling teeth are a gift received only by a fortunate few.

Dentists have long advocated the Dry-Brush Technique as the one way to use a dental cream full strength and keep brush bristles stiff enough to clean every tooth surface and massage gums properly. Only Kolynos permits this approved technique.

This highly concentrated, double-strength dental cream is unique in action. A half-inch is equal in effectiveness to 12 inches of the ordinary toothpaste for it multiplies 25 times when it enters the mouth. It becomes a surging, antiseptic FOAM that eliminates wetting the brush. You can feel Kolynos work. It foams into every pit, fissure and crevice.

Germs that cause Bacterial-Mouth and lead to stain, decay and gum diseases are instantly killed. They vanish completely and the entire mouth is purified.

This amazing Kolynos FOAM removes food particles that ferment and cause decay—neutralizes acids—washes away ugly, yellow tartar and the unsightly mucoid coating that clouds teeth.

Easily and quickly, it cleans and polishes teeth down to the naked white enamel—without injury. And for 3 hours after each brushing this cleansing, purifying process continues.

So long as you use the Kolynos Dry-Brush Technique teeth will remain gleaming white and sound, and gums will be healthy.

Look for Results in 3 Days

If you want whiter, sounder teeth and firm, pink gums, start using Kolynos—a half-inch on a dry brush, morning and night. Within 3 days teeth will look whiter—fully 3 shades. Gums will look and feel better. Your mouth will tingle with a clean, sweet taste. Buy a tube of Kolynos.

My Children Had Frequent Colds—Ailing All The Time

Now The Picture of Health and Strength

For over 75 years Father John's Medicine has been helping raise happy, husky children. Countless mothers have seen pale, listless children gain in weight and strength, cheeks glow with color, hollows fill out, bones become strong, muscles hard, and colds few and far between.

Living Proof of its Value

Mrs. A. Hildebrand of 106 Greendale Street, Methuen, Massachusetts, says: "I am greatly pleased to let you know how wonderful Father John's Medicine has been for us. My two children offer a living proof of its value. Before using it they were ailing most of the time and had frequent colds. Now I give it to them constantly and they are strong and in the best of health."

The remarkable results which Mrs. Hildebrand and generations of other mothers throughout the country have secured with Father John's Medicine are not the result of accident. This time-tried aid is a scientific combination of proved body builders.

Used by 184 Hospitals and Institutions

Father John's Medicine contains just the right amount of cod liver oil in the right form to do the most good. It supplies in easily assimilated form the body-building, strength-building vitamins so necessary to growing children. It is guaranteed free from alcohol or dangerous drugs.

Give it to your child at the first sign of a cough or cold. It forms a soothing, protective film over inflamed, congested membranes and helps to break a cold right up. Give it regularly, and notice how colds and sick spells become few and far between. Just ask your druggist.

Latest Fad Calls For 'Gems' Big As Golf Balls

LONDON, Feb. 19. (INS.)—Take a dozen golf balls strung on a stout silk thread, visualize them encased in glass, and you have an idea of the latest necklaces worn by the fashionable ladies of London.

This is the glass age in synthetic jewelry, and it succeeds bone and wood ages when necklaces were made in weird and barbaric designs.

The beads designed to go with long skirts are as large as the fashion enthusiasts dare make them. Some of the wearers complain that the weight around the throat is exhausting.

FOUND GUILTY IN MAIL FRAUD

L. J. Driggs, 50, of Altoona, was convicted in Federal Court today of using the mails to defraud with a scheme whereby he collected money on fictitious deaths.

Driggs, as president of the Progressive American League Benefit Fund in Johnstown, would notify the members to contribute $1.10 each towards a fund for a "late member" who never existed, according to United States Assistant Attorney James I. Marsh.

In two cases he used the names of out-of-town members who not only existed, but had no thoughts of dying, Marsh said.

Judge F. P. Schoonmaker will sentence the defendant next week.

WITNESS TELLS OF EXTORTION PLOT

Accuses Two Constables and Brentwood Justice on Trial for Conspiracy

That a justice of the peace and two constables conspired to extort money from him, was testified in Criminal Court today by Anton Pollak, who took the stand in the trial against Justice Thomas R. Gracie, of 2815 Brownsville road, Brentwood, and former constable George Hilpert, of East Willock road, and Joseph Oliver, of 1001 Theona street, Carrick. The three are charged with extortion and conspiracy to defraud.

Pollak testified he had been arrested by Hilpert and Oliver when they searched his house April 30, 1929, at Glass Run road, Baldwin Township, and found a half-pint of liquor. He said they took him to Gracie's office where he was held over on $500 bail for a hearing the following night, and that at the hearing, there was a whispered conversation between Gracie and Hilpert.

Pollak said:

"Gracie took out the $500, which a friend had posted as bail, and told me to take a walk with Hilpert. When we were outside Hilpert suggested I borrow $100 from the bail money. I answered I would have to see my friend. Gracie permitted me to go home and the next evening when I returned he suggested that I should take a walk with Constable Oliver."

Pollak said Oliver asked what the squire had told him, and that he replied:

"The squire told me to give you $100. I did so. I guess Oliver gave Gracie the money. Anyway he said the case was fixed and I could go home."

DENIES ASKING $1,000

Pollak said Oliver's wife came to him three times after he had made information against him and begged him to take back the money. He denied he had offered to withdraw the charges if they would give him $1,000.

Oliver, who was located, turned state's evidence yesterday and gave such unexpected testimony that the jury of six women and six men were locked up for the night, as is the practice with murder juries. Oliver was indicted with Gracie and Hilpert, under the name of John Doe. County detectives had sought him since last fall. The trial had been postponed in September, and again in October, by District Attorney Andrew T. Park, in hope Oliver would be located.

Rites for Rome Cool To Be Held Saturday

Funeral services for Rome Cool, 92, father of L. B. Cool, managing director of the Fulton Theater, who died at the Akron Hospital last night, will be held from the home of his brother, L. T. Cool, postmaster of Canton, O., Saturday afternoon. He was a life-long resident of Pittsburgh. For years he was identified with the George A. Kelly Company. His last residence here had been at Ingram, where he had conducted a drug store. Besides his brother and his son, he leaves one granddaughter, Jane, of 224 Castle boulevard, Akron.

CANAL 'SHAM' BATTLE TODAY

COLON, Feb. 19.—(INS)—A crucial battle was imminent today between opposing forces in the annual United States naval maneuvers in Panama waters here, whose air scouts contacted yesterday.

The scouting air squadron of the defensive "blue" fleet encountered the invading "black" fleet planes high above the clouds of the Pacific and engaged in a protracted air battle.

The outcome was not announced, but it was believed that the defenders were bested. This was indicated by the subsequent mobilization of Canal Zone land artillery to beat back the attacking force.

Originally the Army was not scheduled to take part in the war problem, but yesterday the combined coast artillery garrisons on both the Atlantic and Pacific side were concentrated on the fortified islands guarding the Pacific entrance to the "big ditch."

Don't Trifle With a Cold

Break It Up In a Jiffy With Something You KNOW Does the Job

Take two tablets now.

Better almost before you know it.

THE thing to do with a cold is to break it up in a hurry—with something you know does the job; not to trifle with a lot of trick ideas and remedies. Colds are too dangerous to experiment with.

Get a box of Hill's Cascara Quinine at any drug store. Take two tablets now. Then follow directions on box. Drink lots of water, too—that's all.

Soon that miserable, aching feeling begins to go. The cold breaks up. The poisons are moved from your system. The world looks like an altogether different place.

Those results come because Hill's goes back to first principles by going to the seat of the trouble. It's not a newfangled fancy idea but a tried and proved way that's made to do ONE THING WELL; to knock a cold in a jiffy.

Hill's costs only a few cents. Use it for quick relief after everything else you've tried has failed.

CITY MOVES TO DROP GARBAGE SUIT

SIDEWALKS of PITTSBURGH

By William Pfarr

Mr. Pfarr

Marshall Brown, the retired Judge of Allegheny's Common Pleas Court, has written and had published his reminiscences, which he calls "Wit and Humor of Bench and Bar." Out of his rich memory he recalls countless incidents of the bench. Several pages he devotes to one of Pittsburgh's most famous citizens, the late Senator Philander Chase Knox.

Judge Brown remembers when Knox, already famous, was offered a place on the United States Supreme Court bench by President Roosevelt.

A few days later Knox called at the luxurious offices of a business friend. A janitor was busy dusting a mahogany bench of generous proportions.

"Is Mr. ——— in?" Mr. Knox asked.

"No," replied the janitor," but he'll be here in a couple of hours if you wanna take a seat on that bench."

"No, thank you," Knox returned politely. "And that's the second time in a week I've declined a long term on the bench."

Any time the readers of Sidewalks need help they are advised to call the Freedom fire department or Vincent Fash. Mr. Fash himself makes the offer in a note advising us that the problems in higher arithmetic printed here were solved by the mathematicians of the Freedom Firemen's Home—all except the one about the grindstone.

"And," adds Mr. Fash, "we'll solve that one if we have to buy a grindstone."

A Mt. Lebanon customer has an idea for the Town Hall which should be given serious consideration. To end the bickering he suggests building the hall on barges.

"The structure could be moved up and down the rivers and be made accessible to everybody. Further, when people entered the hall for special goings-on they would, for the one price, get a boat ride. Then, too, you wouldn't have to spend all that money for land. We could build a brewery with that, and give everybody free beer."

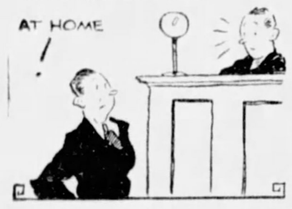
Tom Jones, the Morals Court magistrate, has had enough of his little jokes with prisoners. When he wanted to find out the address of a prisoner arraigned before him, the magistrate asked:



"Where's your wigwam?"

"She," replied the prisoner, "is at home."

Then there's the reporter who was sent to France as a war correspondent by a Pittsburgh paper, and hasn't been heard from yet.

Thirty-seven years ago John S. McIntosh, of Edgewood, went moose-hunting at La Valle Lake, 400 miles north of Toronto. Among the guides was an 18-year-old Canadian. A picture of that hunting party was published in the Sun-Telegraph rotogravure section a few Sundays ago and that guide, still at La Valle Lake, saw it. He wrote Mr. McIntosh, whom he hadn't seen since 1893, a letter. Mr. McIntosh was glad to hear that the guide had married and was now the father of 12 children.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Say, we lost a fine fellow out here, Louis Wolheim, the great actor. He was so ugly and tough you loved him on the screen, and when you knew him he was actually beautiful, and you loved him for his character. The Senate is due to vote on the bonus bill. Mellon is supposed to be such a good treasurer that the Senate is saying, "If you are such a good treasurer, you ought to have a billion and a half. Foch Won at Last To Pershing Idea Of Yankee Army

MY EXPERIENCES IN THE WORLD WAR

By JOHN J. PERSHING

Commander-in-Chief, American Expeditionary Forces

Succeeding chapters of "My Experiences in the World War" will appear daily and Sunday exclusively in the Sun-Telegraph.

CHAPTER XXXIX.

The question of the shipment of American troops, and particularly their allotment to the Allied armies, had assumed very great importance in the minds of the Allied leaders.

Accordingly, a session of the Supreme War Council was called at Abbeville May 1, 1918, and Prime Minister Clemenceau opened the meeting by referring forthwith to the previous recommendation of the Council's military representatives as to the disposition of American troops.

Gen. Pershing

"The military representatives," he began, "expressed the opinion in their Joint Note No. 18 that only infantry and machine gun units should be sent to France for the present. Since then the agreement between Lord Milner and Gen. Pershing, signed at London April 24, 1918, has intervened. This agreement makes a change.

"It had been understood at Versailles that America would send 120,000 men per month, which the French and English armies would share equally. Under the Milner-Pershing agreement, it appears none go to France. The French have not been consulted. We might suppose that in compensation the American troops arriving in June would be given to France. But it now appears they are also to join the British. I wish to protest that this is not satisfactory.

"I am not discussing the figure of 120,000 men; I am prepared to accept that these men go to the British in May. I am asking to receive the same number of troops in June. There are close to 400,000 Americans in France at present, but only five divisions, or about 125,000 men, can be considered as combatants. That is not a satisfactory proportion."

Lord Milner Explains

Lord Milner arose, much incensed at M. Clemenceau's statement, which he considered quite unjust.

"M. Clemenceau has intimated," he asserted, "that there was something mysterious about the London agreement. I believe that an explanation is necessary. He appears to believe that the agreement we signed is a reversal of the Supreme War Council's decision. I know only of a joint note embodying the recommendations of the military representatives, but it is of no value without the approval of the governments.

"Besides, M. Clemenceau seems to be under the impression that half of the American troops were to go to France and the other half to England. I do not recollect any such decision. All that Gen. Pershing and I have urged is that infantry and machine gunners should be sent to France. We had no intention of depriving France of any American troops. I do not know that anything has been said regarding their allotment on arrival in France. We simply wanted to hasten their coming.'

"In making the agreement with Lord Milner," I interposed, "I had in mind bringing troops as rapidly as possible to meet the existing situation. Lord Milner is quite correct in stating that there was no agreement as to the allocation of American troops either to the British or French armies. There is no agreement between my government and anybody else that a single American soldier shall be sent to either the British or French.

"There is in existence an agreement between Mr. Lloyd George and myself that six divisions should be brought to France. Mr. Clemenceau will remember that I spoke to him about going to London to arrange for the shipment of American troops to France, and that he approved because it would expedite their arrival. I also spoke to Gen. Petain about it."

Stresses Unity

M. Clemenceau remembered my speaking of it, but disregarded his previous approval and continued his objections, saying:

"We have been informed that nothing had been decided on at Versailles, but something has been decided on at London, and France was closely concerned in this. It was decided that six divisions should go to the British. Well, I will not argue about that. You announce to us artillery for the month of June.

"Where four are in alliance, two of them can not act independently. Nothing has been provided for France in June.

"The appointment of Gen. Foch as commander-in-chief is not a mere decoration. This post involves grave responsibilities; he must meet the present situation; he must provide for the future.

"I accept what has been done for May, but I want to know what is intended for June."

M. Clemenceau said the French had not received certain specialists they had asked for, and also quoted from the conversation I had held with Gen. Foch with reference to sending over troops in May and June.

Mr. Lloyd George then said:

"I am of M. Clemenceau's

TWO WOMEN RESCUED BY FIREMEN

Wear Smoke Masks to Save New Kensington Burgess' Mother, Maid from Blaze

Trapped in her room by flames, Mrs. Susan Burns, 83, mother of Burgess Daniel Burns, of New Kensington, today was reported recovering after she and a maid, Miss Amy Keller, 35, were rescued from the burning home of the burgess at 275 Ridge avenue, New Kensington, last night.

Firemen were compelled to don smoke masks in order to make their way to the second floor room occupied by Mrs. Burns. Burgess Burns was in Harrisburg attending a convention of the League of Boroughs and Townships when the fire occurred.

The fire started in the cellar of the home, flames spreading to the second floor before being extinguished. The loss was estimated at $500 by Fire Chief Edward Clawson.

HOSPITAL PLAN UP IN COUNCIL

Request of the Department of Public Welfare for a hospital for infectious diseases at Mayview or some other suitable location, was being considered today by members of City Council.

Mrs. Enoch Rauh, director of the department, asked Council to consider erection of such a building as soon as possible, in a letter sent that body at a special meeting. There are more than 3,400 inmates at Mayview at present, Mrs. Rauh wrote, 700 more than the 2,700 that can be adequately provided for by the institution.

Between 60 and 100 infectious disease patients are housed at Mayview at the present time, according to Mrs. Rauh. Most of these, she says, are those sent from Morals Court and a few voluntary patients, both male and female.

No indication as to what the new hospital would cost, was given. Council is expected to make a report on the matter within a short time.

Fireman Burned Fighting Auto Blaze

PLAN 2 RAMPS AT POSTOFFICE

Opposition of the Better Traffic Committee to the left-hand ramp to lead from Seventh avenue into the proposed new postoffice and Federal Building, appeared today to have won recognition from Washington officials. Information received here indicated that there will be two entrance ramps.

Complete plans for the new building were made public in Washington late yesterday, it was said.

One of the ramps probably will lead into the basement, the other circling an upper floor. They will increase the estimated cost of the building about $250,000, bringing the total cost, as estimated at this time, to $6,775,000.

Man Hurt by Auto, Alleged Driver Held

Struck by an automobile at West Liberty and Illinois avenues, Dormont, Park Wiley, 36, of 1328 Illinois avenue, today was a patient in Mercy Hospital. Worth G. Kenny, 18, of 3318 Eastman avenue, Dormont, who, police said, was driver of the car, was at liberty under $1,000 bond. Wiley sustained internal injuries and a fractured leg, according to a police report.

LIQUOR SEIZED, WIDOW FINED

Springdale police today were seeking four men on warrants issued after the reported seizure of a still, moonshine whisky and wine in a double frame dwelling in Springdale. Mrs. Elizabeth Ando, 40, who occupied half of the house, was fined $100 by Justice of the Peace Edward F. Kapteina, of Springdale, last night.

Mrs. Ando was widowed by the 1929 explosion at the Kinloch mine. She was arrested, police said, when a part of the illicit liquor was discovered in her side of the house.

Wilkinsburg Needy Aided by Gas Firm

The Wilkinsburg Relief Association organized to aid the needy of the borough, has received a check for $1,000 from the Peoples Gas Company, according to Burgess William M. Turner, president of the association.

John B. Tonkin, vice president and general manager of the company, wrote the burgess that it was originally intended to use the money for an opening of the concern's new branch in Wilkinsburg, but officials later decided the sum should be devoted to relief purposes.

Man, Girl Injured As Auto Overturns

Harry Zimmerman, 21, of 7110 Schoyer avenue, Swissvale, and Betty Herman, 23, of 1246 Morrow avenue, Wilkinsburg, were removed to Columbia Hospital, Wilkinsburg, early today, after the car driven by Zimmerman overturned on William Penn highway, six miles east of Wilkinsburg. Zimmerman suffered a probable fractured skull, and his companion bruises and lacerations of the body, according to a hospital report.

TAXI MEN GIVE COMRADE BLOOD

Two taxicab drivers, friends of a fellow driver, Iwaldo Pinn, of 7438 Monticello street, gave blood in a transfusion at the Homeopathic Hospital yesterday, and today Pinn's condition was reported improved.

The men chosen for the transfusion, G. Albert and I. Abrams, were selected from 12 drivers who volunteered. The others were J. E. Ogden, M. L. Graham, William Iseman, Donald Beck, L. M. Turner H. G. Mockett, A. Hill, Will Wirl, L. G. Stairs and V. Roberts.

Pinn was injured in an automobile accident a week ago.

Railroad Building Car Inspection Pit

Construction of an illuminated sub-track inspection pit has been started by the Pennsylvania Railroad on the eastbound hump track at Pitcairn yards. The pit is the first of its kind in the Pittsburgh district and permits inspection of the running gear and bottoms of cars at slow speed over the hump. Work is in charge of W. W. Corman, master of carpenters, of the Pittsburgh Division.

P. R. R. Starts Work On Retaining Wall

Work has been started on a new retaining wall for the Pennsylvania Railroad concourse at Seventh avenue and Grant street. The front of the new postoffice projects into the present concourse, necessitating moving the tracks back seven feet toward the boulevard. This will change the grade of the driveway to the station.

SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT REACHED

Reduction Firm Agrees To Pay $481,338 in Full Satisfaction of Claims

Agreement having been reached for a $481,338.08 settlement of a $1,000,000 claim against the American Reduction Company by the city of Pittsburgh, Solicitor Charles A. Waldschmidt today was preparing a resolution for Council to quash court action in the case.

Settlement of the long-standing claim for money paid for garbage removal on a cost-plus charge between 1921 and 1928 was announced late yesterday, in a joint statement by Waldschmidt and City Controller James P. Kerr.

$300,000 IN CASH

Of the settlement, Kerr said, $300,000 will be paid the city in cash. In addition the reduction company is to discharge its claim for disposal of rubbish and garbage for December, 1928, pursuant to the contract for that year. This item totals $106,338.08. The remaining $75,000 will be paid on terms of an agreement to be made by Council at its meeting next week.

Proceedings against the company were instigated by Henry Oliver Evans, the City Controller, in 1929. They continued through the tenure of the late Controller Daniel Winters and passed on to Kerr.

ITEMS LISTED

Items Evans considered not properly charged to operating costs were:

Donations, $12,000, including cost of tickets to dinners for politicians, a box for baseball games at Forbes Field, a box for football games at the Pitt Stadium, tickets to police benefits and picnics, and Christmas cigars.

Advertising in programs and publications of numerous organizations, $11,000.

A radio set for an officer of the company, $135.

Initiation fee, dues and tax for the membership of William F. Hill, president of the company, in the Duquesne Club.

EVANS APPROVES

Informed of the city's agreement, Evans said:

"A good job has been done on the settlement. I think as I always have thought—that the case was one that must be settled on a fair basis—and the settlement seems to be a fair one. Waldschmidt made the deal and he did a wonderful piece of work on it."

The joint statement prepared by Waldschmidt and Kerr, explaining the agreement, reads:

"This settlement is in full of all differences between the American Reduction Company and the City of Pittsburgh for the years 1921 to 1928, inclusive, and in fact takes care of all differences of the city against the American Reduction Company.

"At the time of filing the bill, the claim for all items suggested by auditors was approximately $1,000,000, but in the various conferences some of these items had to be eliminated."

Immediately after the city entered suit, John Gillespie, of Detroit, purchased the American Reduction Company plant. The property was purchased from the Colonial Trust Company, executors of the estate of the late George H. Flinn.

Officer Took Seized Rum Home for Safe-Keeping

Constable Frank Mellon testifying as a government witness in Federal Court, said that he took confiscated liquor to his home for safe-keeping because he did not trust some people having keys to the Municipal Building in East McKeesport.

The testimony of the constable was heard in the trial of Sam Crown and Mrs. Ruth Malseed, found guilty of possessing and manufacturing moonshine liquor at a house on Madison avenue, East McKeesport, in May, 1929. A year later Constable Mellon turned the case over to prohibition authorities. The case was tried before Judge R. M. Gibson.

The constable said he seized 23 gallons of moonshine whisky, destroying all but five gallons, which he held as evidence, keeping the latter in the cellar of his home, until he turned it over to the prohibition authorities in April, 1930. Mrs. Malseed resided at the place raided, and Crown was connected with the case because of having receipts for corn, sugar and other goods delivered at the Madison avenue house, and also gas receipts.

JEWISH WELFARE WORKERS REPORT $158,876

THIRD OF GOAL REACHED IN DRIVE

Teams in High Spirits At Success of Campaign; Continues Until Feb. 25

More than one-third of the $450,000 fund sought by the Federation of Jewish Philanthropies has been raised. At a luncheon today it was reported that $83,603.15 had been added to the first report, making a grand total of $158,876 collected.

Oliver M. Kaufmann led the men's division with $18,852 with Mrs. Nathaniel Speer second with $12,054. The drive will continue until February 25.

At today's meeting the first reports of the county campaign, under Frank R. S. Kaplan, was given. The women workers are being aided greatly in their canvass by a motor committee providing transportation. The committee is in charge of Mrs. Joseph Barach.

Charles J. Rosenbloom, a vice chairman of the campaign, presided at the meeting today. A. M. Oppenheimer, general chairman, stated today that the workers are all in high spirits over the early success of the drive and he is confident the goal will be reached.

MOTHERS' FUND RALLY FRIDAY

Towns and cities throughout the state will observe Mothers' Assistance Day Friday in connection with the campaign for state appropriation of $4,115,938 to the assistance fund for the biennium 1931-33. Horace F. Baker, of Pittsburgh, is directing the campaign.

A luncheon will be held in the Fort Pitt Hotel Friday, under auspices of the Mothers' Pension League of Allegheny County and the Public Charities Association of Pennsylvania. State Senator Frank J. Harris, sponsor of the appropriation bill, will speak.

Other speakers will be the Rev. Dr. Carl August Voss, president of the County League; Mrs. Marcus Spiro, president of the local fund; Mr. Baker and Mrs. Helen Glenn Tyson, vice chairman of the Child Welfare Division of the Public Charities Association of Pennsylvania.

Real Estate

The Freehold Real Estate Company has sold for H. T. Rosemyer to the Standard Oil Company of Pennsylvania approximately two acres of ground, known as the Flaccus Glass Company property, for $25,000. Part of the property is in Tarentum Borough and part in Brackenridge Borough. The purchaser, according to the brokers, will erect a distribution plant on the property, which has both rail and river facilities. The plant will cost about $100,000.

The Union Real Estate Company, downtown brokers, represented by A. J. Aberman and Thomas S. Christo, have consummated an exchange deal between Simon Lebow, of Wheeling, W. Va., and Edward D. White, of Pittsburgh. Lebow conveyed to White his holdings in the Fourteenth Ward, consisting of a new three-story brick apartment building containing 16 suites of four rooms and tile bath each, at 5700 Munhall road. In part payment White deeded a duplex dwelling at 538 Madison avenue, Bellevue, and a two-story brick house in Corey street, near the new Ohio River boulevard. The total consideration, according to the brokers, was $154,000. The Union Real Estate Company has been appointed renting agent for the property acquired by Lebow.

F. Hughes Moyer has purchased the former George A. Howe residence, Parkman and Lytton avenue, Schenley Farms, from Mrs. May B. Kuhn, through the offices of O. R. Minnemeyer, downtown realtor. The lot has a frontage of 120 feet on Parkman avenue. The house is a large brick of 11 rooms with a center ha". The purchaser will occupy the property as a home.

A large stone house of English design has just been completed by Caste Brothers, builders, in Cedarhurst Manor, now residential park in Mt. Lebanon. Several more homes in the same development are now being planned for early spring.

A brick home on lot 25x56 feet, in Linden avenue, Fourteenth Ward, has been deeded to Theodore J. Fisher by Margaret M. Cosgrove for an $8,500 consideration.

A lot 30x120 feet in Braddock avenue, East Pittsburgh, has been sold by the East Pittsburgh Improvement Company to Elizabeth Bodnar for $3,000.

Eleventh Ward—M. Lux, frame dwelling, Ivyglen and Mullooly streets, $5,000.

COUNCIL HEARS ANNEXATION DISPUTE

Further Hearing Decided on After Reserve Township People Air Opposed Views

Petition of resident of Reserve Township for annexation to Pittsburgh was far from final action today, following a hearing before City Council yesterday.

Claims of the opposing factions were so muddled, councilmen said, that another hearing session will be held. The date will be set by City Clerk Robert Clark, dependent on approval of both groups.

Two petitions have been presented Council in the dispute over annexation of the township's 246 acres, one seeking the action, the other opposing it.

Several persons who signed the favorable petition were in Council yesterday and said that when the second and negative petition was presented them they signed it, thinking it was in line with the first.

T. D. Lecky, Twenty-sixth Ward chairman, headed the annexation advocates and addressed Council. Other speakers were Joseph Snyder, chairman of the township commissioners; C. B. Lauer, Saul Scheen and William Geyer.

PUBLIC — BEWARE!

Spurious Milk of Magnesia now flooding market

See That You Get the Genuine
PHILLIPS' MILK OF MAGNESIA
That Doctors Endorse

This is published to protect the public against a grave danger that threatens them in the form of bad and spurious "Milk of Magnesia" preparations.

The public is openly and publicly urged to accept only Phillips' Milk of Magnesia as the safe way to guard against possible evil results in the home. Both to children and to adults.

Demands that officials enforce "The Pure Food and Drug Laws" against spurious products are now being made.

Health Commissioners are being advised of this public danger in their communities so that immediate steps can be taken to stamp it out.

For the sake of yourself and those dear to you, watch out! See that you take only genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. The "Milk of Magnesia," leading doctors have prescribed for over 50 years.

Only this minute, just as this is being written, a report comes in of a mother unfortunate enough to have recently purchased a bottle of bad "Milk of Magnesia," which resulted in a distressing illness for both her child and herself—be careful!

Within 24 hours, scores of doctors, no doubt, will be warning their patients of this danger and urging them to be careful that they accept nothing but genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia.

The making of "Milk of Magnesia" is a very delicate and difficult process. Laboratory methods developed in the Phillips' Milk of Magnesia laboratories in Glenbrook, Connecticut, based on 50 years of experience, have never gone outside those laboratories.

The point to learn today and never to forget is that these secret laboratory methods are known only to Phillips' chemists and experts.

Many milk-white preparations claiming to be "Milk of Magnesia" bear no relation to real Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. Some are spurious, some are bad, some are a public menace. The label, "Milk of Magnesia," does not give certain protection. Bad and spurious products may be labeled with this name. The safe way is to demand genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia.

This warning is published in the public's interest—to protect the public's health. Watch out and take care. Don't continue to buy at stores which try to palm off other magnesia preparations for Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. Don't gamble your health on the ignorance or carelessness of others.

SAFETY
For You And Yours in This Bottle

Mothers are urged to purchase only genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. You can easily identify it by the package shown here . . . the blue package with the signature of Charles H. Phillips on the label.

You can assist other mothers by refusing to accept anything but genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. Do this in the interest of your own children and in the interest of public health.

BUILDING OF FLOOD WALLS URGED TO AID UNEMPLOYED

PROPOSAL MADE AT CONFERENCE OF LEADERS

Helping Hand Estimates 5,000 Here Available to Carry Out the Project

A suggestion that Pittsburgh's unemployed men be put to work building flood walls along the city's water front to provide increased parking space, was discussed at a meeting of the executive committee of the Helping Hand Hotel yesterday. Frank L. Duggan, general chairman of the Better Traffic Committee and a member of the executive committee of the Helping Hand, brought up the proposition.

Mr. Duggan states that each morning there are more than 2,000 men turned out of the hotel without any prospects of earning money. He estimates there are 3,000 other men cared for by other relief organizations. He suggests the 5,000 men be put to work in four-hour shifts. They would be paid through the Allegheny County Emergency Association, which is raising funds to put unemployed to work on city projects.

Mr. Duggan stated that the proposition had not yet been brought officially to the attention of the Emergency Association. The city has in mind many other projects and funds available for tools and material on which labor, provided and paid for by the association, will work.

Two Held in Gun-Carrying Charge

Magistrate Leo Rothenberg today held Floyd Raines, 28, and Victor Sutley, 26, both of 418 Arch street, for the grand jury for carrying concealed weapons after the men admitted that they had pistols, police said. Raines also admitted he had planned to "rob somebody," according to police.

FORGER URGES MERCY FOR 2 COMRADES

Pleads Guilty, Asks That Younger Men Be Spared; U. S. Judge Sentences Pair

Pleading guilty yesterday in Federal Court to passing forged postal money orders, Samuel F. Silberman, 44, alias Thomas A. Henderson, assumed all responsibility and asked Judge Nelson McVicar to be merciful to two younger men indicted with him.

Claude B. Sweezey, 32, alias C. B. Loveland, also pleaded guilty. Henry A. Lauer, 25, will be brought here next week from the federal reformatory at Chillicothe, O., to enter a plea. The money orders were said to have been passed on Erie and Pittsburgh merchants.

SEES FUTURE FOR OTHERS

Addressing the court, Silberman said:

"Your Honor, I am really responsible for the plight of my two accomplices and I want you to be merciful toward them. I wish to assume the burden. They are both young men with opportunities for honorable futures, while I will be an old man when I finish the long term that confronts me at the Atlanta penitentiary."

Silberman and Sweezey were brought from the Atlanta penitentiary to enter their pleas. Judge McVicar sentenced Silberman to four years in the penitentiary, to start at the expiration of a 12-year term imposed January 6 in New York, for passing forged postal money orders in that city and Buffalo. Sweezey was sentenced to serve one year at the expiration of a two-year sentence imposed in New York.

SHOT IN CAPTURE

Silberman, Sweezey and Lauer left a trail of forged postal money orders, for $100 each, in New York, Buffalo, Erie and Pittsburgh last March. In Cleveland, Silberman accidently shot a man and a woman pedestrians, while struggling with a policeman who arrested him.

He was sentenced in Cleveland to serve nine years in the Atlanta penitentiary, the term to run concurrently with the one received in New York.

Sweezey told the court he is the son of a retired army officer, who at one time was warden of the Maryland State Penitentiary Baltimore.

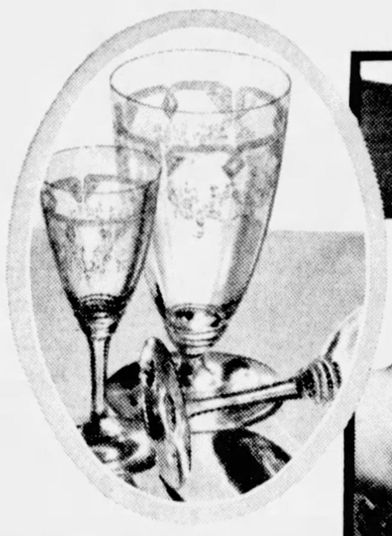
Twice the Sparkle—½ the Bother

When You Wash Dishes This Amazing Way



The Way Fine Shops Make Glassware Sparkle

HERE is the way they give fine china and glassware the sparkle everyone admires in shop displays. A new discovery that eliminates greasy film on dishes and the scum in dishpans and actually cuts dishwashing time in half!

It is not just another soap but a water-softening cleanser that makes any soap more effective in cleansing results by changing "hard" water to "soft". And you need use only one-fourth the soap formerly needed. Results are like magic, women say.

What It Is

It is a preparation called Climalene that you add to your dish water. Just a teaspoon or two. Instantly, it takes all the harshness out of that water. Makes it soft as rain water. So soft that it does the work with ONE-FOURTH the soap you use now. And thus ends the greasy soap film that was formerly so hard to avoid.

At the same time, due to certain bland cleansing agents, it instantly DISSOLVES all grease and grime. And thus cuts washing time, too—in either dishpan or washing machine—ONE-HALF or more.

Use the soap or soap flakes you ordinarily do. Then see for yourself the amazing results.

P.S. Ask Your Grocer 10¢ Now Buys The Best Toilet Bowl Cleanser Made The New BOWLENE Made by the Makers of Climalene

Laboratory Proved

Results in clothes washing are equally amazing. For Climalene ends "soap eat," the chief cause of fading, streaking and grayness.

We wash delicate lingerie, often 50 times—without perceptible fade. Children's rompers, 60 to 90 times. That's over a year's home washing.

We wash gold encrusted china hundreds of times without a trace of gold gone. And thus prove the blandness of this way.

Consider, please, what those things mean to you. Consider, too, that the minute you put this creation into water, all harshness is taken away—your hands protected from roughness, made soft, smooth and white. Then try it.

Your grocer has it. Sold only in 10c and 25c packages. Note the name CLIMALENE.

HOLLYWOOD AND GOTHAM IN REVIEW; COMING THEATER ATTRACTIONS

Fritz Leiber May Bring 'Coriolanus' Next To Pittsburgh

By GEORGE SEIBEL.

Fritz Leiber with his Shakespearean company will not be seen in Pittsburgh this season. The fault is not with Pittsburgh, but with the rest of "the road." Last season plans were afoot to bring Leiber here for two weeks, as he has now a repertoire of 10 Shakespearean plays, but after his 12 weeks in Chicago and six weeks in New York reports from all over the country indicated that abnormal conditions in the theaters would spell a loss.

George Seibel

"Only Pittsburgh and Kansas City," Leiber told me in Chicago a few days ago, "gave promise of a successful season. Now the Chicago Civic Shakespeare Society, of which I am managing director, is not being conducted for profit. The organization is ready to stand a loss in order to educate the public to a greater appreciation of Shakespeare. But there is no sense in facing a loss when the public will not come to the theater to accept the education."

Leiber is living in Chicago, city of his birth, though his permanent home is Atlantic Highlands, New Jersey. Having closed his season early, for the reason given, he is now preparing elaborate plans for next fall. At least one new Shakespearean production will be added to his repertoire.

TIMON OR CORIOLANUS?

It may be "Timon of Athens." It may be "Coriolanus."

Or it may be "Measure for Measure." And there is a possibility of "Richard the Second."

We discussed all possibilities at some length. I pointed out that "Timon of Athens" is practically finished when Timon throws the basins of warm water into the faces of his sycophants.

"But the pride and harsh conduct of Coriolanus do not appeal to most audiences," Leiber argued. "Henry Irving played the role during one season, with stage settings by Alma-Tadema, but who else could get away with it during the past generation? It was the great role of the great Kemble, because it fitted him better than any other. He was a sort of human ramrod, if reports are correct—just like Coriolanus."

In Germany, where there were 1,365 performances of Shakespeare last year in 144 different cities, "Coriolanus" was performed only once.

At the Old Vic, in London, I saw a performance of "Measure for Measure" a few years ago, which proved the actability and modernity of that drama. Leiber thinks it would be a revelation to American audiences.

PRIDE OF CHICAGO

The organization of which Leiber is the head is the pride of Chicago, as much as their Civic Opera Company. He has a beautiful theater in the Civic Opera House, and for five years to come a 12-week season is assured every year.

The company, being a permanency, is being built up gradually to a splendid ensemble. Leiber does not regard himself as the star in the hackneyed acceptation of the term. He is ready to assign himself a minor role in any production if another is better fitted for the lead.

Their productions are elaborate, but not cumbrous. They are neither realistic in the Belasco sense nor futuristic in the Gordon Craig sense. They create illusion, but leave something to the imagination.

"Shakespeare is a living force," said Leiber in conclusion. "Next season, when this depression will have vanished, we expect to arrange for a longer season than ever, and hope to include two weeks in Pittsburgh."

"With 'Coriolanus?'" I asked.

"Or 'Timon of Athens,'" he replied.

Marx Boys to Make Series of Pictures

"Monkey Business" has been decided upon as the next picture starring the Four Marx Brothers, after the signing of a new contract by them for a series of Paramount films. The story for the new comedy vehicle is being written by S. J. Perelman and Will B. Johnstone. "Monkey Business" will be made in Hollywood.

COMING ATTRACTIONS FOR LOCAL STAGE AND SCREEN

America's popular comedienne, Madge Kennedy, will come to the Alvin next week in her starring comedy, "Michael and Mary." Tickets for all performances, including the Wednesday and Saturday matinees, are now on sale.

"Making Mary," new musical comedy, is to have its pre-Broadway premiere in the Nixon Monday night. Will Ahern, Helen Patterson, Helen Eley and June Martell head the cast.

"Up Pops the Devil," the comedy written by Albert Hackett and Frances Goodrich, which opened in New York early this season and is still drawing good houses there, will be presented by George Sharp in the Pitt Theater next week. It is an ultra-modern comedy dealing with the art colony in Greenwich village.

NEW FILMS TOMORROW

David Belasco's stage comedy "The Bachelor Father," which has been adapted to the talking screen as a starring vehicle for Marion Davies, will be seen in the Aldine tomorrow. The cast includes C. Aubrey Smith, who created the title stage role; Ralph Forbes, Guinn Williams and Halliwell Hobes.

Bebe Daniels, who plays the role of society aviatrix, opposite Douglas Fairbanks in "Reaching for the Moon," the Penn film feature, beginning tomorrow, needed no substitute when it came to handling an airplane in the picture. Miss Daniels has a pilot's license and is rated one of the most enthusiastic fliers in the film colony.

Harmony Exists Once More Between Ann Harding And Film Studio

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1931, by Premier Syndicate.)

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 19.

After several months of strained relations, harmony exists between Ann Harding and Pathe.

Charles Rogers, new production boss at the studio, effected the reconciliation by tearing up the star's old contract and giving her a new one for three years. Characterizing the actress' former salary as "a cup of coffee," Rogers named a figure that is said to rank well up in the roster of screen incomes.

Ann Harding

Another point ironed out is that Pathe will not loan the star to other companies in the future.

A DELICATE POINT

studio. I said it would reach either Clara or her secretary.

"Well, that's just what I wanted to know," said the girl. You see I want to be her secretary."

Cecil B. De Mille is noted for working his players well into the afternoon before calling lunch.

Last Friday it was nearing 2 o'clock, and "The Squaw Man" company still was making scenes. Finally, Eleanor Boardman pointedly examined her watch.

"I know what happened to C. B. the last time they took him to the hospital," she said: "they took his stomach out."

LATEST GOSSIP

Universal and George Bancroft have gotten to the point of talking terms. The actor is said to have demanded $75,000 a picture from Paramount and Warners. . . . Harpo Marx is at loose in Hollywood. He's the first of the four brothers to arrive. Their new comedy, "Monkey Business," goes into production about April 6 . . . Fritzi Ridgeway, who has given up acting to run a hotel in Palm Springs, has been made a member of the Kaw tribe of Indians. That ought to give her resort first choice of Indian guides. . . . Robert Vignola is being congratulated upon a new 3,000-barrel oil well which came in this week. . . . Quick thinking save the negative of Jack Gilbert's new picture in a recent laboratory fire in Hollywood. When the blaze started, someone gave the film-can a terrific kick, boosting it into the next room. If the negative had burned, "Gentleman's Fate" would have had to be refilmed. . . . Director Dick Wallace is back in town after a sojourn on Broadway. . . . . The sign-painters are busy at Pathe, retitling the studio "R-K-O—Pathe."

John Gilbert

THEY WERE IN THE PICTURE

The opening of "Cimarron" in Pawhuska, Okla., will be a notable event. This is the town upon which Edna Ferber modeled her "Osage" in the story. Yancy Cravat's newspaper, the Oklahoma Wigman, was patterned after Pawhuska's existing Daily Journal Capital. Chief Bacon Rind, of the Osage Indian Nation, is joining the newspaper in inviting citizens to the opening. He is the Chief Big Elk of the novel.

Marjorie Rambeau's screen roles display increasing prominence. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has bought Edward Knoblock's "Lullaby" as the actress' latest vehicle.

This is a play in which an elderly woman tells the story of her downfall as an object lesson to a young girl.

H. H. Van Loan, a close friend of Miss Rambeau, is writing the adaptation of "Lullaby" and Edgar Selwyn will direct.

'BLUE BIRD' LISTED FOR NIXON MATINEES

Over 2,000 children in orphanage homes, and a few public schools, will be guests at "The Blue Bird," Materlinck's fantasy which the Pittsburgh Junior League is to present this afternoon in the Nixon. Other performances will be tomorrow afternoon and Saturday morning. The afternoon performances are at 2:15; Saturday morning's at 10 o'clock.

Miss Cloria Chandler, of Chicago, who is directing the play, has coached the production.

Mrs. Joseph M. Scribner is general chairman. Taking the leading roles of Mytyl and Tyltyl are Mrs. W. Dudley Livingston and Miss Nancy Hamilton.

WALTER WINCHELL On Broadway

(Copyright, 1931, Daily Mirror, Inc.)

Portrait of a Man Talking to Himself

That William J. Funk story ought to lift the chins of those beginners who get so discouraged every time they receive a rejection slip . . . Funk is a millionaire . . . The president of Funk & Wagnalls, which publishes dictionaries, religious and travel tomes, the Litdigest and other things . . . In his spare time Mr. Funk writes poems, light, airy, gently cynical, sophisticated verse . . . Many of them have appeared here and in other pillars . . . Recently he arrived at the stage of the average poet's career—when they want to see their stuff bound between covers . . . He made a selection and christened it: "Manhattans, Bronxes and Queens" . . . Then he offered it to the publishing house of which he is president . . . None of his associates had ever taken the chief's authorship seriously . . . They knew that he scribbled verses now and then, and that he got them published, but since none of them had ever been found worthy of being reprinted in the Verse Department of the Digest, they thought nothing of them.

Mr. Funk showed his collected poems to the editor of the company . . . The editor rejected them as "inconsistent with the editorial policy of the company" . . . The company is a staid old publishing house which publishes books now and then on etiquet, self-help, right-thinking and so forth, but nothing so frivolous as a book of light verse! . . . Mr. Funk was disappointed, but, after all, he was president of the group and he decided to make an issue of it. . . . He called a meeting of the board of directors, and put the matter up to them . . . They asked for and received copies of the manuscript . . . When they read it they voted unanimously against the president . . . And offered reasons for not publishing the book. . . . Funk was disconsolate . . . Some weeks later he was drowning his sorrows in a breaker of sass in a Twenty-eighth St. caravansary when a friend of his introduced him to Burton Rascoe, one of the Minds of the "Lit'r'ry Racket" . . . After Rascoe, who has discovered several of the modern geniuses (Cabel, frixample), read Funk's poems, he arranged to have them published via a well-known publishing outfit . . . The release date is Feb. 27.

The recent marriage of Jean Malin to what-was-her-name, again? stunned the Broadway crowd which had been puzzled about him . . . However, he surprised his admirers and his alleged friends by marrying and there you are, for want of a better sentence . . . The marriage has kept the locals talking. Last night we encountered Mr. Malin and his bride in a cafe.

"Tell me," I said when I got him to one side, "what is this marriage thing anyhow? Why did you do it?" . . . "Because I love her," he said without a trace of fibbing . . . Then he unfolded this sincere and unbelievable explanation . . . "I have known her for two years," he said. "We were sweethearts for a while. Then I got a break at the Abbey Club and couldn't find time for her . . . I don't want to appear conceited, but lots of girls made a fuss over me. Still none of them seemed to make me like them the way she did. I hadn't seen her for a spell when I heard she was going with another guy—and might marry him. Nights became restless. I couldn't sleep well. I was actually jealous of a fellow I didn't know. When two weeks had passed and I still felt that way about her, I phoned her and told her she meant more to me than success or anything. I asked her to marry me—and that's all there is to it."

Funny thing about Eddie Cantor . . . When "Whoopee" was about to close at the New Amsterdam Theater he announced to the rags that he was retiring from the stage and would confine his activities to the screen . . . Since then he has appeared in vaudeville, and the other week-end he accepted a few one-day bookings at a Southern resort . . . One of the picture houses offered him $500 for the day . . . That night the manager paid him $275—saying that was all he had . . . Cantor called in a policeman and went through the usual aggravations trying to get justice—in vain.

"I thought you said you had retired from the stage," one of us said to Eddie. "How come you are playing such places as one-night stands?" . . . "Listen," replied the candid Cantor, "after you lose two million dollars—you play anything!"

Never had an experience like it before . . . I mean that one in which the pretty blonde thing confessed how she helped frame a well known New Yorker who is the parent of grown children and is respected in the community.

"I have wanted to tell you about it," she was saying, "for a long time, because I knew you would write something about those lawyers who do nothing but frame men with money." . . . She bluntly unfolded her story . . . "He was good to me," she said, "and bought me things. I was very green at the time and didn't know anything about framing married men. A boy friend of mine introduced me to a lawyer one night. Two weeks later I signed a paper, never realizing that it was a complaint against this man. Of course, he settled for $1,500 rather than risk going to court. I got $750 of it, but I have had remorse ever since. He tells everybody I am a racketeer and dangerous, but I'm not, really. I've wanted to tell him the whole story, but he won't listen. Maybe if you write about it he will see it and help me show up those shysters."

He probably doesn't want to be bothered and shouldn't be . . . The lawyers, however, will regret it . . . Considering this is not the first tale about their methods . . . Wonder if the district attorney would be interested?

Anything for publicity, I guess . . . That Helen Twelvetrees fable in a Sunday paper, frinstance . . . Helen is quoted as chirping that every movie producer wanted her to change her name from Twelvetrees to "Trees" or something shorter . . . "But I'm superstitious," the paper quotes her, "and I refused to be known by any other name." The sheet then proceeds to report that Twelvetrees is her family tag—her ancestral handle, etc. . . . Well, Twelvetrees isn't . . . Her real tag is Helen Jurgen, as her Brooklyn schoolmates knew her . . . Phil Baker is having his troubles . . . That's what he gets, though, for copying the columnists . . . His newest piece of clowning brought him trouble . . . Baker announced an imitation of Rudy Vallee. Then he began warbling through a megaphone . . . This was the cue for his "plant" seated in a box, to shower him with grapefruit . . . The next day Baker was bombarded with hundreds of abusive letters from Vallee followers . . . As a matter of face, Vallee gave Baker permission to use it!

The Reverend Alan F. Bain, of Glen Falls, N. Y., rates my humble thanks for his free ad about the column in his sermon . . . Ditto the New Haven Register for the free theater-ticket contest. . . . The Register gives away passes to a hit to subscribers who can cleverly finish the sentence beginning: "Give a Man Enough Rope ——". . . . The winner submitted: "Give a man enough rope—and Walter Winchell!" . . . The name of the show makes the line so consistent, too . . . The show is "Strictly Dishonorable!" . . . Is my space read? . . . Too bad about Lillian Litzel's terrible fall and her tragic death, poor thing . . . A group of the boys were talking about daredevils.

"That's why people go to circuses," someone remarked, "or any exhibition where there is a risk of missing and getting hurt. None of us want to witness an accident, but there is some thrill in the anticipation of seeing people miss."

WHERE ELSE COULD YOU GET THIS?

THE FACT is simply this: PEBECO, the "iced" dentifrice, gives you something you can't get in any other way. Its taste you will never forget. The lovely lustre and sparkle of your teeth will always be a tribute to your judgment. The cool, clean sensation in your mouth will be a blessed relief to a naturally hot, sticky mouth and breath. The stimulating, tangy "bite" will convince you that THIS tooth paste is right on the job...the one you have been hoping you would ultimately find. A week's trial bears this out.

That Worn-Out Feeling May Be a Dangerous Sign

If you feel all worn out in the middle of the day, that's nature's warning. Heed it! Your system may be starved for vitamins! The modern diet simply doesn't supply enough of them.

To correct this condition doctors here are widely prescribing cod liver oil. But many people can't take it. The nasty taste gags them. The oil upsets their stomachs. And so to these people we recommend McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets.

These amazing little tablets contain all the A and D vitamins and are equal in every respect to the liquid cod liver oil.

The Good Housekeeping Institute has tested these tablets and approved them. Leading doctors everywhere now prescribe them. If you would give your system the vitamins it needs—just go to your druggist and ask for a box of McCoy's.

Don't wait another minute. Get your box today. 60 tablets, 60 cents.

Scout Head Praises Film, "Father's Son"

Indorsement of "Father's Son," which opens Friday in the Stanley, is given by A. T. Benson, executive secretary of the Allegheny County Council, Boy Scouts of America. In a letter to the Stanley Theater management Mr. Benson states:

"Having seen 'Father's Son,' I hasten to give it my indorsement. It is the kind of picture that every family, especially parents, should see, because of its values in the understanding of youth. May I wish the hearty co-operation of all parents for this splendid picture."

Self-Pity Causes Folks to Misunderstand Friends

Do people turn up their noses at you because you're poor or—do you just think they do?

Here's Jacqueline suffering, I suspect, from a bit of homemade misery. And unconsciously getting a Big Bang out of being a martyr. As we all do every now and then.

"Dear Sally Martin:

"Probably you'll think this is a silly sort of a letter but I just had to write it. And your opinion and advice will be ever so much appreciated. Now then, my husband and I are getting along great and not thinking of divorce or anything like that. To make a long story short we're perfectly happy, we two. No, I beg your pardon, 'we four.' I should have said 'because we have two lovely kiddies, a girl and a boy. The girl is three and the boy six months. We live in a cute little attic flat. And here's the rub.

Wants a Friend

"Everything is clean and cozy, but it seems to me that our poor little attic flat is my main drawback when I try to make friends with young women like myself. I want a friend so badly! Someone who, like myself, has a baby and likes to take afternoon walks with it, or perhaps to go to some park in nice weather where it is healthy for the little ones.

"But every woman I know of has a much nicer flat than myself, and much nicer things in general and somehow I can't help but imagine that is what puts me in a class all by myself.

"What can I do about it? I surely can't go hunting up all the attic flats in town to find a friend for myself . . . but money seems to talk these days. Now Sally, don't think I'm feeling sorry for myself. I'm not. I sure do hate sympathy. But I do so want a friend! I'm not disagreeable. Everyone at the office where I worked used to like me. And I get along very nicely with people as a general rule. Now I haven't a single friend to my name.

"A few weeks ago some new neighbors moved in a few doors away from us. I'd love to be friends with this woman, as she, too, has babies and I've heard that she was a very nice woman. But how to get acquainted?

Spoiling Own Happiness

"And if I succeeded in making a friend of her—would my poor little flat or such things in general make a difference with her, too?

"I don't intend to live in an attic flat all my life, either. But our kiddies came very soon after our marriage, and we simply can't afford better quarters.

"Please comment. What shall I do? "JACQUELINE."

It's easy to see that you expect me to be very, very sorry for you, Jacqueline. And I am sorry for you. But not for the reason you think. Not because the neighbors are spoiling your happiness by their snootiness. But because you, yourself, are spoiling your happiness by your self-pity.

That answer surprises you, doesn't it? You don't like it. You don't think it is fair. What do I, a successful writer, know about poverty? What do I know about the unkind snubs rich women deal out to poor ones?

I'll tell you how I know, Jacqueline. I know because I was poor once myself. Much much poorer than you are. So poor that even the shabbiest attic would have looked like a blessed haven to me. And many a time my little son and I went hungry and cold while others sat snug and well-fed in lovely homes.

But never once did I receive a snub from the rich; never once, if my plight became known, was a friendly hand withheld from me . . . or was help given in a way that hurt my pride.

For America is a friendly land, Jacqueline. Sometimes we're selfish, careless, but never are most people intentionally unkind. Most of us have seen lean days, days even leaner than yours—and may see them again. And understanding makes our hearts warm.

So I don't believe that people are as unkind as you think. Now and then you may meet some coarse and heartless creature. You'd meet them in any walk of life. But, generally speaking, people will be friendly to you if you'll be friendly to them.

Martyrdom Buys Misery

But I suspect that you aren't feeling friendly toward anyone just now. The truth is, you're mad at life, Jacqueline, and terribly sorry for yourself. You're lonely and strange. You're having to do without the little luxuries you love. Your pride is hurt at living in humbler quarters, dressing in plainer clothes than other women. You feel that you don't amount to anything any more—

And so you're trying to restore your sense of self-importance by being sorry for yourself. You're making yourself feel dramatic by martyrizing yourself. Standing injustice and deprivation with a Sweet, Brave Smile! And probably making your poor young husband feel like a dirty deuce.

There's nothing new in that, Honey. We all do it at least, once in every lifetime. Martyrdom's a great little indoor sport. The snootiness of the rich isn't a patch on the arrogance of the poor. But in the end, rich or poor, martyrdom buys us only misery.

So snap out of it, kid! Going through hard times? Well, so are a lot of other Good Eggs. Be a sport about it. You're bright—and I'll wager you're sweet and pretty. So put aside your martyr's crown awhile and act regular. Expect friendliness and you'll get it.

Young Persons Who Run Away Certainly Have Some Reason, Says Fay King

WHATEVER IT MAY BE, THE REASON SEEMS VERY DESPERATE TO THE ONE WHO RUNS AWAY
SOMETIMES IN THE MIDST OF LUXURY THERE IS A POVERTY OF AFFECTION AND UNDERSTANDING
AN EVIL FRIEND OF THE SAME SEX MAY HAVE A MORE DANGEROUS INFLUENCE THAN A LOVE AFFAIR
FAY KING

By FAY KING

Although family and friends may protest that a young person who runs away has no reason for doing so—there certainly is some reason.

It is a grave step for even an impulsive young person to take. Some condition in their surroundings must have become unbearable. Or there was a very great influence from without their home circle.

Sometimes it is so emphatically denied that there is any love affair in the missing one's life. Why? All young persons are more or less romantically inclined. It is natural and normal.

There is more reason for worry when they are under the evil influence of one of their own sex.

Lack of affection and sympathy or tactless criticism and favoritism sometimes drive the sensitive to desperation.

Continuation of Love's Awakening

Madge Begins to Feel Strain of Combating Edith Fairfax

In spite of my anger at Edith Fairfax and Dicky, or perhaps because of it, I had said exactly the right thing to Philip Veritzen. Without exhibiting even more crassness than he had betrayed in his anger at Edith's revelation, he could not voice an objection to my husband's sending me flowers for Mary's party. And his reaction to my statement that I had not yet rejected his own corsage bouquet for my green gown, was instant and surprising.

"Yet," he repeated, ignoring everything that had gone before and speaking in a distinctly less frigid tone, "You have not decided, then, whose flowers you will wear. That, my dear lady, gives a distinct fillip to my imagination, a suspense which frankly I shall enjoy. Do not tell me when you decide. I shall know tonight when I see them. I shall attend at once to the tickets and will come to the dining room shortly after 2 to see that the florists have filled my orders correctly. Good-bye until then."

He hung up the receiver so abruptly that I had no opportunity to answer him. From the point of view which I had told myself I must take—the prudent consideration of Noel's welfare and that of Mary—it was fortunate that he had given me no opportunity to reply. For I was so enraged at his audacity—his impudence—that I should have told him abruptly that I meant to wear my husband's flowers, and that I wished neither flowers nor theater tickets from him for Mary's party—I would find some way, even at this eleventh hour, of providing a fitting substitution for his munificence.

It was fully a minute after I hung up the receiver that I sat motionless, my fingers clenched into my palms, striving to conquer the hectic anger that was mine against Philip Veritzen for his audacity, against Edith Fairfax for her presumption and sly scheming, and against Dicky for his gullibility in listening to Edith, and for his jealousy over the flowers which had so upset my plans.

One certainty, however, finally emerged from the welter of angry thoughts circling around my brain. I could do nothing until later in the afternoon, and there was no use trying to decide anything while I was so angry. I determined to follow Mary's advice and take a nap until luncheon. Forcing my anger into flight, I rose and walked to the other end of the room, where Mary and Noel were snuggled into a single but huge easy chair looking out of the window at the distant river. Noel's arm was around her and her curly head was resting against his shoulder, while his dark head was bent to hers. They did not hear me as I came toward them and I felt guilty at having to disturb them.

"Don't move, either of you," I admonished. "You look altogether too comfortable and happy. I'm going to lie down in my room, Mary, and if Dicky or Mrs. Underwood or Mrs. Brixton telephones, take the message if you can and tell me about it at luncheon. If it's anything imperative, call me at once."

"I can't imagine many things imperative enough to give me a notion that I could waken you," Mary said rebelliously, and I smiled at her pretty championship of me.

"I'm sure there won't be," I assured her. "But you'd better have a paper and pencil handy if either Mrs. Brixton or Mrs. Underwood telephones. Their messages will concern the color of the evening gowns worn by the feminine guests, and I want you to take them down so that I will make no mistake when I give them to Mr. Veritzen."

Noel lifted his head abruptly. "To my father—why?" he asked tensely.

"Because he is sending corsage bouquets to all the feminine guests," I answered.

"But not to Mary—after all the things he has done and said. I cannot bear——"

"Do not say that yet, Noel," I interposed swiftly and emphatically. "I'm not deciding anything until after luncheon. Please do not ask Mary for her decision either until after I have talked to you. Promise?"

"Of course, if you wish it," he said, but his voice and words were stilted, formal instead of being invested with the friendliness which Noel always shows to me. I turned away with the feeling of a man standing on the top of an eminence with two people below on opposite slopes, both of them tugging back, and both of whom he is trying to drag to the top by main strength.

It was at least a quarter of an hour before I fell asleep, but I slept soundly, and did not awaken until Mary bent over me, calling softly, "Auntie Madge!"

"It's a crime to waken you," she said, "but it's almost time for luncheon."

I sat up quickly, then rose, and, going to my dressing table, took down my hair. I was conscious that Mary was watching me, and a moment later she put a tense query:

"What do you want me to do about wearing Mr. Veritzen's flowers?"

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Child's Health Depends on Full Quota of Sleep.

Nothing is more fascinating than to watch an infant sleep. Thoroughly relaxed, with no worry or care, the sleeping babe is a joy to look upon.

Dr. Copeland.

The sleep of early infancy is quiet and peaceful. In the first month of life, it is a deep sleep and may be almost continuous. The child awakens only for nourishment. After this period the sleep becomes more disturbed. Not until after the third year does the normal heavy sleep of childhood make its appearance.

During the first six months, the awake periods are from half an hour to two hours long. The infant sleeps from 16 to 18 hours a day.

At one year old the infant sleeps from 14 to 15 hours. When the age of two years is reached, 13 to 14 hours of sleep make up the daily rest period.

When children have reached the age of 4, they require from 11 to 12 hours of sleep. It is advisable that the daily nap be encouraged until the children are 6 years old.

For children between the ages of 6 and 10 years, the amount of sleep required is 10 or 11 hours. Nine hours of sleep should be the minimum for children from 12 to 16.

Proper sleep is merely a matter of proper training. This training should be begun at birth. The infant will soon learn that when placed in the crib it is time to go to sleep. Rocking, the giving of a rubber nipple to suck and other artificial methods of inducing slumber, should not be resorted to for the wooing of sleep. They are unnecessary and often harmful.

The sleeping quarters should be a room away from noises, and, during the hours for sleep, it should be darkened. A warm and comfortable bed, a satisfied appetite and dry napkins, are all that are needed to induce sleep in a normal child.

In training the infant it is best to keep in mind that the child is to have his long sleep at night. This is best accomplished by wakening the infant regularly every three to four hours during the day for feeding. Then he is permitted to sleep as long as possible during the night.

Irregular sleep in an infant is due to one of two things. Either the child is hungry, or is suffering from indigestion. Continued disturbed sleep is a sign of trouble. If the mother can't locate it, it requires careful investigation by a physician.

Lack of sleep in children beyond infancy results in delayed development. Its cause must be found and removed. The mental and physical growth demands abundance of sleep.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Friday, February 20

A very progressive and enterprising day may be expected, according to the predominant position of Mars in trine aspect with Luna. The faculties and energies will be under high stimulus to undertake bold projects in which the support of employers and those in places of authority may be counted upon.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a progressive and lively year, with the capacity to accomplish much constructive work under high stimulus. Those in employment are especially likely to have the encouragement of their superiors.

A child born on this day may be aggressive, energetic, constructive and executive and should be especially successful in winning the co-operation of employes and those in high places.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Party Plans

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am having a party—or should I say "gathering"—and I should like to have you answer a few questions in order to settle arguments among my girl friends.

1. Should the invitations be written on cards or merely on plain white letter paper?

2. In what form and just how should they be worded?

3. Please tell me how my mother should be introduced? Shall I call her into the parlor as each guest arrives or after they have all arrived? Must I announce her name to each one, or just once for all of them to hear?

READER.

Either is correct, if the correspondence cards are of a size to allow plenty of room for the invitation. Plain white letter paper is always excellent form, and permits a better space and more margin for the invitation. And "party" is, I think, always a charming word—better than gathering.

2. The invitation should read something like this:

"DEAR ALICE:

"Will you come to my party? I am asking some friends to come to my home on Friday, February the twenty-fifth, and you will make mother and me happy if you will come. Please say that you will and please come in about 8 o'clock.

Best and dearest wishes from us both.

"Very affectionately yours."

3. Your mother should make a special point to be ready to receive your guests with you. When the first guest arrives she should be on hand to "extend the welcoming hand of hospitality" and she should stay to greet all the guests.

When you introduce the guests to her say "Mother, may I present Mr. Phillips?" or "Mother, this is Mr. Harry Phillips," or "Mr. Phillips, do you know my mother?" or "Mother, Miss Clara Johnson."

Inviting the Minister to Call.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am a daily reader of your column and I appreciate very much the way you discuss matters concerning good manners and right conduct.

1. I have been in this city for several years and have gone to different churches. The minister of one church has been to visit me several times and has also sent his assistant to see me, but I am never at home when he calls. Will you please give me your advice as to whether I should call or write him a note asking him to make a definite date?

If this is correct, will you please print an invitation for me? MRS. T.

Thank you for your kind words of appreciation.

1. It would be charmingly courteous of you to write a note to the minister and tell him how much you regret having missed him on the several occasions when he has come to call. He would, of course, appreciate this; we would appreciate it, if we were in his place—wouldn't we?

2. Something like this, perhaps, for your note:

"My Dear Mr. Davis:

"You have been most kind to come to call on me these several times, and I do want you to know how much I appreciate your graciousness and thoughtfulness. I am planning very soon to come to a service at your church, and I do hope that then I may have an opportunity to meet you and to thank you personally for your neighborliness.

"Very sincerely yours."

Household Hints

Salt in warm water will take the itch out of chilblains.

When cutting fur, never use the scissors; use an old razor blade or a very sharp knife to cut through the skin at the back.

To shrink thread to be used for drawn work, etc., so the work will not draw when it is washed, put the spool or skein of thread in a cup of boiling water an hour or so; this will not spoil the gloss.

Salt will remove tea stains from delicate china cups.

Salt and hot water will thaw out a frozen drain pipe. Dip heavy rags into the solution and wrap them around the pipes, changing to hot rags as they cool.

A sewing suggestion: Keep a small inexpensive flashlight in the sewing machine drawer to save many precious minutes and eye strain in threading a needle on a dark day or at night.

Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

There is a difference of opinion concerning the benefit of eye exercises. Some specialists are for and some are agin. The agin ones declare that the eyes are exercised every waking moment. We give up!

No chemical can be used to make the hair white. Women with salt-and-pepper locks oftimes berate the transition period, long for the snowy crest. Anything strong enough to whiten the hair is strong enough to destroy the structure of the hair itself. Time takes care of the problem.

Little Goldie Locks has her lemon rinse to keep her yallery locks full of sunlight, but she will do better is she adds a little salts of tartar to the lemon juice. A good formula is: One teaspoonful of salts of tartar, juice of three lemons, one quart of water. The mixture goes over the pristine tresses immediately after the shampoo and should be rinsed away with quantities of clear tepid water.

No longer do pretty lips hide behind a heavily painted screen of Chinese red. If rouge is used, it is of the natural tone, which is a deep red with a slightly blue cast. Bite the lips, hold the lipstick close and see if the color is the same. Makeup becomes more and more discreet, as befits the feminine note in sartorial draperies. The present-day seeker after style and beauty endeavors to appear ladylike. There is a complete face-about from the gamin-girl type of the last few years—she of short socks, short skirts and short hair.

WELL-KNOWN MAN PRAISES DIAPEPSIN FOR STOMACH ILLS

"For over two years I had heartburn and gas on my stomach," says A. L. Davidson, popular Navy Yard employee, of 815 Eye Street, S.E., Washington, D. C.

"I would belch often, leaving a sour, hot taste in my mouth. Few things agreed with me.

"Then I read about it and got me some Pape's Diapepsin. I had immediate relief from the first few tablets, so I kept on with it. Now I feel fine; eat all the fried foods I want without bad after-effects. I have gained eight pounds since starting on Pape's Diapepsin and my trouble is all gone. The tablets are pleasant to chew and sure get results quickly."

Pape's Diapepsin is the best thing yet discovered to end digestive worries, give tone to a disordered stomach, increase appetite, make digestion vigorous and complete. Its success in so many cases where everything else has failed, proves that.

All drugstores sell these harmless, pleasant tablets. If you prefer to try them before buying, a letter to Pape's Diapepsin, Wheeling, W. Va., will bring a sample box, FREE.

DURING

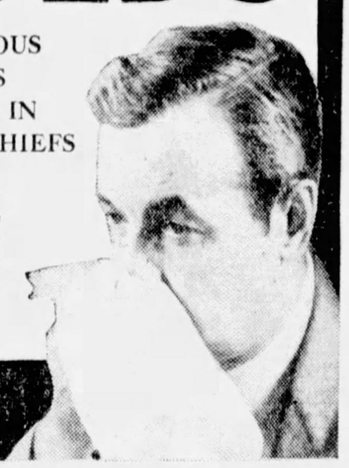
INFECTIOUS GERMS SURVIVE IN HANDKERCHIEFS

Handkerchief unsafe if used once . . . should be discarded to prevent constant self-infection.



Safety Demands Kleenex

Use it once . . . then discard

THE use of Kleenex in place of handkerchiefs may actually shorten the duration of your cold! This promise comes to us from the scientific laboratory, after a remarkable series of tests on handkerchiefs used during colds.

These tests reveal the vast numbers of disease germs discharged into a handkerchief during colds. As many as 240,000 in a handkerchief used one time! As many as 4,170,000 in a handkerchief used several times!

This means that the ordinary handkerchief carries countless germs back to the face every time it's used. Germs that should be destroyed—are destroyed when you use Kleenex.

Use Kleenex—then discard

Each tissue that touches your face is absolutely clean. Think how much more sanitary! Health authorities advise Kleenex.

Kleenex is a soft, immaculate, super-absorbent tissue, handkerchief size. So gentle, so soothing, that irritation is impossible. So inexpensive that each tissue may be used just once, then discarded.

Ask for Kleenex at any drug, dry goods or department store: 25 cents, 50 cents and $1.00.

Bacteriological tests show:

1. That handkerchiefs used by persons having colds may contain as many as 4,170,000 germs per handkerchief.
2. That organisms representative of those known to be associated with colds, when impregnated upon linen and rinsed in boiling water and/or soap water followed by clear water, were not killed nor appreciably inhibited from growing.

BOAT CIRCLES ANTARCTIC

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—(AP.)—The first continuous circumnavigation of the Antarctic continent—14,000 miles and four months in a stout, stubby whaling vessel—was recounted by the New York Times today.

Dr. Isaiah Bowman, director of the American Geographical Society, has received a cablegram from Consul Lars Christensen, leading figure in the Norwegian whaling industry, describing the successful voyage of his whaler Norvegia into the waters traversed in part by the Byrd expedition.

Valuable geographical information was gathered, indicating that the Antarctic shore facing South Africa is considerably further south than supposed and that Nimrod Isle and the Dougherty Islands, charted as lying far to the north of Marie Byrd Land, are mythical.

Irish to Open Bars On St. Patrick's Day

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, Feb. 19.—(AP.)—If a bill introduced in the Dail today passes before March 17 citizens of the Free State will be able to observe the ancient custom of "drowning the shamrock" in alcoholic beverage this St. Patrick's Day.

During recent years there has been prohibition over St. Patrick's Day, Good Friday and Christmas, but the new bill would permit licensed houses to remain open for two hours on St. Patrick's Day.

COUNTY BUYING PLAN LAUDED

County specifications for canned goods are more specific and complete than those of the city Department of Supplies, local merchants declare.

The county purchasing department now has inquiries out for a quantity of canned goods to be ordered within the next few days for the Juvenile Detention Home in Oakland.

A study of these specifications shows the type of detailed information which the county insists on having on its canned goods. Instead of so many dozen No. 10 cans of "Parke or equal" as frequently quoted in the lists issued by Director Bertram L. Succop, according to charges, the county goes into such things as counts, quantity and variety of the fruit or vegetable.

FASTEST GASOLINE SUCCESS in Pennsylvania History

This difference has enabled "STANDARD" to sweep the entire state in TWO YEARS . . .

IT IS not too much to say that the outstanding success of "Standard" gasoline in Pennsylvania was assured before a single gallon was sold in the state.

For "Standard" has brought to Pennsylvania motorists something more than a new gasoline. Behind it is a record of proved performance—a record that has already made it the best-selling motor fuel on the Atlantic seaboard. It has brought a gasoline which is the result of more than fifty years' refining experience.

"Standard" offers you a gasoline which preserves your motor. Clean . . . it is free from the damaging sulphides so common in gasoline today. Completely distilled...no gum to clog your valves, no "heavy ends" to cause crankcase dilution. Anti-knock quality well above the average of all other gasolines selling at regular prices.

You will feel the difference immediately . . . quicker starting, quicker pickup, power that never falls short, freedom from knocks. A tankful is all you need to prove it!

PIRATES BUY BILL REGAN

Sport Comment

By JAMES J. LONG

Buc Catchers Problem.
Phillips' Test Awaited.
Vets Back as Coaches.
Million New Golfers.
High Falls at Minors.
Milers May Run Again.

HOPE SEEN IN AROUSING OF HEMSLEY

AS THE PIRATE advance guard starts for the spring training camp on the Pacific Coast, speculation among the fans here at home as to the club's possibilities for the season centers chiefly around two members of the first division. They are Catchers Ralston Hemsley and Eddie Phillips. As a general rule, the pitching department is the main source of concern when the battery men are departing for the conditioning grounds, but in the case of the Buccaneers this year it is the backstopping branch that holds attention.

If that part of the club lies up here is not likely to be any occasion to fret about the remainder. Good catching will assure good pitching by a staff that is clearly rich in native ability, and it will supply the only thing needed to round out a combination that has real pennant possibilities. Whether that kind of catching is going to be provided or not depends upon Hemsley and Phillips. They are the men who will do the bulk of the receiving, and that's why they loom up as such important factors as the Bucs head for California.

Ralston Hemsley

IT WILL MEAN a double gain to the club if Phillips comes through for in addition to the value of his own individual service, his success will give the Corsairs another first-class marksman by arousing Hemsley to fight. The latter effect may mean even more to the Bucs than the improvement that will be picked up in the making good of Phillips himself.

For in the opinion of many baseball men all that Hemsley needs to put him in the ranks of the great catchers is something to stir him up and make him take his work more seriously. Baseball has been too much of a joy ride for Rolly since he came into the majors. He is the fastest receiver in the big show and has all the ability required in other respects to become a real star, but because he has not applied himself to his diamond career seriously enough he has failed to develop at the rate that was promised when he first came up.

AS LONG AS he could feel assured of ranking as the club's first catcher, Hemsley might not mend his ways, but if Phillips threatens to supplant him as the leading member of the back-stopping corps Rolly may buckle down to work and attend strictly to business.

If he does that Pirate followers will not have anything to worry about in the catching department, as Hemsley should be good enough for any man's club. If Phillips succeeds merely in arousing him, therefore, Eddie will prove a valuable acquisition even though he does nothing more than sit on the bench.

AND THERE IS ground for the hope that Phillips will do that and more. Those who have seen him at work see a bright future for him. In addition to Dan Howley and Heinie Manush, who recently praised Phillips highly to Jewel Ens, Regis Leheny, the Pittsburgh left-hander signed by the Braves, comes to bat with a strong boost for the new Pirate marksman. Leheny, who pitched to Phillips while with Toronto in the International League last year, pronounces him a smart, finished catcher, with one of the greatest throwing arms in baseball, and goes so far as to venture the opinion that it will be a tough job for Hemsley or anybody else to keep him from becoming the Pittsburgh club's ace behind the plate.

Jimmy Johnston

THE SIGNING OF Jimmy Johnston by the Brooklyn club as first-base coach draws attention again to the fact that while the present off-season has witnessed the departure of an unusual number of veteran coaches from the big show many other favorites of earlier days are coming back.

To balance the passing of Max Carey, Fred Hunter, Benny Meyer, Irish Meusel and Jack McCallister this year will see the return of Doc Crandall to tutor the Pirate pitchers, Chief Bender to fill a similar role with the Giants, Hugh Duffy to give a few tips to the Red Sox batters, and George Burns, Jack Onslow, Rudy Hulswitt and Johnston, to coach the Giants, Phillies, Red Sox and Robins respectively.

JOHNSTON, A BROTHER of Doc, former Pirate first baseman, has been in the minors for several years. In 1928 he managed Chattanooga and last year he played for Atlanta in the Southern Association.

Jimmy is a smart baseball man, and the Robins surely can use somebody of that type. His job at first base will be to keep Brooklyn's dashing base runners from stealing second while it is occupied and to prevent the home-run hitters from automatically retiring themselves by running past another baserunner after hitting the ball out of the lot, as was done twice last year.

HOW FAR DO you think a basketball player travels during the course of a game? They measured the movements of Graham, Depauw University guard, against Miami the other night, and figured that in 40 minutes of play he covered a little more than two and one-third miles. The exact figures were 2.34 miles. The distance was measured by a device designed by S. M. Corey, associate professor of psychology at Depauw. It consists of a miniature basketball court, built to scale on a metal base. A brass roller, with insulated points to provide a measuring unit, is used to depict movements of the player being followed.

THE SIZE OF the already mighty golfing army in the United States will be increased by the addition of at least a million more duffers this year, according to the estimate of Gordon Beckley, Chicago club manufacturer. He placed the number already playing golf in this country at 6,000,000.

Miniature golf courses, which sprang up like mushrooms last summer, are largely responsible for the large number of recruits, Beckley thinks. The beginners tried the Tom Thumb courses, contracted golf fever and now want to play on real courses. Beckley adds that the sensational record of Bobby Jones in 1930 also may have stirred the imagination of many and attracted them to the game.

ONE OF THE year's most unique holdouts has been pulled by Andy High, the hard-hitting little third sacker whom the Cardinals released to Rochester in the International League.

High refuses to join Rochester and demands that he be allowed to play another year in the majors. His reason for this is that one season more in the big show would make Andy a 10-year man, he could not then be sent to a minor league without his consent.

Carl Coan

CARL COAN, the country's most talked about runner since his surprising victory over Ray Conger. Former one-mile king, last Monday night, may undertake to prove within a few weeks that his triumph was not due to his being ahead of his normal form on that particular occasion. He had been asked to meet Conger again in the mile race at the Knights of Columbus games in New York on March 14 and has intimated that he will accept. The general opinion in track circles is that if the men come together again, with the new rivalry causing both to extend themselves to the limit, the result is likely to be the cracking of the world indoor record of four minutes and 12 seconds, which has stood for almost six years.

BLUFFITES HOPE TO COP FROM THORNMEN

Probable Lineup

Lewis	F	Fegley
Reynolds		Minnick
Abel	F	Laycock
Williams	C	Koma-Burke
Fuller	G	Reeves

Referee—Boggs. Snyder.

By JESS CARVER

The second touch one of the week with still another to go is on the platter for the once again Dukable Dukes tonight as Grove City, Bob Thorn and Co. appear on the Bluff court. Thorn and Co. haven't been doing so badly this year, having annexed six out of 10 games played and this despite a siege of injuries that have added more grey strands to the once raven locks of the great Thorn.

Tom Burke

Duquesne will enter tonight's game all peppery and excited after their deserved triumph over Geneva Tuesday night. The chances are that Chick Davies will shoot the lineup he used for the greater part of the Geneva game against the Crimson right at the start tonight. This arrangement which clicked very well Tuesday has Snub Irwin and the old reliable Garry Benedict at the forwards, Smoke Abele transplanted from forward to center, and either Parry and Walker paired at the guards with Cappo Stoppers.

CRIMSON STARS INJURED

The old Silver Fox himself, which is to say, Robert Methuselah Thorn, is still contending with a flock of injuries, and may have to keep some of his aces in his vest pocket tonight. Minnick, one of the lads in the more advanced stage of convalescence, and little Fegley, are the likely starters at the forwards. Blaine Laycock the former Sharon High humdinger figures to be in there at center and Koma and Reeves, who have been showing up very nicely of late, at the guards.

Capt. Tom Burke, a veteran performer who has been employed either at a guard or a forward will be available for duty at either spot.

The Tipoff

Those who watched the Dukes and Geneva in their fine game at New Brighton Tuesday night are still jawing about the fine sportsmanship on exhibition. The spectators especially were very, very fair. There was hardly a boo directed at either club all evening, and for all the crowd was predominantly a Geneva one, Gantz Benedict, the Duke ace, drew the most applause.

Washington is not the length of its spring football practice but at least two weeks. Coach Bill Ames will put his proteges through about a month of work this spring in place of the six or seven weeks of difficult hair-tearing the coach has had in the past. The practice sessions will be confined to fundamentals.

Carnegie Tech plays the second game of its eastern tour tomorrow night, and what a nice touch one the Tartans have. The boys are in Brooklyn for a clash with St. John's College, rated as one of the most formidable quintets of the East.

This lineup, some what resembles that for Geneva, some of the best hoopsters in the section. Hoy is a high scorer on the track team, and goes over the bar with only a three or four-step take off at five feet nine or 10 inches.

E. F. Ranney, star center of the Schenectady club, was the point man for the Covenanters last year, and Bole can out-jump him every time. His timing is perfect.

But when it comes to centers, all the officials who've seen him in action this year, tell me that Cliff Battles, of West Virginia Wesleyan, is the kingpin of the lot. He'll show here Saturday against the Dukes.

Altmar and Alman In Handball Final

Altmar and Alman, of the Y. M. H. A., reached the final round of the A. M. A. handball doubles championship yesterday by eliminating Wolfe and Chersky, of the same organization, 21-9, 13-21, 21-5.

They will meet the winner of the Olbum-Gladstone and Langfitt-Houck match in the final.

The Notre Dame-Northwestern game at Evanston last fall was the contest. Tickets for it were so scarce, so great was the interest that they were at a premium. Frank C. Leyton got one but a policeman took him out of his seat just about kickoff time.

Leyton got his ticket from a friend who had bought it from another friend who had purchased it from somebody else. It seems that it had been stolen but Leyton didn't know anything about that so he sued Northwestern University for $100,000. Yesterday the case was settled out of court for $1,000. He charged false arrest and interference with his seeing the game.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: WE KNOW MORE ABOUT THE SUN THAN THE CORE OF THE EARTH—All theories regarding composition, shape and consistency of the interior of our earth are merely speculative. It is assumed that the hard crust, or the cold outer portion of the earth, is about nine miles deep. Beyond that depth the materials of which it is composed are thought to be liquid, or even gaseous. In comparison, we are much better informed about the sun, the mean distance of which is 93,000,000 miles from our planet. RALPH SANDERS RODE A BULL 2,500 MILES—Sanders, mounted on a sturdy bull of the Texas range, arrived in New York City on January 20, 1931, after a 254-day trip from Brownsville, Tex., over a roundabout route covering 2,700 miles. The trip, which started May 12, 1930, was undertaken in the interest of Sanders' health, and it greatly benefited both rider and mount. The latter gained 100 pounds in weight while wearing out seven sets of iron shoes. THE DRONE BEE HAS A GRANDFATHER, BUT NO FATHER—According to Dr. Dzierson, the eminent entomologist, the fertilized queen bee can lay fertilized or unfertilized eggs at will. The drone, or male bee, is a product of the latter. It follows that the drone has a mother and a maternal grandfather, but no male parent.

PAUL WANER UNDER KNIFE

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 19.—(AP.)—Paul Waner, senior member of the Pittsburgh outfielding and hitting firm of Waner and Waner, underwent an operation for an infected left leg at St. John's Hospital here yesterday. Dr. Robert F. Hyland, who performed the operation, said Waner would be in the hospital for an indefinite period.

Waner said his leg became infected just above the ankle after he was bitten recently while swimming at Miami, Fla. He said he did not know what bit him. Waner had been scheduled to report at the Pirates' Paso Robles, Cal., training camp February 28, but Dr. Hyland said it might be late in the training season before he is able to start work.

Waner said that when the wound refused to yield to treatment, he decided to come to St. Louis for the operation which was not regarded as serious, except that it will prevent Big Poison from getting an early start at the training camp.

The operation recalled to baseball fans that Lloyd Waner, Paul's younger brother, and also a Pittsburgh star, was forced to undergo an operation for the removal of his appendix just before the training trip last year. Little Poison's operation failed to treatment as rapidly as had been expected and he was of little value to the Pirates for several months.

A. A. U. BOUTS POPULAR

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—(INS.)—The entire supply of tickets for the National A. A. U. amateur boxing championships here on April 27, 28, 29 and 30 will be sold before the end of March, it was estimated today by members of the local committee. More than 5,000 tickets, most of them combination tickets for the entire four nights, have been sold at the $10 price, while other pasteboards have gone for the one-day price of $3.

SPORT VIGNETTES

Comes to this desk what undoubtedly is the most complete sports record book ever published . . . It is Frank G. Menke's second annual All Sports compilation, which, in addition to listing the accomplishments of last year in all fields, contains the history, to their cradle days, of more than 50 major sports and fills almost 500 carefully edited pages . . . Nothing like it ever has come down the pike, and it is almost unbelievable to think that any man could dig up the great store of information within its covers . . . It truly is THE encyclopaedia of sports, and, if our readers will take our advice, they will buy themselves copies post haste and answer their own queries and thus make our own lot easier . . . It may be ordered from the Eastern Distributing Corporation, 305 East Forty-sixth street, New York City . . . Now this obviously comes under the head of free advertising, but we can't help it . . . Menke has done a distinct service for the sports fans in preparing this volume and we would not be doing right by our customers if we withheld this information from them and neglected to place the volume within their reach.

Incidentally, a new sports magazine has just made its debut . . . It is The Sports Magazine, published in St. Louis, and its first issue is under the date of March . . . Sports magazines come and go and few have a long life, but there undoubtedly is a field for a good one covering a wide range of subjects.

Frank Klaus, the former middleweight champion knows a big-hearted gent who was so affected by the sight of a bread line in New York that he picked out one of the unfortunates and bought him a $100 overcoat so he wouldn't suffer from cold while standing in line awaiting his handout.

Tom Gallery, Hollywood promoter, says of the boxing situation there: . . . "Boxing in California is decidedly on the downgrade. The chief trouble is too many rules and not enough enforcement. If there were enforcement, then a matchmaker could book real fights. We can't as it now stands." . . . Promoters everywhere can say the same thing. Instead of enforcing the rules as they stand on the books, the various boxing commissions are continually twisting them out of all semblance of their original form until nothing but a hodge-podge remains, with the result that boxers, managers, promoters and the commissioners themselves are running around in circles trying to find out what it is all about.

Miss Marion Hollins, National woman golf champion of 1921, and now one of the richest women in the country, is a recent recruit to the thoroughbred racing sport and will campaign her horses in the East . . . The star of her stable is Nevada Queen, a filly for which she paid $15,000 and which has compiled a fine record at Agua Caliente this winter . . . Miss Hollins, by the way, also has starred as a polo-ist, her achievements ranking her as one of the most versatile women in the sporting realm.

Following the luncheon Summers and Pope will meet in exhibition matches on the Keystone Club courts, beginning at 1:30 and 5 p. m.

A team of local amateur squash racquets players will leave for Buffalo tomorrow to compete in the National amateur championship tournament carded for Saturday, Sunday and Monday.

National League Outlook Good, Heydler Says

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 19.—(AP.)—The National League having broken all attendance records last season, expects an even bigger and better pennant race in 1931, according to President John Arnold Heydler.

Mr. and Mrs. Heydler have come to Miami to spend a vacation.

RED SOX GIVE UP LOCAL ACE; SQUAD LEAVES

By JAMES J. LONG.

Another native son was added to the roster of the Pittsburgh Baseball Club today when Second Baseman Bill Regan was purchased by the Pirates from the Boston club of the American League. The purchase was announced this afternoon by President Barney Dreyfuss, soon after the Buccaneer advance guard had departed for the spring training grounds at Paso Robles.

The Regan deal had been hanging fire for some time. The Boston club offered to sell the second sacker to the Pittsburgh club more than a week ago, but at the time President Dreyfuss could not get in touch with Manager Jewel Ens, who had left West Palm Beach, Fla., and was on his way to Pittsburgh.

ENS ADVISES DEAL

As soon as Ens arrived here the matter was put up to him and he at once requested President Dreyfuss to go through with the deal, saying he would be delighted to get Regan and expressing confidence that the local boy would be a great help to the Bucs in the 1931 pennant race.

Ens has been on the lookout for an extra infielder having major league experience and believes that in Regan he has an ideal man for the reserve post. He points out that Bill will be of great service in event of the incapacitation of either George Grantham or Gus Suhr. Regan can step into Grantham's place at second when George is unable to play, and when Suhr is out Grantham can be moved over to first base and Regan can fill the hole at the keystone.

STRONG ON DEFENSE

Regan is rated one of the best defensive players in the big leagues. His second-base play never has left anything to be desired according to the Boston management, his only trouble having been a feeling that he could not hit at Fenway Park. It is believed that in new surroundings Regan will be able to make a batting average in keeping with his fielding mark.

Regan was 32 years old on January 23. His first professional engagement was with the Kitchener club of the Michigan-Ontario League in 1921. He played there two years and served with the Flint club of the same league in 1923 and 1924. In 1925 he was with the Columbus club of the American Association and showed up so well there that early in 1926 the Boston American League club bought his release. He has been the regular second baseman of the Red Sox ever since. He batted .263 in 1926, .274 in 1927, .264 in 1928, .288 in 1929 and .266 last year. He is a right-hand hitter.

The new Pirate, who has spent the winter at his home here, will accompany the second squad of Buccaneers on the trip to the Paso Robles training grounds, leaving Pittsburgh next Wednesday.

REGAN PLEASED

When informed by the Sun-Telegraph of the consummation of the deal Regan expressed himself as perfectly satisfied with the transfer from the American League to the National and as greatly pleased with his new berth.

SPORT SHORTS

ATLANTA.—(AP.)—Charley Root won the decision yesterday as Bobby Jones came out of retirement to pair with Jesse Golden and play Gene Sarazen and Horton Smith to an 18-hole deadlock in a four-ball match.

LOS ANGELES.—(AP.)—Bob Meusel, for many years a star outfielder for the New York Yankees, has played with the Cincinnati Reds last season, has received his unconditional release from the National League club. He said he was free to sign wherever he pleased and preferred a Coast League berth, if possible.

ST. LOUIS.—(AP.)—St. Louis Cardinals have added an eighth club to their chain of baseball properties, purchasing a half interest in the Columbus, Ga., Southern Association club. The Cardinal farm chain now consists of nine clubs.

ST. LOUIS.—(AP.)—Jim Bottomley signed a contract with the Cardinals yesterday for the 1931 season.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—(AP.)—Charles Paddock, veteran track performer, has joined the galaxy of athletic stars recruited by the movies for a series of short pictures, but he is not going to get paid for it. An exception compensation would ruin his amateur standing. Paddock arranged with Carl Laemmle, Jr., associate producer at Universal, to take his part in permission to bring to the screen short films the Olympic Games to be held in Los Angeles next year.

CLEVELAND.—(AP.)—Pat Page, former head football coach at Indiana University, is being considered strongly for a like position at Western Reserve University by the school's new athletic control committee. Reserve officials understand that Page would released from his engagement as assistant to Head Coach A. A. Stagg, at the University of Chicago, if he desired to accept another position.

BOSTON.—(AP.)—The Boston Red Sox Club has announced its 1931 roster complete with receipt of three signed contracts, those of Catcher Harold Fuel, Pitcher Horace Lisenbee and Second Baseman Will Sam Regan. The Red Sox left today for their training camp at Pensacola, Fla.

ANNAPOLIS.—(AP.)—Ray Thompson, Baltimore middle, shattered two Naval Academy records, a national collegiate record and aided in setting another Navy mark, here today, as the Navy tankmen defeated Rutgers, 42 to 29, in setting a new national record of 28.1 seconds for the 50-yard dash, he came within one-tenth of a second of equaling the world's best recognized time.

The twenty-fourth annual University of Pittsburgh interscholastic track and field championships will be staged in Pitt stadium May 9.

MIAMI.—(AP.)—Baseball, like nearly everything else in sport and business and life in general, is awaking the normal levels again after having been, in effect, on a good old-fashioned spree, in the opinion of the National League's chief executive, John Arnold Heydler.

BOXER'S DEATH HELD ACCIDENTAL

CORONER URGES GREATER CARE IN FUTURE

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

A verdict of accidental death was returned today by a jury following an inquest held by Coroner William J. McGregor into the death of Robert Cranshaw, Negro boxer, 20, of Columbus, O., who died in the Passavant Hospital, February 8, after a bout with Marty Gornick, lightweight, of McKeesport, in the Moose Temple January 30.

The jury found that death was due to lobar pneumonia, which developed following an operation for a fractured jaw.

Following the report of the jury, Coroner McGregor in an address, recommended that the Boxing Commission officials take into consideration suggestions made during the testimony to safeguard against a recurrence of such a fatal ending to a bout.

The jury accepted the verdict of Dr. J. W. McMeans, coroner's physician, who performed the autopsy, and the hospital report that the boxer had died of pneumonia. The hospital report stated that the boxer was suffering from a fractured jaw when admitted following the bout, but did not appear to be ill otherwise, and that his condition did not become serious until after an operation had been performed to wire his jaw.

SUGGESTS CHECK-UP

The coroner, in his instructions, told the jury the evidence was that the bout had been fought under the rules and regulations of the boxing commission, which is authorized to sanction such events, and that the rules apparently were abided by; however, if the jury felt the regulations of the commission could stand improvement it was within its province to so recommend.

When the jury reported the death accidental, and resulting from lobar pneumonia following the injury, the coroner asked the members if they had any recommendations to make with regard to the future conduct of bouts. They said they had none, whereupon the coroner addressed himself to Commissioner Havey J. Boyle and other officials of the commission and himself recommended that, if practical, they take into consideration certain points of the testimony and check up on the handling of bouts to bring about closer co-ordination of the workings of the various officials to safeguard against any other such fatal endings.

MANY TESTIFY

The witnesses called were Commissioner Boyle, Inspectors Michael Canavan and A. W. Gallagher, Dr. M. R. Goldman, commission physician; I. D. (Apples) Meyers, the promoter; Al Leever and Bob Butch, seconds of Cranshaw; Paul Leiby, manager of Gornick; Referee Red Robinson, Gornick and Bill Dummer, who testified that he had seen Cranshaw training in a local gymnasium.

The questioning was along the lines of whether or not the commission takes the proper steps to protect boxers. It was admitted that, in cases of preliminary boxers from out of town, little is known of their ability, as was true of Cranshaw. The jury also was asked to determine if the method of physically examining the boxers is as thorough as it should be.

TESTIMONY CONFLICTS

The seconds of the dead boxer testified that he had absorbed considerable punishment and that they had asked him in both the third and fifth rounds if he wanted them to throw in the towel as a token of surrender. Referee Robinson said he went to Cranshaw's corner at the end of one of the rounds and asked him how he felt and received a reassuring reply. These statements conflicted with other testimony by the same witnesses that the boxer never appeared to be in distress and was a dangerous contender to the end of the six-round bout.

SECRET HEARING FLOPS

The hearing that was slated to be held in the office of Boxing Commissioner Havey J. Boyle yesterday afternoon in Jackie Rodgers' attempt to break away from his manager, Johnny Deutsch, failed to materialize because of the fact that Attorney Lou Little, retained by Rodgers, was unable to appear. This was after it had been announced that the hearing would be a star chamber private session with newspapermen being denied admittance, although Commissioner Boyle himself is a sports

Babe Ruth Sets Golf Record in Florida

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Feb. 19. (AP.)—Babe Ruth, Yankee star, and well-known golfer, broke the course amateur record for the season at the Jungle Club yesterday when he turned in a snappy 71, two above par. The Babe went out in a par 34, but in spite of two birdies on the second nine, was two over par with 37.

JACKETS PLAY AT DETROIT TONIGHT

By CARL W. SHATTO.

Pittsburgh's Yellow Jackets can vault from fifth to third place in the International League hockey race by defeating the Detroit Olympics in a league game at Detroit tonight.

London's fourth-placers, one point ahead of the locals in the standings, and Cleveland's third-placers, two points above the Schooley icemen, are not to resume action until tomorrow. A tie with Detroit will give Pittsburgh the point needed to tie London for the fourth notch—a win will give the Jackets the two points needed to put 'em up on an even footing with Cleveland. London and Cleveland each have played one game more than the locals, so tonight's game is a case of everything to gain and nothing to lose.

WIN EXPECTED

The decisive manner in which the Jackets outplayed the Olympics here last Tuesday indicates that Pittsburgh will be in third place by tomorrow morning. The Schooley skaters have defeated the Olympics six times in six meetings this season. One game at Detroit, in addition to tonight's fray, remains on the Pittsburgh-Detroit card. Local fans won't be surprised if the Jackets sweep the season series and establish a league record.

A season record, too, now is within easy reach of the Jackets. London owns a winning string of seven games, the best of the campaign, and no team has traveled more than seven games without tasting of defeat. By winning tonight the locals will extend their success string to five wins and two ties, and should they down Buffalo Saturday they will be in possession of a new mark of eight straight games without a setback.

SCHOOLEY TO DIRECT PLAY

Continuing the policy adopted recently when the stretch drive for play-off positions got under way, Roy D. Schooley, president and manager of the local club, sent his stalwarts to Detroit at noon yesterday so that their night-before-the-battle might be free of travel. Schooley followed his men to the Michigan metropolis last night, and will be in the driver's seat when the skirmish for third place gets under way.

The Jackets now are in better condition for a severe test than they have been in recent frays. Goalie Albie Cox is making slow but sure progress in his efforts to shake off an attack of flu, and Lloyd McIntyre, speedy right wing, has almost completely recovered from a severe cold which has been with him for the last fortnight.

The Jackets will go from Detroit to Fort Erie, Ont., where they will meet Buffalo's pace-setters on Saturday. The last-place Stars will be hosts to the locals in Syracuse Sunday night.

DIANA FISHWICK DEFEATED

PALM BEACH, Fla., Feb. 19.—(AP.)—Playing sensational golf Helen Hicks, sturdy New York girl, scored an international golf victory today by routing Miss Diana Fishwick, British champion, 6 up and 5 to go, in the semi-final of the Florida women's championship.

Miss Hicks will contest in the final with Miss Virginia Van Wie, of Chicago, who disposed of Miss Peggy Wattles, Buffalo, also by a score of 6 and 5, in the second semi-final.

Topping, Augustus Win at Belleair

BELLEAIR, Fla., Feb. 19.—(AP.)—Henry J. Topping, Greenwich, Conn., defending champion, advanced to the semi-finals of the annual Washington birthday golf tournament by defeating Kimball Salisbury, Chicago, 6 and 5. Ellsworth Augustus, Cleveland, medalist, won a 6-and-5 decision over Frank Blossom, Chicago.

W. Stanton Barbour, Bronxville, N. Y., eliminated H. A. B. Dunning, Baltimore, 7 and 6, and Clayton Wall, Oshkosh, Wis., defeated J. G. Bishop, Summit, N. J., 5 and 3.

Irish Stars to Attend Funeral of Weibel

ERIE, Pa., Feb. 19. (AP.)—Some if not all all of Notre Dame's 1924 football team, made famous by the Four Horsemen, will attend the funeral service here Saturday of Dr. John D. Weibel, a guard on that great eleven.

Weibel died in Pittsburgh Tuesday following an operation. The services will be held at 10 o'clock Saturday morning at St. Peter's Cathedral.

Dr. Weibel served in 1927 as an assistant football coach at Duquesne University, whose athletic director, Elmer Layden, was one of the Four Horsemen. Weibel played on the Notre Dame teams of 1922, 1923 and 1924.

SCATTER VICTOR

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—(AP.)—Scatter, 4-year-old son of Hf Gallahad III, won his first race since the fall days at Jamaica when he led a small but speedy field home in the Coastream handicap at Hialeah Park, Miami, yesterday.

MRS. HURD MEDALIST

HAMILTON, Bermuda, Feb. 19.—(AP.)—Mrs. Dorothy Campbell Hurd, former national golf champion of the United States, won the medal yesterday in the annual Belmont Manor ladies golf championship qualifying round with a card of 87.

The American Oil Company produces both Amoco-Gas, the original special motor fuel, and the New Orange American Gas, the best gas selling at regular gas price.

In no sense are they competitors. They are designed to supply two separate fields--and to give the best possible value in their respective price classes.

If you are a user of "regular" gas--get acquainted with Orange American--selling at regular gas price but out-performing any "regular" gas you have ever tried.

If you want the very highest type of performance, and the lowest cost per mile--drive on Amoco-Gas. Costs a few cents more at the pump--but saves you dollars as the miles pile up on your speedometer.

RULING HITS GREENSBURG, WILKINSBURG

The eligibility committee of the Western Pennsylvania Interscholastic Athletic League last night ruled Wilson Brooks, Greensburg High School star guard ineligible for having played professional basketball and ordered all games in which he participated this season forfeited.

The ruling eliminates Greensburg from the race in Section 10 where it was tied for first place with Scottdale and will draw Uniontown, which brought the protest against Brooks into the front rank deadlock.

J. Foster Gehrett, secretary of the committee, said Brooks has played as recently as April 5, 1930, with a team known as the Semler quintet in Westmoreland County and that this combination was professional in character.

LEMMER OUT

James Lemmer, Wilkinsburg player, also was declared ineligible for not being a Wilkinsburg resident and ordered all games in which he has played this season forfeited to his team's opponents in Section 11. Wilkinsburg is in second place and Swissvale in first in that section.

The committee ruled that Brooks will not be eligible to represent Greensburg for one year, dating from April 5, 1930. Uniontown's protest was presented by Principal J. A. Luboldo.

DRAWING MADE

Committee members attending were H. W. Crane, president of the W. P. I. A. L. and principal of Monongahela High; Meyers, B. Horner, Washington High; B. B. Smith, Connellsville; J. F. Bowen, McKeesport, and Gehrett.

The drawing for the first round of the title elimination series follows:

Ford City, Section XI, vs. New Brighton, at Beaver Falls, Section IV.
Washington, Section XII, vs. McDonald, at Cecil, Section XIV.

The possibilities of deadlocks loom in Section III, where Butler has a chance to even matters with New Castle when they meet at Butler. New Brighton and Beaver Falls will likely battle it out at Beaver Falls next week and a tie is possible in Section IV.

Giles Gets Victory At Southern Pines

SOUTHERN PINES, N. C., Feb. 19.—(AP.)—Ellsworth Giles, Jr., of Pittsburgh, the medalist, came through the first round match play in the Atlantic Coast golf tournament of the Southern Pines Country Club in good form yesterday by defeating E. C. Stevens, Southern Pines, 6 and 4. Giles is a former Princeton links star.

Dr. A. M. Brown, Franklin, Pa., advanced to the semi-finals through the default of N. C. Durham, Brooklyn.

In the Women's division, Mabel Gustaffson, De Kalb, Ill., the medalist, defeated Wallie Flashlander, Southern Pines, 6 and 5. Mrs. H. N. Fullerbrown, Mohawah, N. J., won over Mrs. Allen Fink, Pittsburgh, 6 and 5.

TILDEN BEATS KOZELUH

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—(AP.)—William T. Tilden, II, defeated Karel Kozeluh, of Czechoslovakia, world professional champion, in straight sets in their much ballyhooed tennis match here last night. The scores were 6-4, 6-2, 6-4.

The little Czech acclaimed by many the finest stickler ever to play the game, was no match for Big Bill, who was blazing away with all his old blinding speed.

A crowd estimated at 10,000 gave Tilden a great ovation as he sent an ace spinning across the net to hit the white cloth sideline and end the match, and then ran to the net to shake hands with his victim.

as a Pirate and a chance to play in his home town.

"It's just fine," said Bill. "I hope I'll be able to give satisfaction to the Pittsburgh Club and the Pittsburgh fans. I am in good shape and surely will try my best."

It will not be necessary for Regan to sign a Pirate contract. He signed with the Red Sox about two weeks ago and under baseball law the Pittsburgh Club now merely assumes the Boston contract.

Bucs Off for Camp

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

EN ROUTE WITH THE PIRATES TO PASO ROBLES, Feb. 19.—As the Pirate pitchers and catchers approached Chicago this afternoon, the athletes were trusting their fives. "The Rainbow," which is the name of the crack Pennsylvania Railroad train, was a happy portent for the big doings of the summer. Truly, Jewel Ens and his athletes would consider a World Series honor as the right sort of a pot of gold.

Ens' dozen was enjoying the trip immensely. The train left Pittsburgh at 9.50 and soon was sweeping over the pretty country of Ohio. The party is due to dock at Chicago about 7.30 tonight. A quick transfer to the Chicago and Northwestern station will then be completed, after which the tourists will have something like two hours to themselves before leaving for Omaha.

LEAVE IN SNOWSTORM

The Pirates jumped off for camp with King Winter as master of ceremonies. The blustery snowstorm, however, did not dull the enthusiasm of the players and the outpouring of friends that gathered at the station.

Prominent among those present as the Buccos sailed were Barney Dreyfuss, owner of the club, and Honus Wagner, whose very name stirs wondrous feelings whenever the Pirates are brought into discussions.

Wagner will leave tonight for Paterson, N. J., where on February 24, the occasion of his fifty-seventh birthday, he will be honored by the fans of that city. The famed Flying Dutchman was starring for the Paterson club about 35 years ago when he graduated to the National League where he was to make gripping history.

Vice President Sam Dreyfuss was unable to accompany the first squad owing to illness. Manager Ens is looking after the business details in the absence of the younger Dreyfuss. Sam is likely to join the club later.

Aside from Manager Ens, the squad out of Pittsburgh contained only six players. They were Steve Swetonic and Glenn Spencer, pitchers; Rolly Hemsley, Eddie Phillips and Joe Bird, catchers, and James Dempsey, outfielder of the semi-pro ranks of Pittsburgh, who will be given a thorough tryout by the Buccos.

DUE AT CAMP SUNDAY

When the party reaches Chicago tonight it will be augmented by the appearance of another small squad. In this group will be Ervin Bram, Andy Bednar, George Grant and James Bivin, pitcher; Hal Finney, catcher; Ben Sankey and Tony Piet, infielders; Oscar Stanage, coach, and Dr. Charles A. Jorgensen, trainer. Others will be picked up at Omaha and Cheyenne.

The news regarding Paul Waner threw a damper on the Pirate party but Manager Ens was hopeful that the early accounts of the players condition were exaggerated.

writer. The meeting has been rescheduled for tomorrow afternoon when it is said Boyle will inform attorneys for Rodgers and his manager that they will have to take the matter of abrogating the contract to court, which they would have to do anyway unless they can reach an agreement inasmuch as it is a regularly executed legal document.

Marcus Noie appeared at commission headquarters yesterday and asked that his contract with Deutsch also be cancelled. His case was taken under advisement.

Between Rounds

Allen Beatty, Negro welterweight, formerly of McKeesport, now is living in Homewood and is under the management of Mike Ray. He ascribes his recent reverses to trouble with his former pilot and says he is in good shape again and looking to take on the boxers who have defeated him.

Matchmaker Jules Beck is trying to book Ted Ross, of Chicago, and Tiger Joe Wyatt, of Monessen, for the eight-round semi-final to the Willie Davis-Midget Wolgast non-title bout which will mark the return of boxing to Motor Square Garden, Morris Reed, Inc., have booked for the Garden Mondays night of last week, but Ross had to pull out because of an injury.

Charley Baxter, Louisville lightweight star, has been laid up with a broken right hand since mid-December, but will be ready to resume boxing again soon.

Charles Jones, formerly of McKeesport, now of Louisville, signed to fight Sonny Boy Goodwin at Louisville and at the same time announced he has signed to box Jack Stanfield at Memphis, soon.

WEST PENN CUP GAME CARDED

By TOM BIRKS.

With the West Penn semi-final round scheduled for Saturday afternoon at the Bridgeville Speedway, and the Hermitte-at-Galatin game scheduled for Sunday, local soccerites of the district should witness a couple of fine games this week-end.

On Sunday, Morgan goes to Cleveland in the second round of the National Challenge cup, meeting the Slavia team. From local sentiment, it appears a record crowd will make the trip with Manager Mangus and his outfit.

The semi-final game at the Speedway finds two of the best cup fighting teams in the Keystone League all set to clash. Dunlevy and Cecil have made great names for themselves as cup fighters, and there is reason to feel this game will be one of the keenest ever staged in the West Cup title race.

The Central League met on Tuesday to decide the Pierpoint-versus-Rovers protest, involving Frey, Rovers' fullback. Much evidence was taken, but the teams and league officials failed to get anywhere, so another meeting has been called for Monday evening, when an effort to bring Referee Couch and Player Frey together will be made.

The West Penn meets Tuesday, and the Mon-Yough League meets Wednesday to discuss the proposed cup competition sponsored by Honus Wagner. This will be classed as a junior soccer cup.

TRINITY ROYALS WIN

The Trinity Cathedral Royals won the lead in the Pittsburgh Senior Church League by stopping Mt. Troy Presbyterian, 48-21, last night. The lineup:

M.-A. Loop to Set Schedule Sunday

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Feb. 19.—(AP.)—The 1931 baseball schedule for the 12-club Middle Atlantic League will be worked on and perhaps concluded at a meeting here Sunday of the schedule committee. A 126-game card is contemplated, but officials said it might be extended to 132 because of the expanded nature of the league this season.

The opening date is set tentatively for May 7 or 8 and the closing date for September 12 or 13. The league operates on a split-season basis.

The schedule committee includes Joseph Doringer, Fairmont, W. Va.; U. J. Shonhardt, Johnstown, Pa., and J. E. Wilson, Charleroi, Pa., presidents of their respective clubs.

BROOKLYN PROS TO PLAY HERE

By JULIUS LEVIN

The South Side Market House once more becomes a center for professional basketball activities tomorrow night when the Fintex, first half County League champions, engage the crack Brooklyn Visitations, leaders in the American Professional League.

The appearance of the Visitations will give Pittsburgh's followers of the popular winter indoor sport a chance to see one of the greatest basketball quintets in the country, a quintet that promises to carry off both halves of the American League race. One of the most impressive victories scored by the pro leaguers was a 40-12 decision over the Toledo Red Men, a team composed of former New York Celtics and Cleveland Rosenblum, who have held the championship for three years.

VETS IN LINEUP

The lineup of the Brooklyn Club will not be a strange one to local fans, as Cooney and Conaty, two of the mainstays, played with the old Brooklyn quintet against the Amerita club before that team disbanded some years ago.

The Brooklyn game is one of four arranged by the Fintex management this week. Tonight it plays the Young Men's Hebrew Association on the Y. floor in the "rubber" clash of a three-game series. The Bellefielders copped the first decision and Fintex the second. The Y. Varsity B. team meets North Borroughs in the preliminary.

WEST PENN GAME

The Ray Schneiders meet Penn Five at Sharpsburg in the only West Penn League game, while in the County Amateur League, Hill Top Y. goes to Tarentum.

The Goldenson Vanities, Tri-state champions, seek their thirty-seventh straight victory at the expense of McDonald at McDonald. This team has not suffered a setback in two years of play.

Fintex, first-half champion, will play the Duquesne Lafayettes, second-half titlist, in the South Side Market House on Wednesday night in the first game of the championship post-season series of the County League. A second game will be played on the Duquesne High School floor, Tuesday, March 3.

Blood Transfusion For Johnson Today

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 19.—(AP.)—The condition of Ban Johnson, former president of the American League, continued very serious last night. A blood transfusion will be performed today, his physician, Dr. Robert F. Hyland, announced.

The condition of the veteran baseball leader, who has been confined at St. John's Hospital since January 26, took a turn for the worse Tuesday night and since then has been described by Dr. Hyland as very serious, but not immediately critical. Johnson is 65, and has been in poor health for several years.

BOXING BILL PASSED

OLYMPIA, Wash., Feb. 19.—(AP.)—The American Legion six-round boxing bill legalizing professional boxing and wrestling in Washington was passed yesterday by the House of the Washington Legislature, 52 to 45. The measure has passed the Senate, but a minor amendment will send it to conference.

ST. VINCENT'S BEATEN BY CUBS, 47-37

WEST POINT, Feb. 19.—(AP.)—Army came from behind in a thrilling basketball game yesterday to defeat Carnegie Tech, 27 to 26, but it took a lot of strenuous stalling and freezing the ball to hold the winning margin through the last minute of play.

Outplayed through the first half and trailing, 10-13, the Cadets rallied brilliantly and drew away to a big lead. Carnegie staged a counter-rally soon afterward, and cut down the Army lead to a single point where the final freezing held it. Bruce Epler, leader of Army's winning rally, was high scorer of the game with five field goals and two foul shots for a 12-point total. The lineup:

Army—27		Car. Tech—26
Stecker	F	Nease
Kreuger	F	Smith
Epler	C	Stents
Beason	G	Fergus
Blanning	G	Leonard

Substitutes—Army, Herb, Tech, Webster, Armentrout, Fox, Siegel, Field goals—Stecker 2, Greuger 2, Epler 5, Herb, Nease, Smith 2, Stents 3, Fergus 2, Leonard, Foul goals—Army, 2; Carnegie 8. Umpire—Shaw. Referee—Tobey.

PITT RESERVES WIN

LATROBE, Pa., Feb. 19. Led by Leech, who scored 22 points, the Pitt Reserves, in charge of Coach George Kowallis, won out over St. Vincent's, 47-37, here last night. St. Vincent's hopped off to an early lead at the beginning of the game and at one time held a 12-2 advantage on the visitors. Leech went on a rampage just before the half ended, scoring five goals in rapid succession and Pitt led at half time, 27-19. The lineup:

St. Vincent—37		Pitt Res.—47
Genovese	F	Weinbeck
Rodner	F	Kowallis
Carney	C	Baker
Crean	G	Dwelle
Westfall (C)	G	Leech

Substitutions: Pitt—Schenkirt, Hughes, Brown. Field goals: Leech 11, Dwelle, Baker 5, Kowallis 2, Rodner 2, Genovese, Bodner 2, Carney, Crean 2. Free throws: St. Vincent's, 7 out of 16; Pitt, 3 out of 11. Referee, Wallace. Umpire—Dalzell.

Building Up Big Fights

By IKE DORGAN, The Man Behind Tex Rickard's Fistic Ballyhoos.

CHAPTER XXXIV.

Tex Rickard didn't waste any time in signing Jess Willard to a contract to fight little Jack Dempsey.

Tex met Willard in Chicago and the big champion came to terms at once. All along he had been harboring the notion that he would have to defend his own crown against Fred Fulton. The fellow was more like his size, but the knockout by Dempsey had ruined Fulton as the real attraction in Willard's eyes. After all, Jess had one eye open for business and his title had not brought in the shower of gold that he had counted on. He had taken pot luck in the fight with Johnson and wound up not getting a dime out of it. Is it any wonder then that Jess was looking for a big shot? He, like Rickard, rather regretted the passing of Fulton as the real challenger.

Jack Kearns

Dempsey would be a cakewalk, Willard thought. Too small. He told Tex that and wondered what the public would think about it.

"The public won't mind. We'll build up Dempsey until he is as large as you. We'll keep talking about his size and muscles and his one-round knockouts. People will forget all about how large you are, Jess. You just leave that to me. You see if I'm not right. The only time they'll realize that you're so much bigger than Dempsey will be when you get into the ring and pose for your picture before the bell rings. By golly, I think I'll even keep 'em from taking such a picture! I'll make Dempsey sit on his chair until the bell rings. The fight will be on before the crowd will have time to take pity on Dempsey or the Humane Society jump in to save him. Sign here, Jess," was Tex's song.

IKE OUT IN COLD

And Jess signed. Tex had crooned him into doing it without the least trouble. Jess believed in Tex. All those fellows did. Tex came back to New York with Willard's signature. The big champion was to get $100,000 flat, the largest amount ever guaranteed a fighter in the history of the world.

I was called in and made the official press agent for the show. We hadn't closed with Dempsey. But it was going to be like rolling off a log. Kearns and Dempsey were fearful that someone else might beat them to the punch and get Willard ahead of them. Harry Wills, the Brown Panther, and even Fulton were flirting around with the chance.

For one thing, I didn't declare myself in on the match. It was my idea and I could have swung Tex and Kearns into giving me a bit of the profits, but I let it slide, and I've always kicked myself for it. I didn't get a necktie out of the Willard and Dempsey fight. Rickard might never have promoted it but for my urging. Tortorich, of New Orleans, would have signed Willard for that $75,000 guarantee if Tex had not gone to Chicago and pinned Jess down himself.

KEARNS HOLDS OUT

There was no back room signing of articles, with popping wine bottles and a lot of tin-eared hasbeens looking into the camera. How Rickard hated that stunt. He wanted to lift boxing out of the old customs. He was strong on dignity and he didn't think boxing was elevated a single bit with all that back room display of good fellowship when it came to signing the articles.

Tex had the thing bottled up so tightly that he was in a position to give orders. And they were to the point. There would be a classy session. He invited the newspapermen to the Biltmore Hotel in New York to sit in on the session with Kearns.

Jack was holding out for a $30,000 guarantee.

"Cain't give you that much money," said Tex. "These are war times and there is no use of my going broke on this thing if I can help it.

"I intend to help it. I'll give you $25,000, the amount Ike Dorgan first submitted to you," said Tex.

Kearns was as stubborn as a bull pup. He was driving a bargain and he wanted to get tops. Tex hung fire at $25,000 and Kearns was just as sure that he must have the $30,000 for Dempsey's end. Tex could "have the picture rights, the concessions and all that, but Dempsey must have his $30,000."

Ridiculously small amount when you think back on the tremendous sums Dempsey got in later fights which he fought for Rickard. But Tex thought he was giving Dempsey $25,000 to get a thrashing and Tex didn't rate drubbings that high.

Kearns went from one huddle to another. He'd consult this fellow and that one, and Tex, to throw Kearns off the subject, began to talk about the marvelous oil development he had bought in Texas.

"Rickard Texas Oil is the name of my company and I'm goin' to make all you fellers rich," he said. "This oil stock is coming out on the curb in a few days. You fellers kin make yo'selves rich if you listen to me. I'll let you all in at $5 a share. It is coming out on the curb at $7. We'll all be wealthy."

"All rich but me. Let's get down to this championship match. Never mind this castor oil stock. I'm here for business," said Kearns, all burned up about Rickard's oil and his apparent indifference to the match-making.

"Kearns, I'll tell you what I'll do," said Tex, finally.

"I'll give you that $25,000 and I'll add $2,500 for training expenses. Last call for breakfast."

"I won't take anything but $30,000," mumbled Kearns.

It looked like everything would be off. Tex got up and started to walk out. He was trying a ruse on Kearns. He knew how anxious the Doc was to get the match. The chance might never come again.

SCRIBES VOTE ON PURSE

Suddenly Rickard turned on Kearns.

"I've got a proposition, Jack," he said. "I'll take a gamble with you and the newspaper boys here. We'll let them settle this thing. They'll vote on it, whether I give you $27,500 or $30,000. Let them drop their votes into a hat, either way. If they say $30,000, I'll pay Dempsey that amount. Boys, will you write your vote—$27,500 or $30,000? I'll leave it all to you fellers."

"Bet," snapped Jack.

Before the wily Kearns could do any lobbying, the vote was taken and only three newspaper writers out of 20 or more voted to give Kearns the $30,00. He had to accept the lesser amount and that is how the match was made. Bat Masterson, Vince Treanor, Hype Igoe, Tad, Johnny Pollok, Eddie Forbes, Eddie Curley, Bill McGeehan, Walter St. Dennis, Francis Albertanti and several other well-known writers wished $2,500 out of Jack Dempsey's life for no particular reason.

MY EXPERIENCES IN THE WORLD WAR

FOCH FINALLY WON TO IDEA OF ARMY

opinion. The interests of the Allies are identical; we must not lose sight of that, otherwise the unity of command has no meaning. We must consider what is best for the common cause.

Lloyd George.

"What is the situation today? The British army has had heavy fighting and has suffered great losses. All available drafts have been sent to France, and we shall send all who are available in May and June. This would be the case even if all the Americans who arrive in Europe during these months should be assigned to the British army.

Leaders Cite Losses

"At present certain British divisions have been so severely handled that they cannot be reconstituted. Gen. Foch will remember the number."

"Yes, 10," Foch answered.

"As we cannot again put them in line," Mr. Lloyd George continued, "they must be replaced by new units. The Germans are now fighting with the object of using up our effectives. If they can do this without exhausting their own reserves they will some time deal us a blow which we shall not be able to parry.

"In the meantime, I suggest that the decision for the allotment of the American troops for June be taken up when that month arrives. In May, in fact, either of our two armies may be hard pressed. That is the one which should be reinforced. It is not desirable now to decide how troops arriving in June should be allotted."

To this, Foch replied:

"It is undeniable that the British army is now exhausted; so let it receive immediate reinforcement in May. But lately the French have had grave losses, notable at Montdidier, and both during the last few days have been fighting shoulder to shoulder. So American aid is now needed almost as much for France as for Great Britain. Above this question of aid to the French or to the British is aid to the Allies.

"We are agreed that the American Army is to reinforce the British army at once; in June we, too, shall need infantry and machine gun units. So let us make the agreement for June at once by saying: the same shipment of infantry and machine guns as for May. If there is tonnage available we shall devote it, after that, to the elements necessary for filling up the American divisions. I am sure that Gen. Pershing, with his generosity and his breadth of view, will grant the fairness of this view and will extend for June the agreement decided upon for May."

Parries Agreement

Whereupon Mr. Lloyd George gave support to the principle, saying that British recruits would not be available until August and he understood it was the same for France, when both would be able to furnish their own recruits. He then asked that the May program be extended over June, in which M. Clemenceau joined.

In reply, I said:

"I do not suppose that we are to understand that the American Army is to be entirely at the disposal of the French and British commands."

M. Clemenceau said that of course this was not the intention.

Continuing, I said:

"Speaking for my government and myself, I must insist upon our intention to have our own army. The principle of unity of command must prevail in our army. It must be complete under its own command.

"I should like to have a date fixed when this will be realized. I should like to make it clear that all American troops are not to be with the British, as there are five divisions with the French now and there will be two more in a short time.

"As to the extension of the May agreement to June, I am not prepared to accept it. The troops arriving in June will not be available for the front before the end of July or the middle of August. So we have the whole month of May ahead before deciding whether an emergency is likely to arise in June. I have explained to Lord Milner and Gen. Foch why I do not wish to commit the American Army so long in advance. If need be, I shall recommend the extension into June. I can see no reason for it now."

Discusses Tonnage

Mr. Lloyd George spoke again, and said that as a representative of the British Government he fully approved the principle of an American army.

"It would not be reasonable or even honorable," he continued, "to consider the American Army as a reservoir from which we can draw. It is to our advantage to have a powerful American army as soon as possible to fight besides us, and as head of the British Government I accept the principle. However, at present we are engaged in what is perhaps the decisive battle of the war. If we lose this battle, we shall need tonnage to take home what there is left of the British and American armies.

"What is our best hope of winning this battle?

"The decisive months will perhaps be those of September, October, perhaps later. If the American Army could intervene at that time it would suit us all. I have no reason to believe that these two opinions are incompatible, but we should not wait until the end of May to decide, for questions of tonnage are involved which we must go into now."

He proposed that the question of continuing the May program into June be held in abeyance two weeks. He then brought up the question of the use of slower ships for troops, and thought 30,000 or 40,000 might be transported in these ships. Both Admiral Sims and I had already pressed that point with the government.

Mr. Lloyd George calculated that the British would be able to transport 150,000 per month as a maximum, and that we could bring over 40,000 to 50,000, which would allow us to include the auxiliary services required to complete our divisions and organize our own army. But he asked that priority in embarkation be given the infantry and machine gun units.

I approved this request up to six divisions, and stated that toward the end of May we could decide whether the program was to be continued into June.

Foch Favors Army

Then Gen. Foch announced that he, too, favored the formation of an American army.

"Nobody is more for the constitution of a national American army than I," he said, "for I know how much more an army is worth when fighting under its own commander and under its own flag. But now the needs are immediate; there is a battle to be won or a battle to be lost. I ask for the continuation of the May program.

"Gen. Pershing asks that we transport the elements necessary for the constitution of his army; I am told that the tonnage will allow this; all the better; but in two weeks we shall all be dispersed, so we ought to decide today to continue in June what was decided on for May. I ask Lord Milner, as well as Gen. Pershing, to join me after the meeting to sign an agreement."

Lord Milner

Replying that I was glad to hear Gen. Foch express himself so strongly in favor of an American army and that no one more fully appreciated the present situation, I said that it did not appear necessary for the Council to decide today.

Tomorrow: Foch asserts rights as Commander-in-Chief, but Pershing won't give in on troop disposition.

DOUGHBOYS GETTING A LITTLE HELP WITH THEIR LAUNDRY FROM FRENCH PEASANTS

More Business Leaders Indorse Relief Program

Leaders of Pittsburgh finance and industry continue to give strong indorsement to the Allegheny County Emergency Association's plan of stabilizing employment here by putting men back to work. Among the indorsements today were:

I. LAMONT HUGHES, President of the Carnegie Steel Company: I heartily approve the general plan of the committee to provide work wherever possible, instead of direct charity, and will give my best efforts in support of the plan.

GEORGE G. CRAWFORD, President of the Jones and Laughlin Steel Corporation: We are pleased to participate in this practical effort that undertakes to solve unemployment by providing work, instead of charity. The Pittsburgh Plan, as it is becoming known throughout the nation, appears to be upon the most wholesome basis of any yet in operation. The plan should tend toward acceleration of industrial activity by providing markets for labor and materials to be consumed in permanent improvements.

JAMES RAE, Secretary-Treasurer of the Arbuthnot-Stephenson Company: In giving the response of our company to the appeal of the Allegheny County Emergency Association, we do so, heartily indorsing this progressive movement, which will undoubtedly aid in putting men "back to work" in our communities. This Pittsburgh Plan develops practical and workable measures to promote stability of employment, as well as carefully providing for necessary emergency relief. The reacting business effects of the working out of this plan will certainly aid to hasten business recovery in our districts.

WILLIAM STANBOROUGH SUTTON, of Sutton & Co.: In the present emergency, I think the "Pittsburgh Plan" of aiding employment is very sound and constructive, combining as it does the elements of relief and good business practice.

FRED E. SMITH, President Charles H. Lovsey Co.: The emergency association's employment plan is a good one. We have the utmost confidence in it. All employers should get behind it to insure the speedy economic recovery of the Pittsburgh area.

A. C. BEYMER, President, Keystone National Bank: We are very much in favor of the "Pittsburgh Plan" of stimulating employment. All corporations and employed persons should give it their aid. No better method of coping with the present situation has ever been suggested.

JAMES H. MATTHEWS, President J. H. Matthews Co.: The employment plan of the Allegheny County Emergency Association is striking at the depression in a broader way than any other yet advanced. We believe all the workers in the county will be benefited by it and we predict a successful outcome for it.

J. K. McKINLEY, President, Columbia Ice Company: I cannot say too much in favor of this plan. I believe it is the best devised and feel certain it will do much good to bring about a return of confidence in industry. It will help the worker by giving him work, and the public at large by bringing about general improvements.

MORGAN B. SCHILLER, President, American Tubular Elevator Company: It is the only logical plan yet offered to relieve unemployment to any great extent. I feel certain it will help to restore the labor balance locally.

HARRY F. DOMHOFF, President, Acord Lumber Company: I'm in favor of any plan that gives relief. I believe this program is feasible and is going to help stabilize labor in this district.

G. H. KANN, President, Pittsburgh Crushed Steel Company: The stabilization of employment by the provision of work on a large scale undoubtedly will bring a rapid business recovery to the Pittsburgh district. The Allegheny County Emergency Association is to be congratulated on outlining a program which will provide work, raise the economic status of its workers and add to public improvements at the same time.

GEORGE H. DANNER, President, Pittsburgh Piping and Equipment Company: Our firm is enthusiastic over the soundness of the Emergency Association's employment plan and will aid it in any way possible. We believe it to be practical and workable.

J. WILLIS DALZELL, of J. Willis Dalzell Co.: The employment plan of the Emergency Association is a good idea that is being handled properly. It is a great improvement over the dole system.

F. L. ARENSBERG, President, Vesuvius Crucible Company: There is an urgent need for the Allegheny County Emergency Association's employment plan. Those who donate promptly to it will facilitate its operation for the good of the community.

Can't Work in Rain, Must Go To Jail

HAMILTON, O., Feb. 19—(AP.)—The Chinese who don't fight when it rains will have nothing on George Bowling.

Bowling, in court for carrying concealed weapons, pleaded that his family would starve if he had to go to jail.

Judge Alphonse J. Pater sympathized. He was pleased to learn that Bowling works outdoors. "You cannot work when it rains," decided the court, "therefore on the next three rainy days you will be confined in jail."

Eastern Rails Plan Huge Expenditures

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—(AP.)—The Street hears that the leading eastern railroads contemplate the expenditure of between $500,000,000 and $700,000,000 for improvements in the next few years.

In addition to the Pennsylvania, which has announced it would disburse $175,000,000 within two years and a half, the Times said the New York Central would spend $250,000,000, the Van Sweringen system $100,000,000, the Baltimore and Ohio $35,000,000, and smaller roads in proportion.

Auburn Shipments Show Good Gain

CHICAGO, Feb. 19.—Shipments of Auburn and Cord cars in the first 45 days of 1931 totaled 3,371, as against 2,343 in the 1930 period and 2,212 in 1929, according to R. H. Faulkner, president of Auburn Automobile Company. Auburn has more than 7,000 unfilled orders.

Bank Acceptance Rates Advanced

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—Some leading dealers have advanced rates on bankers acceptances for all maturities one-eighth of 1 per cent. New rates are:

EVENING SUN-TELEGRAPH MARKETS

Stocks Move Up — Local Trading Dull

STOCK MARKET GOES HIGHER QUIETLY

Bulls Display Caution as Steels, Coppers, Utilities Made Moderate Progress

Bulls appeared to have been tamed by recent setbacks and willing to proceed at a pace more in keeping with the moderate pace of business recovery. It has been no secret in Wall Street that conservative banking interests viewed the tendency to stir up a widespread fever of speculation at this time as unhealthy and some observers express the opinion that blocks of stock were dropped into the market earlier in the week as a warning to overzealous bulls.

Steels, coppers, utilities, food shares and miscellaneous industrials made moderate progress. Rails and oils were still inclined to hold back.

The steel shares moved up further in response to the somewhat brighter news from the automobile industry. Republic Steel which is largely dependent on the motor trade was reported to have stepped up its ingot output to 80 per cent of capacity, which places this third unit in the industry well ahead of the industry as a whole, which is working at only little more than 50 per cent.

While the sudden improvement in automotive demand is admittedly encouraging, the steel trade is nonetheless inclined to view it conservatively. It appears that motor makers underestimated their raw material demands and have placed several rush orders. The industry wonders how well the demand will be maintained when these orders are filled. Motor executives state that the recent increases in output have been in response to genuine dealer requirements to satisfy public buying. Motor output is still well below the levels necessary to bring 1931 production up to the generally estimated 4,000,000 units or more, but the second quarter of the year probably will tell the tale.

Copper shares were helped by the third ¼-cent-a-pound price increase in recent weeks, carrying the red metal price up to 10¼ cents. The sudden and temporary advance from 9½ to 12 cents a few months ago has apparently taught producers to go slowly in their efforts to re-establish the metal at a profitable level. With stocks on hand now definitely on the decline, hopes for success of the present move are more sanguine. Silver also again firmed, although the trade was not very hopeful of definite improvement unless some international agreement is reached.

EXPORT COPPER PRICE RAISED

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—(AP.)—The price of export copper advanced one-quarter of a cent today to 10.55 cents a pound, c. i. f. European base ports.

The rise followed an improved demand in both domestic and export markets which resulted yesterday in the disappearance of 10-cent copper from the domestic market. Demand in the domestic market was more than equal to the supply available at 10¼ cents delivered. The indication is that further advance in price is probable later this week or early next.

BOSTON, Feb. 19.—The American Smelting and Refining Company has advanced the price of lead 10 points to 4.60 cents a pound.

SHANGHAI, Feb. 19.—(AP.)—The Mexican dollar dropped to a new low of 19.79 cents gold here today, but strengthened slightly upon circulation of reports from Washington that the American Senate likely would urge international effort to stabilize the price of silver.

Brunswick Dealers Attend Meeting

At the meeting of Brunswick radio dealers, held yesterday in the William Penn Hotel, attended by approximately 400 radio dealers from the tri-state territory, C. T. McKelvey, newly appointed sales manager for the Brunswick Radio Corporation, delivered the principal address.

Short talks were also given by Sidney Schwartz, sales promotion manager; T. J. Smith, district manager, and Frank Natwick, radio sales manager for the J. A. Williams Company.

Legge Sees Board Holding Entire Carryover

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—(AP.)—The possibility that the grain stabilization corporation might hold as much as 200,000,000 bushels of wheat by July 1, was seen today by Chairman Legge of the farm board.

He said that should this possibility materialize the 200,000,000 bushels would comprise nearly all of the domestic carryover.

Holdings of cash wheat of the Stabilization Corporation, Legge estimated, approximately 100,000,000 bushels.

Stock Exchange Topics

Caterpillar Tractor's First Quarter Net Put At $1.75 Share.

Estimates have been heard that the earnings of Caterpillar Tractor in the first quarter of this year will be in excess of $1.75 a share. That would compare with $1.37 in the final quarter of last year and with $1.79 in the first three months of 1930. As the company's business is largely with municipalities and other public agencies, increased expenditures for public improvements should be an important factor in its business in the coming months. Its foreign business is said to have been satisfactory.

Interests who have been close to Standard Brands insist that in the current year the company will be able to lower costs and expand net profits as a result of various steps which will be reflected in the future. It is contended that the recession in earnings last year was due primarily to the cost of establishing national distribution for coffee and gelatine desserts, which now has been accomplished. Good scale buying is said to have come into the stock at times recently.

Many test periods probably are ahead for the market. Traders who are steadily fighting the advance are likely to come into the market with offerings as higher prices are established. Such opposition always develops after the market has rallied from a low point. The manner in which the supply is absorbed will have an important bearing on sentiment. If stocks can push through to new highs on volume, it will be considered another encouraging indication and result in bringing additional new buying into various leaders.

The keenly disappointing report of the Chrysler Corporation showing net for last year equivalent to only 5 cents a share on the common stock, compared with $4.94 a share in 1929 had apparently been discounted as a market factor. At any rate there appeared to be considerable covering in Chrysler in the course of yesterday presumably on the theory that the "bad news" was out. Motor stocks were inclined to strength which reflected buying stimulated by the announcement of the steel trade journals that automobile buying of steel had been brisk last week. The Iron Age in commenting on this development said "the change for the better in automotive steel requirements is so sudden that there is doubt whether it is merely a flash in the pan or marks the beginning of a general recovery in motor car business."

Steel trade journals reported a more cheerful tone ruling in the industry based on further slight expansion in business and more definite prose of larger and more diversified demands with the approach of open weather. Mill operations as a whole rose 1 per cent to 51 per cent, but buying is still on a cautious plan with the tendency continuing toward keeping stocks low and depending on quick shipments. The price situation is still irregular, a condition not unusual in transition periods. Finished steel prices are under pressure though the composite average is unchanged, but both pig iron and scrap continued to yield, the former to the lowest since 1915 and the latter to the lowest since the middle of 1921.

The feature of yesterday's market was the preponderance of activity in the rank and file of low-priced stocks. Seasoned industrial leaders were dormant for long spells at a time, as for example around the noon hour when in one instance only a single transaction involving 300 shares was recorded in steel common in a space of about 20 minutes. Market observers ascribed the popularity of the cheap stocks to the disposition of the public which had missed the current advance to get aboard the band wagon. With this determination in mind it appeared such buyers were seeking out low priced shares that had not yet participated actively in the advance on the theory that "their turn would come."

Price Fixing of Trust Shares Confusing

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

ONE OF THE MOST confusing phases of the study of fixed investment trusts is encountered in the methods of pricing the shares and in the charges made for assembling the portfolios. The shares of a fixed trust represent proportional ownership in a list of common stocks which have been deposited with a trustee. The prices of fixed trust shares fluctuate with the prices of the underlying stocks.

In theory the pricing of the shares is quite simple, but in practice many complexities arise and the fact that the procedure in nearly every trust is different tends to add to the confusion. Fixed trusts are formed in units. For each of these units certain quantities of stocks are purchased and deposited with a trustee. Against each unit a specified number of shares is sold.

In computing the price of the shares, the market value of all the stocks in the portfolio is totaled. To this is added brokerage commissions. Additional charges must also be made to cover the trustees' fees, the operating costs of the firm sponsoring the trust, the cost of selling the shares and, of course, a margin over all this to give profits to the organizations having a part in the formation and distribution of the shares. Dividends and other sources of income accumulated between payment dates must also be added and, if the trust has a reserve fund, this must be included. All these items represent the price of a full unit. This figure divided by the number of shares in the unit gives the final quotation.

Markets Differ

THE FIRST DIFFICULTY is found in determining the market value of the purchased stocks. They are usually active issues. Sales are made at varying prices during the day. Just what price is to be selected? There is the opening market, the high market, the low market, the closing market, the bid market, the asked market and others. Some trusts take one of these particular markets and base their calculations on it. Others follow fluctuations continually and are constantly adjusting the quotations on their shares. The latter system seems to be preferable since it causes fewer inequalities in the treatment of customers.

Most trusts are made up of odd lots of stocks. This involves extra brokerage fees although the formation of units frequently takes place so rapidly that full hundred share lots can be bought. In some trusts the sponsors keep this saving in buying full lots for themselves. In others it is passed on to the customers.

Adjustment of Eighths

WHILE THE FINAL quotations of fixed trust shares are made in eighths, the actual computations usually end in an odd number of cents not making a full eighth. If a share should be shown to be worth $9.04 some trusts would make their quotation the next highest eighth or 9 1/8, while others would make it the nearest eighth or 9. This appears trivial but it amounts to a large sum of money for the sponsor of a trust.

Methods of computing the charge or load to cover the operating costs and profits also are subject to wide variation. Some trusts make a flat charge of so many cents a share. Others take a percentage of the price or combine the two methods. Where a percentage is used, it makes a difference whether this is computed on the cost of the stocks before adding accumulations, reserve fund and other items or after adding them.

Trustees Fees

ANOTHER FACTOR IN the cost of buying fixed trusts is the method of obtaining trustees' fees. These may be included in the original charge; they may be deducted from annual earnings; or they may be secured by withholding interest on reserve funds or accumulations. Examinations of trusts claiming that their charges are small occasionally show that the payments to trustees are secured by one of these alternate methods so that the actual cost to the investor is greater than appears on the face of the plan.

The complicated nature of price computations has made it possible for the sponsors of some trusts to take hidden profits out of their operations. While the individual details do not appear of great importance, in the aggregate they mean many thousands of dollars annually.

One reform is badly needed in fixed trusts. A standard method of publishing load charges should be established so that investors can easily find out just what they are paying for service and how this compares in the individual trusts. A good margin of profit should be paid to insure proper operation and supervision but the investor should be told exactly how much money this involves.

Penn'a Crude Output Increased in 1930

Preliminary statistics compiled by the Department of Commerce placed the 1930 production at 12.-797,000 barrels, as against 11,820.-000 in 1929. Final tabulation may raise the 1930 figures slightly.

Pennsylvania was one of the five oil producing states which had gains last year over 1929. The total production of 898,000,000 barrels represented a decline of 109.-000,000 barrels, or 11 per cent, below the 1929 output.

The Pennsylvania grade oil produced in New York Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Southeastern Ohio, likewise advanced over the output of 1929, the increase being from 23,736,000 barrels in that year to 24,482,000 barrels last year.

In Memoriam 1-B

In loving memory of our dear mother, Catherine Naumann, who passed away one year ago today, February 19, 1930.

Today recalls sad memories
Of a dear mother gone to rest.
And the ones who think of her today
Are the ones who loved her best.
Sadly missed by husband, children and grandchildren.

In loving memory of our dear father, Archibald Foster, who passed away three years ago today.

As we loved you, so we miss you,
In memory you are always near;
Loved, remembered, longed for always
Bringing many a silent tear.

In loving memory of our darling son, Charles Baus, who passed away one year ago today, February 19, 1930.

Today calls sad memories
Of our dear son, gone to rest,
And the ones who think of him today
Are the ones who loved him best.
Mother, Father, Wife and Sisters.

Legal Notices 107

IN THE ORPHANS' COURT OF ALLEGHENY COUNTY, PENNSYLVANIA. In the matter of the estate of George Wright, deceased. No. 295, February Term, 1931.

To all heirs, devisees, legatees, creditors and other persons interested in said estate:

Notice is hereby given that the petition of Harry F. Davis and Wm. G. Stoyle, executors of the estate of George Wright, deceased, is filed in the office of the clerk of the court praying for an order of sale of the real estate of the decendent situate in the Township of Elizabeth, Allegheny County, Pa., bounded and described as follows:

Beginning at a point at the corner of lands now or formerly owned by John T. Burns in the Village of Industry, thence south 4° east a distance of four hundred and three and five-tenths (403.5) feet to a post; thence north 71° 5' east, a distance of fifty-eight and forty-five one hundredths (58.45) feet to a post; thence north 4° 25' west a distance of ninety-one and five-tenths (91.5) feet to a post; thence south 72° 25' west, a distance of sixty and five-tenths (60.5) feet to a post at the place of beginning. Having erected thereon a two-story frame dwelling.

At private sale to Robert J. Cant and Alice M. Cant, his wife, for the sum of $2,000.00.

The court will be asked to make a decree of sale on the 11th day of March, 1931, at 10:00 o'clock a. m., Eastern Standard Time, when higher offers will be considered and exceptions or objections to the proposed sale will be heard.

W. M. EWING, Attorney for Petitioner. 1105 Plaza Bldg., Pittsburgh, Pa.

In the Court of Common Pleas of Allegheny County, Pa. No. 1828, October Term, 1928. The Pittsburgh Gasoline Pump Company, a Pennsylvania corporation. No. 1828 October Term, 1928.

NOTICE

Notice is hereby given that the first and final account of A. F. Swearingen, receiver of The Pittsburgh Gasoline Pump Company, was filed on the fourth day of February, 1931, at the above number and term, and that application will be made to the court for confirmation of the same on the tenth day of March, 1931, at the hour of 9:30 o'clock a. m., and that, unless exceptions are filed thereto on or before the above time, the account may be confirmed and Three Thousand Six Hundred Eighty Dollars and Sixty-five Cents ($3,680.65), the balance in the hands of the said receiver as shown in said account, less the expense of giving this notice, may be ordered distributed to those entitled to said fund.

MAKE-BELIEVE

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Mary Lou Thurston, beautiful orphan girl of the "home" type, lives with her aunt and uncle, Clara and Howard Sanderson. The former is private secretary to a publisher and the latter an engineer. Mary Lou locks after Billy, their small son. Larry Mitchell, young newspaper reporter, is Mary Lou's pal. Mary Lou is happy, but vitally restless. Larry appears on the scene, rescues Billy from peril in traffic, makes a date with Mary Lou for the next day and dashes off in his pursuit of news. Sanderson gets a chance to go to the Orient on a big engineering project and take his wife as secretary of the expedition. What Mary Lou will do is a problem and she is to stay temporarily with Grandma Jennings, Clara's mother. Larry is eager to marry Mary Lou and take care of her, but Mary Lou refuses his offer. The Sandersons and Mary Lou go to Grandma Jennings' home for dinner and to make arrangements for the journey. The Sandersons start on the trip. Mary Lou asks Larry to help her get a job. Larry sees an advertisement calling for a companion for an invalid. Mary Lou feels she can meet all specified requirements. He guides her to the train she must take to the Lorrimer home, where application must be made.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER VI.

"Larry, how do I look?"

"A million dollars," said Larry gravely, "and I wouldn't ask for a cent less."

In the taxi, however, he looked her over from head to toe and nodded.

"You'll do. Keep a stiff upper lip and remember that your great-grandmother was a lady. Don't let 'em put it over on you. I looked up this Lorrimer bunch, there's just a Mrs. Lorrimer and her son, so the invalid must be the lady herself. They are simply all over stocks and bonds."

Mary Lou began to be alarmed. This would be her first excursion into the Clan of Heavy Income Taxes.

He put her on the train with two minutes to spare and gravely handed her a very wild looking French periodical which he had bought earlier that morning.

He ran along the platform as the train pulled out, shouting advice, commands and encouragement.

Enjoys Ride

She reached Westmill and made inquiries at the severe Georgian brick station. The Lorrimer estate was some distance away, and Mary Lou, peering in her purse, discovered to her relief that because of Larry's forethought in providing tickets—including a return—she had quite enough money for the emergency of a taxi.

Presently they rattled past great gateposts, up a long tree-bordered driveway, curving and very lovely. To the left she caught a glimpse of water—a lake, she thought, but as they came up the approach to the house she saw that it was really a bend of the sound, curving to a white, half-moon of a beach.

Luxurious Home

The house was of stone with a great central portion and two beautifully proportioned wings. Ivy almost covered it and the stone itself where it could be seen and that of the chimneys had mellowed to a lovely soft gray. The site was high above the sound; there were wide, curving sloping lawns still velvet green, and many fine old trees.

She paid the driver with gloved hands which shook a little, approached the door and pressed the bell as firmly as possible.

She stammered something and then discovered she was holding out the advertisement, plucked from her purse.

"If I could see Mrs. Lorrimer . . . in answer to this?"

His face did not change, although his eyes flickered briefly with some emotion . . . . astonishment, perhaps, or curiosity. He gravely bowed her in, took her proffered card and the advertisement and offered her a tall, high-backed carven chair in the big square hall in which she found herself.

Presently the man-servant reappeared and motioned to her to follow him.

"Mrs. Lorrimer will see you," he murmured, and stood aside to let her enter, not as she had half expected, an entrancing but frightening drawing room, but a sunny morning room, all low, deep chairs and chintzes.

Sees Mistress

Mrs. Lorrimer was very tall, and very slender. She was beautifully gowned and groomed. Her white hair was short, cut close to her noble head, lying in flat waves, clinging, soft. Her gown was that superb dark dahlia shade, neither purple nor red, very plain, very expertly cut. And the eyes bent on Mary Lou were beautiful, dark brown with amber lights.

Her face was thin to haggardness. Her mouth, touched lightly with a clever lipstick, was a nervous mouth, but sweet. But all her fine features had about them that quality of something held in leash, something tense and finedrawn which is so disturbing to the observer because it tells of such hard won self-control, and such restraint and repression.

"I'm Mary Lou Thurston," said Mary Lou, "and I came about the advertisement."

"I know," said Mrs. Lorrimer, and her voice was lovely. She had been holding the advertisement between the long fingers of one beautiful hand and now she laid it on the desk and sat down, motioning Mary Lou to a chair. "I understand . . . and I'm so sorry—"

Mary Lou's heart almost choked her with disappointment. The place was filled then! Well, she might have known it was too good to be true!

A Misunderstanding

"Then," she said, trying to be practical and careless about it all, yet feeling her hurt so keenly that she wondered savagely if there were tears in her eyes, "then," said Mary Lou, "I suppose you're—suited?"

She hadn't known just how to say it. She'd never tried for a position before. And there was something so very quaint about the way she did say it that Mrs. Lorrimer's heart, never very hard, softened and warmed toward her. What a pretty child . . . inexperienced of course. She had not meant to see her, or anyone like her, but Peter had come in with the astonishing word that a young lady, "a real young lady, Mrs. Lorrimer," was outside in answer to the advertisement.

"Why yes—I advertised for a companion for my son."

"It isn't that," Mrs. Lorrimer said, and smiled—and her smile was something to marvel at—"you see, it's all a mistake . . ."

"Mistake?" breathed Mary Lou, wide-eyed.

"Why, yes—I advertised for a companion—for my son"—the dark eyes deepened with some abrupt shadow—"for, of course, a man companion. The paper in which I advertised left that important requirement out, that's all. The moment I saw it yesterday I 'phoned in to have it rectified. They have done so in today's edition. I am so sorry . . ." she glanced at Mary Lou's sedate little calling card—"Miss Thurston, that you have had this trip for nothing. Did you come from New York?"

"From Long Island," she managed to say bravely, "but it's quite all right. I—I'm sorry too." She looked into the other woman's friendly eyes and went on with a sudden burst of confidence and courage, "you see, it's the first position I ever applied for and I was so—so sure I could—well, fill the bill. French, music, love of sports and all. And even," went on Mary Lou, trying to laugh a little and almost succeeding, "even a sense of humor! It is funny, isn't it, my thinking I would come out here to find an invalid old lady or young girl . . . and then to hear this?" She actually managed a genuine chuckle for it really occurred to her as funny now. "I am so sorry, too," she said again and Mrs. Lorrimer saw her look wistfully about the lovely, glowing room.

"So am I—it was a stupid mistake and I apologize a thousand times for bringing you out here." She stopped, wondering if she could offer money to this charming girl, railway fare, some compensation.

Invited to Stay

"That's quite all right," Mary Lou said hastily, in one of her thought-reading moments. She felt shy again and awfully uncomfortable. "If—if I might just ask your butler to 'phone for a taxi?" she went on, more easily.

"I'll have a car take you to the station. But it's a bit of a wait to the next train." Mrs. Lorrimer looked at her unexpected guest and fancied that she was shivering a little. And so she was. She hadn't eaten much breakfast; she'd been too excited. And now she felt a little cold, and let down. "You'll wait with me, won't you?" Mrs. Lorrimer went on, with one of her sudden inspirations, "and drink a cup of coffee? I always have a second breakfast about this time," she told Mary Lou, without a quiver of her charming eyelids at her entirely mendacious statement, "for we get up rather early here. Do stay, won't you? I'll see you get your train."

Mary Lou said, gratefully, "I'd love to," and so Mrs. Lorrimer rang the bell and when Peter appeared looked at him, as expressionless as he.

"I'll have my coffee and toast served in here," she informed him, "and Miss Thurston will join me."

"Very good, madam," said Peter, not batting an eyelid either, although never before in the history of time had Margaret Lorrimer indulged in toast and coffee at 11 in the morning.

DAILY TRUE STORY—

'New'

Laura Kent's mind was occupied with as varied an assortment of subjects as one might find between cabbages and kings.

One dainty foot was resting on the pulled-out bottom drawer of her desk. Whirls of smoke from the cigaret, held loosely between her lips, arose before her eyes without causing her to blink.

Laura was trying to figure out some new situation in a love scene that would ultimately be flashed on the silver screen for the more or less edification of millions of movie fans.

There came a couple of raps on her door and it was instantly opened. Mr. Blum, head of the Massive Pictures scenario department, popped in. There followed a tall, somewhat pale man who seemed rather ill at ease.

"Hello, Miss Kent," Mr. Blum said, breezily, "wantcher to meet Mr. Mason; he's with us."

Laura took her foot out of her desk drawer, brought her mind back to earth, snuffed out her cigaret, all with deliberateness, and then smiled at Mr. Mason.

"Hello, there," she greeted him. "Sit down. You must be Hemmingway Mason, who tossed off that tome, 'The Fireside Girl,' aren't you?"

"Why—er—yes, Miss—was the name Kent?"

"Was and is."

"All right, all right. I got to run," Mr. Blum said. "Miss Kent here will tell you what it's all about."

Encouraged by Smile

Mr. Blum departed. Laura passed over the cigarets. Mr Hemmingway Mason accepted one, accepted the light she flickered from the desk lighter and eyed her timidly.

Laura smiled again.

"Thanks for the smile, Miss Kent. That's encouraging. You see, I haven't the faintest idea of how you people write the screen plays—the technique, you know."

"It isn't technique. You grab into your bag of ideas, write it out and if the director has a lucky accident of grasping the general idea and the star is off her temperamental fits for a week or so—it's a hit and the director and the star get all the credit. Otherwise, it's a flop, and you are blamed for everything, up to and including wrong props, poor lighting effects and the lisp of the leading man."

"Remarkable," murmured Hemmingway Mason. "You see I—er—did not seek this connection here—in fact it never occurred—"

"Of course not. You've turned out some novels that sold and your latest one made quite a hit. The boys with the mastodon intellects—"

"I beg your pardon?"

"The producers. They have seen your name in the book reviews, on the jackets of your novels and the like, and so they argue that you must be a genius and that your stories must be top-notchers because they are between book covers. So they make you an offer of a year, a contract at a figure that looks about 10 times better than the royalties on a dozen novels. Not being entirely defunct above the chin, you accept."

"I don't see how you guessed it, Miss Kent."

"What should I do first?"

"Read the scenarios and then the continuities of some of the pictures that made good. Study plot, handling and dialogue. Then hang around a few weeks or a month, watching them make the pictures—"

Laura Understands

Being decidedly human, Laura frowned a little. It wasn't right, of course. She had slaved in a scenario department for years, and while her salary was more than adequate, it made her good and tired to have some greenhorn who happened to have written a novel be taken on the pay roll at about four times the salary they paid her. The worst of it was that most of them were utter flops. They took their year's salary and departed without ever having their work get beyond the waste basket.

Mr. Hemmingway Mason collected scenarios and continuities and read them and watched Miss Kent hammering her typewriter at her desk or listened as she argued colorfully with the production manager, Mr. Blum, or some director over this or that seemingly inane point of a picture in the making.

One Sunday morning he saw Miss Kent in a garden on a side street and stopped. She boarded there, she explained. He suggested a ride in the country.

Laura Kent was pleased to go. They drove away back on the hills and enjoyed the view and Hemmingway took her to the handsome home where he was boarding with friends. They had dinner out on a terrace, looking down across the city and beyond to the Pacific.

After dinner they drove around and saw some fruit ranches. There was one, sloping to the southwest, with a stream running through it and a beautiful pond.

"That's my idea of paradise," Laura said.

"Mine, too," Hemmingway agreed, "but when a man is as much of a flop as I've been, paradise is out of the question."

"You're no flop, Hemmingway."

"I certainly am a flop — I'm ashamed to be sitting in that office watching you writing stuff that is made into pictures while I do nothing."

"Write a novel in your spare time."

And then, one day, Mr. Blum popped into the office.

"Lissen, both of you," he said. "We've got to put 'Blue Shadows' on the shelf. It won't do, and we've got to make another to take its place right away. Both of you get together and turn out a story — something entirely new—rush it."

He popped out again.

Hemmingway Mason shook his head sadly.

"One would think that a plot or story could be found by opening up a desk drawer and taking it out, ready made," he said.

"Something new!" Laura laughed, bitterly.

"It is easy for you," Hemmingway mused, "but I'm not up to it at all. Now, take romance—what is there in it that is new?"

"Situations."

"Like the rich girl and poor boy or vice versa? Or the girl forbidden to see a certain young man which practically drives her to elope with him—all very old."

"Let's not think of the old ones, let's try and think of something new," Laura suggested.

Agree on Plot

Hemmingway Mason secretly watched Laura Kent.

"That Paradise fruit ranch is up for sale," he said, after a long silence.

"Imagine living there and forgetting scenarios," Laura sighed.

Hemmingway Mason turned to his typewriter and began pounding the keys for a few moments. He pulled out the paper and handed it to Laura.

"Here's an idea, an original plot—do you like it?" he asked.

Laura read:

"One successful scenarist, a very beautiful girl, and one medium novelist who is a flop as a scenarist, a youngish man, decide to move out and away from it all and live on Paradise Fruit Ranch."

"That won't get past the big censor, Will Hays," Laura said.

"Why?"

"No wedding bells."

"I'll guarantee wedding bells, Laura."

"Your plot is accepted, let's go!" They went.

Vocational Bureau

We have helped others—we can help you. Do not just sit down in a rut. Awaken the desires of ambition that slumber within you. Our Vocational Bureau takes lazy, discouraged mugs and sends them skyrocketing to fame and fortune. Take the example of Prof. Poopoopadoop for example. Being a lightning change artist, he was hard hit by the decline and fall of vaudeville. He knew not which way to turn. One evening our Vocational Bureau suggested that he take the bar examination in the home of a friend. Next morning we sent him a postal card announcing that he could at least practice law. Now Prof. Poopoopadoop earns thousands of dollars a day as a divorce lawyer, through his ability to change his clothes in five seconds and appear as counsel for both sides of the case and be four witnesses at the same time.

Competition Restored

It Is Reassuring to See Lively Bidding Again for Electrical Work in Schools.

There is good news for taxpayers in the restoration of lively competition by electrical contractors for school jobs, as evidenced in the contract awarded for work on the Knoxville Junior High School.

There were nine bids for the job, with a difference of $11,000 between the highest and the lowest. Moreover, six of the bidders were members of the Electrical Contractors' Association, which is said to have been boycotting school work.

The trouble started more than a year ago when the Board of Public Education rejected all bids for electrical work on the Taylor Allderdice High School with the explanation that they were exorbitant and showed "an apparent conspiracy in restraint of trade" on the part of Pittsburgh's electrical contractors. Since then some very bitter charges have been made on both sides of the controversy.

The consequent delay in school construction has been a bad thing all the way around—bad for the school children, bad for the contractors.

P. R. R. Speeds Work

Other Companies May Find It to Their Advantage to Go Ahead With Construction Projects Now.

The Pennsylvania Railroad announces a plan to complete a four-year program of construction in two and a half years.

Its decision is welcome because of the favorable effect it will have on the industrial situation. But it is to be noted that the company is not speeding up its work from philanthropic motives, but because it will be to its advantage.

Executives of other companies will find President Atterbury's statement profitable reading. He points out that now is a good time to proceed with construction jobs because materials are cheap and labor efficient.

From Pittsburgh's standpoint the statement is disappointing in that while it tells of projects to be rushed in Philadelphia, Baltimore, Newark and other points on the Eastern lines there is no specific mention of any work to be done in Pittsburgh.

The Pennsylvania Railroad reports the arrival of a carload of honeydew melons at the Pittsburgh produce yards. They came from Chile and were received in excellent condition.

It is unusual to have melons in February; in fact, this in the first winter that honeydews have ever been received here. But "in season" is rapidly losing its significance. Fresh fruits and vegetables are now available throughout the year.

Crippling Navy

There are Too Few Naval Officers Now, but Republican House of Representatives Orders Further Reduction

Against the attempt of the Republican House of Representatives to scuttle the American Navy, every Senator in Congress who puts loyalty to country above bondage to party should protest.

Not content with blocking the upbuilding of the Navy to treaty strength, the Republican leaders of the House have actually attempted to cripple the inadequate Navy that we now have.

Instead of increasing the number of naval officers to meet the future demands of the fleet, the Republican House has ordered the number of midshipmen to be reduced by 25 per cent.

It takes four years to train a young man to become a junior officer in the Navy.

Under existing law each Senator and Representative in Congress is allowed five appointments to Annapolis.

Recent Republican Congresses have appropriated for only four midshipmen for each national legislator.

There are not enough officers to meet the operating needs of the fleet. No provision has been made to train enough officers for the new ships now building, or for those that ought to be authorized if the London treaty is to be lived up to.

For this reason the Navy Department appealed to the Republican House to appropriate for all five midshipmen now allowed to each national legislator.

Instead of doing that the Republican House appropriated for only three per national legislator—one less than the number now in training, two less than the number urgently needed.

Annapolis has ample accommodations for the training of the full number of midshipmen which the Navy Department called upon Congress to provide for.

This is not economy, therefore. It is the most reckless and indefensible extravagance by politicians for political purposes.

It was a great British admiral—Lord Fisher—who said:

"Men fight, not ships."

Surely a patriotic Senate will heed this warning and defeat the conspiracy to block the upbuilding of a treaty Navy and to cripple the Navy that we now maintain.

Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

The Last Adventure

After listening to several male cynics on the subject of matrimony, I have come to the conclusion that what makes the modern man shy at domesticity is not the fear of its uncertainty, but the horror of its deadly certainty.

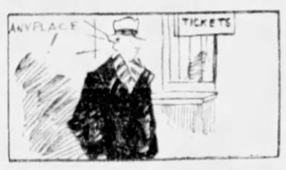
It is not novelty that a man craves or misses, after marriage; it is adventure! Certainty may be calm and sweet and comforting—but it is UNCERTAINTY that makes life an adventure.



There is a spirit of adventure which lurks in every human soul. There are moments when every one of us would like to buy a ticket for Nowhere, or just to take a train and hop off at an unknown station and walk to the end of the rainbow.

YOU know that restless feeling! The wanderlust.

But we have made a hitching-post of marriage—we women. And soon, life gets to be just one darned day after another—and all of a monotonous sameness.

The moment we fall in love, we begin to lay down petty rules for the man. He must telephone you every day, and see you at a certain hour every evening.

He must tell you how he got the spots on his vest or the sachet on his coat lapel, why he shaved off his mustache, what he ate for dinner, and just how many cocktails he took. Even when he coughs or sneezes, he must tell you how and where he "caught that cold."

A woman's "must" turns a pleasure into a duty and a luxury into a necessity. All of the things that a man might have done spontaneously, joyously and naturally, he finds himself doing just as a daily "chore."

Life ceases to be a fascinating adventure, once it becomes a deadly routine. You could turn a small boy against candy, ice cream and honey if you forced him to eat them every day!

That is why so many young romances died before they have blossomed, and so many engagements to marry flop before the wedding day. The moment a woman has staked her claim she starts right in to build a fence around it—and the man just naturally wriggles out of it.

Fresnel Paved Way for Einstein's Theory

By Archibald Henderson

Fresnel is one of those scientists whose larger recognition waits upon the appreciation of later scientists. Not that he was by any means neglected during his lifetime. Indeed, quite the contrary is the case. But within recent years physicists have been turning the full flow of their attention upon the subject of light. The theory of relativity relies heavily upon some of the most important discoveries of Fresnel regarding the passage of light rays through various substances. The whole subject of polarized light rests in no small measure upon the sound and brilliant researches of Fresnel.

This interesting, half-tragic figure, Augustin Jean Fresnel, was born at Broglie, in Normandy, May 10, 1788. Far from being an infant prodigy, he developed very slowly, and although receiving, along with his brothers, instruction from both father and mother, he could scarcely read at the age of 8. After studying for three years at the Ecole Centrale of Caenu, this delicate lad entered the famous Ecole Polytechnique.

One of the great mathematicians of the day, Legendre, propounded a difficult mathematical problem; and Fresnel, whose genius had been so slow in maturing, solved this problem so satisfactorily as to win the public commendation of Legendre himself.

It seemed for a time as if Fresnel were going to be sidetracked, by being diverted from mathematics and physics to engineering.

After a course of study at the famous French engineering school, the Ecole des Ponts et Chaussies, he received appointment as engineer successively in the departments of La Vendes, Drome and Ile-et-Villairs. For more than eight years he devoted himself to dull and uninspiring tasks as an engineer, which afforded little opportunity for the display of his brilliant talents.

Fresnel's sympathies lay with the Bourbons, and he served with the Royalists which unsuccessfully resisted the return of Napoleon in 1815. He suffered many indignities for his espousal of the Royalist cause, but after the Bourbon restoration he obtained a post as engineer in Paris.

From this time until his untimely death from consumption in 1827, Fresnel published many important memoirs and won considerable fame. He won the French Academy prize in 1819, was unanimously elected to that body in 1823; two years later was elected an associate of the Royal Society of London, and on his death bed was awarded by it the Rumford medal.

Fresnel shares with Thomas Young the distinction of laying the foundations for the wave theory of light, which displaced Newton's corpuscular theory. He verified the undulatory theory by use of the phenomena of interference. Polarized light and double refraction were satisfactorily investigated by him. Fresnel likewise made important contributions towards the construction of scientific lenses for lighthouse beacons.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Are women less able to stand the gaff than men?

Do they take their troubles more seriously and make more noise about them?

Here's a lady who says they do. And challenges the well-known twentieth century to prove she isn't right!

Dear Miss Robinson:

I am always interested in your column—particularly in the letters which you publish from time to time—and I am struck by the following fact:

Most of the people who air their grievances seem to be women.

Why don't more men complain?

It's absurd to say that it is because life is easier for men than for women. That might have been true in our grandparents' time, but nowadays women have as fair breaks as men—perhaps fairer! Yet everywhere you hear women complaining—over the telephone while they gossip to each other, across the counters while they shop, in rest rooms, in clubs, in public print. And always each one acts as if she had a monopoly on all the grief in the world.

Don't we hear men grumble? Yes, of course—but never to that extent. I have been forced to the conclusion that men take their medicine without half as much squawking as women.

Take marriage for example. You know as well as I do they bore and neglect and actually abuse their husbands just as often as husbands bore, neglect or abuse their wives, but you would never guess it by listening in. Always the wife does the beefing.

Why is it? Are men better sports? Or are they just prouder and don't want to acknowledge that they've been stung—don't want sympathy and pity? Whatever it is, they certainly consume their own smoke better than women. FLORENCE ADAMS.

Well—what's your opinion?

Do you believe that the female of the species is a bigger sympathy hound than the male?

Frankly—mad as it may make you, sister—I think she is!

And is that because "women are born that way" . . . because man nature and woman nature are somehow different . . . because women are more sensitive and high strung than men?

No, it isn't. Comforting as that theory may be to ladies, it isn't true. Women aren't born that way, but they are trained that way. You've seen that training going on. Perhaps it is going on in your own home.

What do you do when Little Brother falls down and gets a nosebleed? Do you pet him and let him weep on your shoulder? You do not! You say "Here, here! Don't be a cry-baby. Be a man! You're not hurt. Here! Let's see you laugh! Then you'll forget all about it!" And he does! He learns spunk and grit, from the cradle.

Do you hand her the same line? Chances are you don't. Chances are you pick her up and cuddle her and make much over how badly she feels. So why shouldn't she whine every time a pin pricks her? Why shouldn't she be a cry-baby?

Why shouldn't women take their troubles hard—when they haven't been trained to laugh 'em off?

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

Starry Thoughts

Bright hosts of starry thoughts there are,
They shine from near, they gleam afar;
Glad thoughts of welcome toil and play
That bless each hour of every day,
And, glowing in life's firmament,
Illumine pathways of content.

Sometimes they gem the twilight skies,
Sometimes with morning they arise,
And even at high noon is seen
The splendor of their lucent sheen,
While starry thoughts still cast their light
Across the dark and sombre night.

These starry thoughts can shine away
The doubts that dull, the fears that prey
On many a heart, and bring again
Triumphant hopes and joy's bright train.
All life is of mind's fabric wrought,
So let us live with starry thought!

Text For Today The fruit of the spirit is love, joy, peace, long-suffering, gentleness, goodness, faith.—Galatians, v:22.

$10,000 From Uncle Sam

$30,000 From Business

THREE GOOD REASONS

As secretary to the President, Mr. Akerson made $10,000 a year. In his new job, with headquarters in New York, he begins at a salary of from $20,000 to $30,000.

Big business can pay, and does pay, any amount to the man it needs. In this respect, it is wiser than the government.

The government, which means the public, pays its servants about a third of what business would pay them. Then it wonders why many of its servants are inefficient, or corrupt, or lazy.

It also wonders why the best men in its service usually get out and take private positions. The answer is that the best men cannot afford to work for the government.

Not until government pay equals private pay will really able men work for the government, and not until then will government be anything but a huge, wasteful and inefficient machine.

You can't get full work for half wages.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—Law observing New York restaurants are in a dilemma over how to meet competition of speakeasy cuisine. They find it utterly impossible to offer meals comparable and make a profit. As a result the slump in patronage has been marked.

They do fairly well at lunch, but for dinner there are ghostly arrays of white and unoccupied tables. They must pay for high-priced orchestras and other expensive "overhead." The speakeasy in a forgotten basement on a side street has practically no rent.

Some of the rents are less than $100 a month. But they serve delectable food at ridiculously low tariff. The $1.50 dinner in many hush huts could not be purchased in exclusive and respectable establishments for less than five or six dollars.

This below-cost loss is, of course, more than made up in sale of drinks at enormous profit.

A sample of the menu comes in the morning mail. The place offers a dollar dinner from a profuse list of extravagant dishes. It starts off with cavier and winds a circuitous way through a gastronomic list including pheasant, wild duck and such desserts as Baked Alaska.

Of course, the speakeasy must deal with moochers who come "just for the ride" and bring their own liquor. But they rarely come again. The service for such tightwads becomes intolerable and the portions skimpy. At the next visit "Reserved" cards are on all tables.

Those who get select food are those who spark off with cocktails and cut into the champagne, topping it off with cordials. A dinner check for six may total $9, but the "extras" are quite likely to reach more than $100.

The graceful single span Hudson River bridge connecting Ft. Lee, N. J., and Fort Washington, N. Y., is attracting painters who are seen at their canvases at many vantage points. The bridge is especially beautiful in the silvery dusk with the moon riding high and the Hudson asparkle. The structure, costing more than ninety millions, was started in 1927 and will be finished in 1932. It serves traffic between New England and the Atlantic seaboard, diverting traffic from congested centers.

Times Square barber shops feature dime-in-the-slot dinguses into which patrons slip their neckties and they come out freshly pressed—that is the ties.

It strikes me a greater masculine need is for a lightning pants creaser. In my invention moments I have tried to think up one that would work like one of those zipper gadgets—a quick swish and it is done. But what with trying to teach a clown Sealyham to sit up and the business depression I have made practically no headway whatever. I still send my pants out by a boy.

In the sartorially luxuriant reign of E. Berry Wall as the town fashion plate an effort was made to abolish the trouser crease. Mr. Wall appeared in circular legged trousers as round as a stovepipe. But it was regarded as too freakish and quickly passed up.

An expertly meticulous dandy, varnished with the spurious look of clothing dummy contentment, sat in front of me at the theater the other night, looking neither right nor left. As the curtain fell he whispered to the lady with him and she gave him something out of her opera bag. On the way out he adjusted a pair of knitted wrist warmers—and in my affections immediately became a full blooded Knight of Pythias or something.

On a West Fifty-eighth street studio is a sign: "Crooning in Six Lessons." Somehow we never imagined it required such effort. We thought all you needed were rusty pipes and a megaphone.

Out in Cincinnati recently Manuel Rosenberg, a deft sketch artist, limned me along with many others for his journal. It was a striking likeness but a little soulful looking. Today a clipping of it comes from Terre Taute, Ind., inscribed: "To Tweetums. From Ipsy Babykins!" And durn if I didn't pop out in a blush again.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

Your quick temper has caused you much trouble, regret and sorrow.

Those who fly into a rage lack self-mastery.

They are weak and not well balanced, or they would not be frenzied.

You are either master or slave to your emotions.

No matter how righteous you think your cause, you have shown deplorable weakness when you allow yourself to rave, more or less, when circumstances prevail of which you do not approve.

Anger expressed does not draw any one to your cause.

The one you wish to control in your wrath is quite more likely to sit back and smile inwardly, waiting for the storm to blow over.

The brainstorm that you would like to have effective only makes the one who sees and hears it think that there must be something wrong with you.

You cannot get a reputation for good sense and balanced judgment if you lose control when you need repression of emotion and coolness to be able to see clearly.

How do you act under trying conditions?

WORDS OF THE WISE

He who goes round about in his requests, wants commonly more than he chooses to appear to want.—Lavater.

Plenty is the child of peace.—Prynne.

Who ever saw old age which did not praise the past time, and blame the present?—Montaigne.

A good word is an easy obligation, but not to speak ill, requires only our silence, which costs us nothing.—Tillotson.

Dear are our parents, dear are our children, our neighbors, our companions; but all the affections of all men are bound up in their own native land.—Cicero.
